Ottawa Gives $250,000 To Alberni Disaster Fund

SOVIET WARNS AGAIN AGAINST CUBA ATTACK

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union warned again today an attack on Cuba would bring immediate retaliation.

The threat was contained in an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, which was devoted to the 9th anniversary of the Warsaw Pact. It did not mention the United States by name.

"In spite of the clear-cut warnings by the U.S.S.R., certain quarters continue hatching plans of attacking socialist Cuba, though they ought to know this would have the most serious consequences for the aggressors."

Neither Moscow radio nor the official Soviet news agency Tass have made any mention of a raid by Cuban exiles on Cuba's coast.

The article said the aggressive circles of the Western powers "create dangerous hotbeds of the threat of war in various parts of the world."

FOOD, DRUGS

New U.S. Curb On Cuba Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. moved today to block Cuban feelers for the purchase of American drugs by tightening export restrictions of both food and drugs to the Communist-controlled island.

The action did not ban food and medicine shipments completely, but requires that each shipment be reviewed on an individual basis by the commerce department.

Cuba apparently has been scouting the American market for a large-scale deal on drugs. Several firms have asked the department for its view on drug deals ranging in value from $10 million to $12 million.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D—Fla.) said the commerce action is "well timed in light of our efforts to halt allied trade with Cuba."

"This action to be taken by the U.S. government will offer proof to our allies that any trade with Cuba is an affront to freedom," he added.

A department spokesman said it "wishes to be informed of all intended trade with Cuba" in the future so as to be in a position "to act according to the national interest of the United States."

The spokesman said decisions would be made on individual shipments "in the light of all relevant circumstances."

GIFTS ALLOWED

Gift parcels still will be permitted under general licence so as not to interrupt such relief and humanitarian acts on the part of individuals, the department said.

Exports to Cuba — except non-subsidized foodstuffs, medicines and medical supplies — were banned on Oct. 19, 1960. During the 1950s, American exports to Cuba averaged about $500 million a year.

Following the ban, the exports dropped off to less than $14 million in 1961.

At the end of 1962 and through the first half of 1963, special relief shipments were sent to Cuba in exchange for the release of prisoners captured during the abortive Bay of Pigs attack. These shipments swelled the export total by $13 million in 1962 and $36 million in 1963.

Aside from these relief shipments, merchandise sent to Cuba during the past two years was valued at $407,000 and $76,000.

The department sought to make clear that today's move did not constitute an embargo on exports of food and medicine to Cuba. It simply means that the government wants to take a closer look at these shipments.

U.S. Denies Any Part In Raid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. state department today issued a sweeping denial that the United States was involved in any way in a hit-and-run Cuban exile attack on the southern coast of Oriente province Wednesday.

Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he was authorized to "categorically deny" that any U.S. agency, including the Central Intelligence Agency, was involved or supported in any way in the raid. The attack was by a party led by refugee leader Manuel Artime on a sugar mill at Pilon.

The Castro government claimed the raid was made with a launch owned by the CIA.

Officials here indicated extreme displeasure of the fact that Artime's organization, the Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR), had issued its so-called "communique" about the attack from Miami. They acknowledged this was embarrassing to the United States and indicated that something might be done to prevent a recurrence.

Exile forces in Miami say their attack on a sugar mill and port in eastern Cuba is just the beginning in their war of sabotage and nerves aimed at toppling Fidel Castro's Communist regime.

The Revolutionary Recovery Movement, a military action group, said in its "first war communique" Wednesday that a combined raid by seaborne commandos and guerillas already in the hills gained control of the port of Pilon for three hours and left the sugar mill burning. It said other raids would come soon.

EXILES NOT INJURED

The exiles claimed they suffered no losses but said there was "tenacious fighting" with "a numerically superior Communist army." A spokesman for the invaders said Castro forces suffered considerable losses.

While commandos held Pilon, said the communique, engineers set off demolition charges at the mill, then withdrew. Guerrillas returned to the hills, the exiles said. Some townspeople in the area welcomed the attackers, they added.

Former Socred Refuses To Answer Probe Query

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands were made in the Commons privileges committee today that MP Gerard Girouard be reported to the Commons for refusing to comply with instructions to answer a question.

Liberal and New Democratic members voiced the demand after chairman Larry Pennell (L—Brant - Haldimand) ruled that Mr. Girouard must tell the committee whether he discussed with any of his former Social Credit colleagues a bid by Liberal national organizer Keith Davey to have Mr. Girouard join the Liberals.

Mr. Girouard, MP for Labelle who last month switched to the Progressive Conservatives from Social Credit, told the committee:

"I refuse to reply."

His statement came in the wake of a committee vote of 14 to 9 that Mr. Girouard must make a reply.

Mr. Girouard has told the committee under oath that Mr. Davey offered him certain benefits such as a fat election campaign fund to switch to the Liberals.

He said he would not reply so as to avoid involving other persons in the committee's inquiry into his allegations against Mr. Davey.

He said under questioning by Conservative and Liberal MPs he had refused to "play politics" and he wouldn't allow the committee proceedings to become a "political show."

The question he rejected was posed by Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) who demanded that chairman Pennell report Mr. Girouard to the Commons for his action. Mr. Fisher was backed by Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard).

Mr. Pennell originally gave a ruling that Mr. Girouard did not have to reply to Mr. Fisher on the ground that the question was irrelevant.

UPSET RULING

However, by a vote of 14 to 9 the committee upset his ruling with eight Progressive Conservatives and one Social Credit MP being outvoted by Liberals, New Democrats and Creditistes.

In the light of the vote, Mr. Pennell then instructed Mr. Girouard to reply to the question.

A procedural wrangle followed and the committee adjourned for lunch to give Mr.

'A Token Payment' —Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennet today called for more Alberni disaster aid from the federal government.

He refused to accept the suggestion that Ottawa will pay only $250,000—the amount announced by Prime Minister Pearson.

He termed the sum—only one-third of what B.C. asked—"a token payment."

"I would take this as an initial payment," he said.

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. government has already contributed a total of $800,000 disaster aid—and will not pay any more.

"That's our final figure," the premier said.

"Now it's up to the federal government to do their share."

B.C. asked Ottawa to pay half the $1,500,000 net depreciated loss caused by tidal waves on Vancouver Islands' west coast after the March 27 Alaska earthquake.

Mr. Bennett said Ottawa gets 80 per cent of the tax revenue from the province, and therefore should pay its fair share of disaster aid.

When first informed of Mr. Pearson's announcement, the premier asked: "Is that all?"

He recalled that Mr. Pearson had not answered either of his two telegrams about disaster aid.

NEVER ASKED

The prime minister said that the fact he had received no detailed breakdown of the damage was one reason for the decision to pay only $250,000.

"He never asked for any more information," the premier replied.

Mr. Bennett said the cabinet-appointed Alberni disaster committee — "a non-partisan committee"—would be happy to supply any additional information requested by Ottawa.

B.C. has already approved payment of $750,000 for compensation to flood victims, and also has given the local Alberni valley disaster fund a gift of $50,000.

The total damage estimate of $1,500,000 was decided by 25 independent appraisers hired by the provincial government.

Edward Benson, chairman of the Alberni valley and west coast of Vancouver Island disaster fund, said the amount "was well below what was expected by the committee."

The committee was to start today to pay compensation to home owners and operators of small industries, he said.

Mr. Benson was unable to say what percentage of damage will be covered.

"It appears it will not be 100 cents on the dollar or anywhere near it."

Mr. Benson said the fund is still $400,000 short of the assessed total damage figure.

"WATCHDOG" assignment as conciliator in an effort to head off war between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus has been given to Dirk Stikker, outgoing secretary-general, by NATO. Appointment was approved at closing session of three-day council meeting in The Hague today. Both Greece and Turkey accepted the appointment.

CYPRUS

Canada Plan Accepted

THE HAGUE (CP)—Canada's plan for a NATO mediation role between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus has been generally accepted, it was learned today as the North Atlantic alliance ministerial meeting drew to a close.

Wording of the agreement has yet to be worked out but a source emerged from the conference room to say that Greece and Turkey had agreed to a mediation role by Secretary-General Dirk Stikker of The Netherlands.

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada had put forward the plan on the basis of a 1956 formula evolved by NATO's "three wise men"—Canada's Lester Pearson, Italy's Gaetano Martino and Norway's Halvard Lange.

The formula, now part of article one of the NATO charter, provides that on request the secretary-general can mediate between disputing NATO members.

It is stressed here that NATO does not propose any mediation role in Cyprus itself—that is an affair for the United Nations—but only between Greece and Turkey.

KEY ISSUE OF MEETING

Cyprus was one of the key issues up for discussion among members of the 15-nation alliance on the final day of their three-day ministerial meeting.

The sources said Stikker, who retires as NATO secretary-general Aug. 1, would have a conciliator's role limited only to relations between Ankara and Athens and he would play no part in attempting to solve questions on the island itself.

Details on Stikker's role were being worked out for inclusion in the communique summing up the spring meeting.

Opposition Suggests Increase

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A $250,000 donation to the Alberni disaster fund — $500,000 lower than the amount requested by the B.C. government — was offered today by the federal government.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the government's decision in the Commons, and immediately prompted opposition suggestions that the federal contribution should be higher.

Mr. Pearson, in reply to these requests, said he could give no assurance that any higher grant would be provided but would give the reconsideration asked for.

In his statement, Mr. Pearson acknowledged that the B.C. government had proposed equal sharing of the March 27 flood damage between Victoria and Ottawa; on B.C. Premier Bennett's estimate this would have been $750,000 each.

MADE EARLY OFFER

"As soon as the news of the damage was received," Mr. Pearson told the House, "the government made an offer of assistance to the government of B.C., subject to the usual conditions, namely, that the federal government be given details of the extent of the damage and an indication that the cost was beyond the local municipalities, and provincial government.

"We still haven't got a copy of the report of the assessors retained by the B.C. government to survey the damage, but we have been notified that the net depreciated loss amounts to approximately $1.5 million.

"While Premier Bennett of course did not maintain that this sum was beyond the ability of his province he proposed that one half be met by the federal government.

"It has not been the practice of the federal government to meet half the cost when the scale of damage was not high. W are making a grant to the disaster fund rather than following the policy proposed by the provincial government, and we have decided to make a grant of $250,000 to the Alberni disaster fund."

SUPPORTS POLICY

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in comment on the announcement said he was in entire agreement with the policy behind the grant. But he went on to say that the grant, "while substantial, is considerably less than members (of the Commons) generally would have expected, regard being taken of the loss suffered by so many private people."

"Is there any possibility of reconsidering and increasing that amount?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. "I think Canadians as a whole would feel that the situation could be

WOMEN DEFEND SIDEWALK ROMEOS

'Please, Don't Pinch Pinchers'

ROME (AP) — The American Women's Club of Rome rallied today to the defence of Italian sidewalk wolves. It warned that official plans to curb them would take much of the romance out of romantic Italy for women tourists.

Italian officials announced recently they would take steps against the Romeos because many foreign women complained they had been molested.

The women's association, which includes hundreds of wives of U.S. diplomats and businessmen, defended the romantic tendencies of the Italian male in an unsigned article in its newspaper.

The article, titled A Pinch of Romance, declared the amorous tweaks and "carefree leers of Italian men" were an integral part of Italy's appeal for the visiting woman.

"Every woman over 30 views a trip to Italy with flutters of excitement which owe nothing to the anticipation of viewing ruins," said the article. "What is the first question confronting the returned female tourist in the suburbs? Certainly not 'did you see the Sistine chapel?' But 'did you get pinched?' . . .

"For an American woman, a mature, responsible new-world product who is accustomed to walking a street as if invisible . . . the fact that Italian men aged 17 to 80 will, without exception, turn their heads at her passing, is a thing of wonder and joy.

"It may take a bit of getting used to but it's an adjustment women are willing to make. The Italian attitude is the important thing. 'You're a woman and therefore worthy of admiration' is so charmingly un-American.

"Let the tourist bureau control prices and museum hours, but take care of any unesthetic handling of the Italian Romeos."

Financial, Economic Woes Loom for Liberal Regime

OTTAWA—Amid all its mistakes and liabilities the Pearson government enjoys one immeasurable asset. The current Canadian boom relaxes all political tensions, even the tension of racial conflict. Without the boom, indeed, the government's position would probably be impossible by now. No critic dares to attack prosperity.

Hutchison

But the boom is less the result of good management than of good luck. It began with the business recovery of the United States more than three years ago, it rides on an abundant export market today and already is beginning to confront the economists with a Keynesian nightmare.

Mr. Diefenbaker can rightly claim that the boom was well launched before his defeat by the Liberal party which promised to "get the economy moving," though it was then moving at breakneck speed. Mr. Pearson can claim that the nation, except for the unemployed in a few depressed areas, is highly prosperous under his administration.

In truth, the only decisive act of government affecting the economic climate was the devaluation of Canada's dollar in 1962 and it was not undertaken as a positive policy but as a negative surrender to a currency crisis.

For our present good fortune we have little reason to thank the politicians on either side. And now, despite their self-congratulation and retrospective wisdom, we are heading into serious trouble.

This trouble, disguised for the moment, has two interdependent sides, financial and economic.

Financially, the Pearson government is somewhat better managed than its predecessor but that is not saying much, since the Diefenbaker government almost precipitated national bankruptcy.

Extra Burden

To be sure, Mr. Walter Gordon rejoiced prematurely in his March budget speech that he had reduced the deficits of the preceding two years by a third, down to $455 million. Within a month, however, the new taxation deal with the provinces had placed an extra annual burden of about $200 million on the federal treasury.

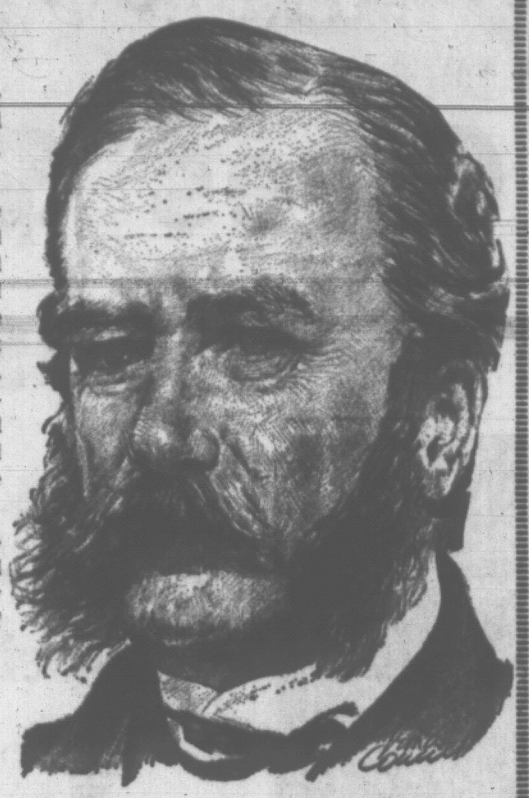

This cost will not appear immediately but must be absorbed during the next few years and it cannot be absorbed without a sharp rise in federal taxes.

Though firmly committed to such an increase, the government has not decided where, or in what form, it should be applied. In any event all Canadians must pay more taxes to a

THE FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION

John Hamilton Gray

The second John Hamilton Gray among the Canadian Fathers of Confederation had a career that started in Bermuda, moved to Nova Scotia, to New Brunswick, to Ottawa and finally to British Columbia.

He was born in 1814 in St. George, Bermuda, the son of the British consul to Virginia. He was educated at King's College, Windsor, N.S., where he graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in 1833. Later he moved to New Brunswick, where in 1837 he was called to the bar. A Conservative in politics, he represented Saint John in the provincial assembly from 1850 to 1867. He was speaker in his last two years. Then, with Confederation, he switched to the federal field. He stayed in the House of Commons until 1872, when he resigned to take a seat as judge of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

An unusually versatile man, Gray like his namesake at the Confederation talks was also a soldier and at one-time commanded the Queen's Rangers in New Brunswick. In addition he wrote a partial history of Confederation.

He died at Victoria, B.C., June 5, 1889.

Carpenters Start Mail Strike Vote

Ballotting among some 1,400 carpenters scattered throughout B.C. began Wednesday on the question of strike action that would strangle the construction industry.

Chief provincial conciliation officer Reg Clements said the result of the ballot—being taken by mail—should be known in two weeks.

Although union men employed by contractors belonging to Vancouver Builders' Exchange do not represent the entire industry, they form a substantial part of it.

In addition, they are employed not only in Vancouver and the lower mainland, but wherever their employers have contracts in B.C.

The union rejected by 96 per cent a conciliation board report that recommended an hourly wage increase of 32 cents and a welfare plan.

Carpenters had asked for 46 cents over two years, improved conditions, board and room away from home and a welfare plan paid for by employers.

Existing rate for journeymen is $3.14 an hour in Vancouver and $3 here.

Carpenters in the Okanagan and Kootenays are dealing with a conciliation officer, and those in the Victoria area have asked for a conciliation board to be set up, all based on the same demands.

WEST GERMANY'S NAVY AT 280 SHIPS BY 1970

BONN (AP)—Vice-Admiral Karl-Adolf Zenker, head of the West German navy, says he will have a fleet of 280 ships with a personnel of 43,000 men by 1970. Leading it will be six U.S.-designed guided missile destroyers. The task of West Germany's fleet will be to keep Soviet submarines bottled up in the Baltic, he said.

$30 Million Complex For CPR in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans for construction of a $30,000,000 hotel and building complex in downtown Montreal were announced today by Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Work on a 38-storey hotel, described as the core of the project, is to get under way immediately, said the announcement by N. R. Crump, CNR's chairman and president.

The hotel, to have 620 rooms, would be built and operated by Canadian Pacific Hotels Limited. A 20-storey office building beside the hotel would be built by another developer who was not identified.

The announcement said:

"In recognition of the French heritage in our national life and the fact that Montreal is the second largest French-speaking city in the world, the decor of the hotel will be French in theme throughout and staffed by French-speaking personnel."

The complex is expected to be completed by late 1966. The hotel would be open by the end of that year.

Location of the development is immediately east of Windsor Station. The property, owned by the CPR, fronts on Dominion Square.

Home for Mental Retards Now In Planning Stages

A 400-bed institution for the mentally retarded at Colquitz is on the drawing boards.

Health Minister Eric Martin, who announced the project during the last legislative session, said Monday planning is under way and he hopes construction will start next year.

He declined to estimate the cost of the project, but said it could be close to $6,500,000.

The project is being planned by a committee headed by deputy mental health minister Dr. A. E. Davidson.

A committee member said the cost will be nowhere near $6,500,000 at first, but could reach that figure within 10 years when a number of additions are made.

The institution will be built on 300 acres of government-owned land around former Colquitz mental hospital, now being used as a jail.

Meanwhile plans are progressing for a Victoria mental health centre to be built next door to Jubilee Hospital.

Planning should be finished by next January on the building, expected to cost close to $2,000,000.

LONDON—Britain's singing Beatles were called "a cheap, plastic, candy-floss substitute for culture" in the House of Lords Wednesday night.

A Labor peer, Lord Willis — playwright and television script-writer Ted Willis — said Beatle music was not culture but a cult and someone should have the courage to say so.

It fulfilled "some basic psychological function as primitive as the war dances of savage and backward people," he said.

It was an act of worship of phoney idols — an artificial breakthrough to excitement, a ritual pep pill, the peer said.

Lord Willis, who was speaking in a debate on how to use one's leisure, added: "We ought to see that the fault lies not with them but with us, because we are the people that left the vacuum that had to be filled."

'Growing' Douk Camp Alarms Kent Reeve

AGASSIZ (CP)—Reeve James Fraser of Kent municipality, alarmed by the growing numbers of people at the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor camp outside Mountain Prison here, has called a secret council meeting to discuss the matter.

He said Wednesday "I think the whole situation has to be cleaned up one way or another. I think we shall have to try to bring matters to a head. This thing can't go on indefinitely."

About 12 families have joined the encampment in the last month swelling the Doukhobor population to about 500. A number of women released from the prison also have joined the group.

Mr. Fraser said the Sons are breaking municipal camping, building and sanitary bylaws and are squatting on municipal property without authority.

He said the municipality laid no charges against them up to now because it was thought they might disperse. However, they appear to be digging in for a long stay.

The Sons moved to Agassiz from Vancouver last summer to be close to relatives in jail for various offences.

CUTS SWATH THROUGH HOMES

Five Killed as Plane Crashes in Subdivision

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Five persons died when an F-105 fighter plane plunged into a new housing development where housewives were hanging out laundry and children were playing.

Moments after takeoff Wednesday from nearby Nellis Air Force Base, the jet lost altitude, wavered and then knifed into the tract. The plane exploded, spewing flames over a wide area. Seven dwellings were destroyed.

The plane plummeted to earth at the far edge of the development, just short of a cleared area the pilot was fighting to reach.

The dead:

Lieut. Raynor L. Hebert, 26, pilot, of Port Arthur, Tex.; Betty Lou Le Dane, 31, and her daughter, Teresa, 3; two children of the Paul Lowry family, Derwent, 3, and Josephine, three months. Aside from Hebert, all were residents of the tract.

An unidentified truck driver gave this account:

"I was rounding the corner and could see the plane coming in nose up and tail down. It struck the first house with the tail aflame and skidded across the rooftops to other homes."

Authorities evacuated a 20-square-block area upon learning the plane carried six small practice bombs and 1,000 20-millimetre cannon rounds.

Hebert, an air force spokesman said, was on an air-to-air gunnery practise mission. The first hint of trouble was Hebert's report to the control tower that his landing gear would not retract, the spokesman said.

He was instructed to head for a desert area near Las Vegas, but replied that he was at only 1,000 feet and added, "I can't hold my altitude."

Then he was told to head for a clear area, just beyond the tract. He couldn't make it.

The pilot had no opportunity to jettison his fuel.

WARNS CONTRACTORS

Two weeks ago, in an interview, Brig.-Gen. Boyd Hubbard, Nellis commander, had warned contractors that building homes close to the air base was "courting disaster." The development is seven miles away but in the path of runways, those on the scene said. Its homes are in the $15,000 price range.

Vincent Rohde, another eyewitness, said that when the plane hit "it was like a bubble filled with water. It was just a big splash. I heard a woman scream. There was a tremendous heat wave. I'll never forget that scream."

COMEBACK aspirations were denied Wednesday by former British prime minister Harold Macmillan. Now 70, he resigned premiership last October after undergoing operation. Political comeback, he said, would be "absurd."

Mixed Reaction To Soviet Bids On Peace Dam

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston thinks the Russians, with their experience in long-distance power transmission, might well prove competitive in bidding to supply equipment for British Columbia's $800,000,000 Peace River power project.

The minister made the observation Wednesday night in commenting on reports from Moscow that Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and now touring Russia, had invited the Russians to bid. The Authority is in charge of construction of the giant Peace project which is now well under way.

The same Moscow reports quoted Charles B. Neapole, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada and a member of the touring Canadian group, as saying Russia is considering buying as much as 500,000 tons of wheat a year from Canada at a cost of about $40,000,000 a year.

Mr. Williston said: "If we are going to sell all this grain to the Russians we can't very well stick our snoots up at buying from them.

"They have done a great deal of long-distance power transmission and maybe they can be competitive on equipment for this."

From other interested quarters the reaction was mixed.

Reginald T. Rose, general manager of the Vancouver Board of Trade said: "We have set up the B.C. International Trade Fair to promote multilateral trade and I think it would just be a question of whether the Russians could provide the equipment."

ENOUGH COMPETITION

F. H. B. Charlesworth, president of the Heavy Construction Association of B.C. said Canadians now are getting enough competition from France and Germany without having to bid against the Russians.

Leo Sweeney, president of the B.C. division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association said he is against doing any business with Russia.

"I don't think we should deal with them at all," he said. "We will only be gypped in the end."

He said the contracts for the long-distance transmission lines which will be necessary to transmit Peace power to the populated lower coastal area should be given to Canadians who pay taxes in this country.

Vancouver grain men were enthusiastic about the prospects of another big grain deal with Russia. One said it was obvious that Russia wanted a permanent grain supply through Canada's Pacific seaboard because it would be cheaper than moving Soviet wheat from the Ukraine.

Others said that such a guaranteed market over a long period of time probably would result in a boost in Vancouver's grain elevator facilities which now are being used to capacity handling exports for Russia and China.

CHARGES 'INTERFERENCE'

Brazil Cuts Off Ties With Cuba

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters)—Cuban diplomats in Brazil today prepared to leave the country following Brazil's announcement Wednesday it had broken off relations with the Castro regime.

Brazil, whose interests in the Caribbean island will be handled by Chile, became the 16th South American republic to break off relations with Cuba.

A foreign office statement accused the government of Fidel Castro of using its relations with Brazil to "cover the propaganda activities of its agents."

For this Havana preferred "inadmissible contacts with minority groups" to regular diplomatic channels, the statement said.

"Such interference in internal affairs in Brazil can no longer be tolerated without grave risks to public order and without offending the national sentiments now reaffirmed by the victorious revolution."

The break had been expected since rightist military and political leaders ousted left-wing president Joao Goulart April 1. Goulart's government had warmed up to Cuba and other Communist countries.

The action left only four Latin American nations—Bolivia, Chile, Mexico and Uruguay — with diplomatic ties with Cuba.

Recognizing Red China

MR. PAUL MARTIN, OUR MINister of external affairs, has pushed a step farther in the gradual approach that Canada has been making toward a policy of recognizing Red China. Over the past few years Mr. Pearson has indicated that diplomatic recognition must come eventually — it was only a matter of time and expediency. Mr. Martin now sets early 1965 as the time when Canada may make a definite decision. Expediency may be more difficult to control.

Mr. Martin recognizes the need to avoid "adding to the difficulties of our friends" — meaning the United States — but he says that the "realities of the situation" may require modification of our position.

The fact is that these are not two considerations but one — for as far as Canada is concerned one of the biggest of the "realities" which we must face is the existence of our giant neighbor. That is not to say that we must necessarily fashion our policies to Washington's liking. But it would be foolish to injure so good a friend as the United States in order to accommodate so recalcitrant an acquaintance as Red China.

We share a continent with the United States, we share a defence system, we are at once the largest customer and the largest foreign supplier of goods to the United States; we share ideals, language, ideologies and tastes. Even if the United States were not ten times our size, these considerations would carry weight in our policy-making.

The realities of which Mr. Martin speaks must of course include the fact that Red China has about one quarter of the world's population; that it will play an increasingly important part in world trade, politics and armaments; that the United Nations cannot be fully representative while Peking has no spokesman; that our trade and that of other countries with Red China will grow.

There are other realities as well. There is the reality of the United States' commitments to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa and to the millions of Formosans who do not want Peking's domination; of the effects, both from the standpoint of morale and of strategy, on millions of Asians, if America abandons Chiang Kai-shek. There is the reality, for Canada, of the fact that the United States is trapped by these considerations with no early change in sight and no apparent disposition in Peking to ease the dilemma.

Britain long ago extended diplomatic recognition to Communist China. Several other Western countries have done likewise, the most notable being France's recent move. Recognition does not imply agreement with the social structure or the policies of the government concerned; it means that the government is conceded to be firmly established and governing and that the methods by which it achieved that state are taken as a fait accompli even though they may not be condoned.

The irony of the present situation, of course, lies in the fact that, with Russia and Red China at each other's throats, verbally if not physically, recognition of the latter country could be viewed without pleasure by Moscow. It would constitute a Western gesture of good will toward Russia's most active ideological enemy of the moment. Canadian recognition of Red China today apparently wouldn't please anybody except Red China, and even that country doesn't seem to care much. A year from now it could be different.

Buttle and Blacktop

SPEAKING AS THE MEMBER for that district, Mr. Dan Campbell, minister of municipal affairs, has displayed commendable concern over the possible desecration of Buttle Lake and part of Strathcona Park by mining interests in the park.

He sees danger of pollution if the company is allowed to use the lake for barge transport and he is opposed, properly, to the establishment of a mining community in the park at or near the mine location.

These are two hazards which are generally understood by people interested in preserving wilderness recreation areas — or parkland of any sort, for that matter. Mr. Campbell can count on their support in his fight to keep to a minimum the injury to scenic values in this area, if injury cannot be eliminated entirely.

But if there is unanimity among conservationists in this desire, there will probably be considerable disagreement over the manner in which the preservation is to be achieved.

Mr. Campbell suggests government action to require the mining interests to provide a paved public access road along the shore of Buttle Lake which, among other things, would furnish a quick route to and from the mine for the employees, who would not be permitted to establish a settlement within the park and would be encouraged to live at Campbell River.

There are objections to such a road. Apart from the costs to the company, which is a matter of concern to the operators and the government, such a project would not necessarily be the conventional park road conceived to preserve amenities for recreation-minded visitors. It could scar the landscape permanently.

Moreover, if it were company financed, it would presumably be of strictly limited use to the public because it would be used primarily for mining purposes.

More important, once a road of such a nature was constructed, it would be more difficult to discourage feeders leading into other parts of the park for commercial interests wishing to take out a few peeler logs or otherwise expand commercial development within an area set aside as a playground.

Perhaps the preferable scheme would be to insist on settlement outside the park—as is Mr. Campbell's desire — and strict supervision of water transport on the lake for men coming to and going from work. With adequate supervision the pollution threat could be removed.

At all events, Mr. Campbell would be well advised to discuss such matters with experts in the recreation department. He will find a large measure of public support for efforts to protect Buttle Lake and Strathcona and that support will be more solidly based if the parks experts produce a sound plan for long-term protection.

Time for a Break-Through

WITH THE CONSTANTLY growing population and increasing private occupation of local waterfront property the question of access to sea and lake beaches is becoming more critical.

It is commendable that Saanich, through its parks superintendent, is now making a study of the situation with a view to opening up the 86 gazetted access routes to fresh or salt water. Few of these are used or even known by the public; only nine are in normal use—a condition which has grown up as much through municipal apathy in developing them as through private concern to see that the access routes remain overgrown and unused.

It is time that the public was told what it owns and what rights it has in regard to waterfront access, and that it was given a chance to find and use the existing facilities. Let's push on with this long-neglected job.

What, No Olympic Marbles?

ACCORDING TO A REPORT from Los Angeles, bids will be made next year to include softball in both Olympic and Pan-American Games.

This is an interesting development scarcely conceived by the sponsors of those relatively Spartan contests which provided the classical origin of the international quadrennial sports — but perhaps no stranger than the introduction of some other events into the Olympic category.

Softball, as a derivative of baseball, may have a better claim than most. Baseball already has its "World Series," which semantically may seem to represent international championship in the sport, but, in fact, is a playoff between two strictly domestic United States leagues.

So if softball makes the grade, then the Olympic softball champions can throw out their chests and look down their noses at the purely American World Series winners in much the same way that victors of the world ice hockey championship can disdain the Stanley Cup winners.

But it won't do much for the status of the Olympics.

THE MAN SAYS NOTHING — By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Game of Lodge-Watching in Saigon

ON the eve of the Oregon primary, the large American community here in Saigon has developed a new spare-time sport. These are earnest people, with very little time to spare from their assigned task of helping to win the ugly and unending war here. But with few exceptions beyond Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge himself (ruled out for obvious reasons), everyone manages to get in a little Lodge-watching each day.

Alsop

Lodge-watching has grown in popularity at an almost feverish rate, ever since the sport's invention at the time of the New Hampshire primary. With the vote in Oregon imminent, the excitement is considerable; for Lodge is popular here, and most people would like to see another proof in Oregon that he is the popular choice of the Republican rank and file.

Will the Lodge vote be cut into in Oregon by Richard Nixon (who tried to do his own Lodge-watching, recently, and went away sadly baffled)? Will Sen. Barry Goldwater really run as shamefully badly in Oregon as the pollsters suggest?

What Will He Do?

With such unanswerable questions is the visitor from home almost incessantly bombarded. But the lame replies are hardly heard, for the quite simple reasons that the Lodge-watchers mainly want the answer to quite another sort of question.

There is really only one question that interests them. What will Ambassador Lodge do about the surge of Republican support for him; and more particularly, what will he do if the Oregon primary results show much the same pattern as the remarkable results in New Hampshire? The man who can answer this question with some color of assurance takes all the tricks and wins the game.

The assurance of the answerer can only be feigned, however. Few American politicians in history have kept their own council as well as Ambassador Lodge has been doing. Maybe it is easier for him because he is visibly absorbed in his vital job.

At any rate, on all but one subject he will talk both intelligently and acutely. He likes discussing the situation in Viet Nam in all its complex nuances. He is reading the second volume of the "Adams Papers" just now, and he also likes discussing the American revolution. But any attempt to discuss the signs of a popular uprising in his favor among the rank and file Republicans back home is merely met with a broad grin and an agile change of subject.

Playing Well

This long preface describing the difficulties of Lodge-watching has been needed because this reporter now proposes to try his hand as an amateur Lodge-watcher. The first point to note is that the ambassador is playing the game just as he ought to play it out here: President Johnson cannot complain that Lodge is politicking in a war zone.

Secondly, it is reasonable to conclude, Ambassador Lodge takes much the same view of the Republican Party's present situation as the other man who drives the more eager candidates half mad, namely Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania. In other words, Lodge does not think the Republican nomination will be worth having, this year, if you have to fight for it; and he further thinks that fighting for it will also make the nomination harder to get.

Third, therefore, he can be expected to resist the pressure to come home and behave like a convention candidate, even if he leads the poll once more in Oregon. Indeed, it is a very good Lodge-watching guess that Ambassador Lodge will not even leave his post here to attend the Republican convention.

Not So Eccentric

That is not so eccentric as it sounds, either. After all, President Johnson's opponent is not likely to have an easy job. But what could give the campaign a better or more stirring send-off than the newly chosen candidate flying home from a war zone to pick up the gage of political battle at home?

In sum, if this Lodge-watcher is correct (and God and the ambassador alone know about this), Lodge will not fight to gain the nomination for himself, but will take it gladly if it comes to him. He may well fight, however, for quite another reason—if he becomes convinced that the party is in real danger of nominating Senator Goldwater or any other candidate likely to take a southward-leaning, stand on civil rights.

An angry sentence about the monstrous folly of the Republicans repealing the Civil War, "when we fought to make men free," is the only observation of domestic political significance that Lodge has let drop in these last weeks.

Such, then, is this Lodge-watcher's attempt to make a score in the American's new game in Viet Nam. If political buffs find the attempt interesting and a bit surprising, their attention is once again called to the game's peculiar rules.

FIGHTING A PROTECTED ENEMY — By DAVID HOLDEN

Borneo Echoes of MacArthur's Complaint

IN EVERY British officers' mess in Borneo now, the ghost of the late General Douglas MacArthur may be heard, booming from behind the regimental ties and pink gins his old Korean call to cross the Yalu river.

Attack is the best form of defence, and all that; and a generation of fighting defensive or half-hearted actions to cover political retreats, from Palestine and Cyprus to Suez and Aden, has not sweetened the British military outlook. Now, with yet another defensive battle to conduct in Borneo a certain soldierly exasperation is understandable.

The Yalu of Borneo, which the intemperate ones would like to cross, is the Indonesian frontier. From the sanctuary it provides, President Sukarno has openly dispatched his so-called volunteers for the last nine months on errands of intimidation and subversion in Malaysian territory.

They have not so far achieved wide success, and the British are satisfied they have given a lot of them "a bloody nose." Since last September, when the Borneo territories of Sabah and Sarawak became part of the independent Federation of Malaysia, and Sukarno announced his policy of konfrontasi with which to "crush" this allegedly neo-colonialist creature, the Indonesians have suffered over three hundred killed or captured in Borneo and an unknown number of wounded.

On the Malaysian side about a hundred men have been killed or wounded, and roughly half of them were British or Gurkha troops. These figures are a drop in the bucket compared to Korea, or even the war in Viet Nam, but they are a lot higher than those resulting from the better-publicized British skirmishes in Arabia nowadays; and without a change in Indonesian policy they are likely to grow.

Beyond Tiddlywinks

Even if we accept the casualties as small, however, the battle—for the defenders—has already passed beyond mere military tiddlywinks.

The regional geography poses vast and costly logistical problems, to begin with. From the British base at Singapore to Tawau in northeastern Sabah is as near as maybe 1,000 miles, an eighth of the distance between Singapore and London, and over five hours' flying time in a standard RAF Hastings transport.

The Borneo frontier itself is 1,000 miles long and both the terrain and the climate are brutal. On the coastal plains there are rank and tangled swamps, in the mountainous interior there are forests tangled and rank, so thick that even Gurkha cannot cut through them at more than a mile a day once they leave the established tracks.

In Western Borneo, the frontier is only 30 miles from the Sarawak capital of Kuching, and within a bare half-dozen miles of the Sarawak coast, so that defence in depth against infiltration by land or sea becomes perilous, or even impossible.

Nor are the physical difficulties confined to Borneo. President Sukarno talks of Malaysia as if it "encircled" Indonesia, but the truth is that Indonesia encircles Malaysia in a crescent 3,000 miles long. It is just 30 miles across the Straits of Malacca from Sumatra to the Malayan mainland—three or four hours in a native fishing boat, an hour in a fast launch, a few minutes in an airplane—and all these have been used in recent months to land saboteurs or supplies in Malaya and Singapore.

Only Holding Actions

But worse than all this, for professional soldiers, is that awful knowledge that from end to end of Malaysia they can do no more than fight a holding action. As long as the Indonesians do not suffer a rush of blood to the head and turn their confrontation into full-scale war, they can add to all their geographical advantages the supreme military weapon of initiative.

From their unmolested bases in Indonesian territory, guerrillas can invade Malaysian Borneo almost at will and escape again to base when the pursuit gets too hot for them. And for every one who comes across, 100 British or Malaysian soldiers may be needed to round him up or chase him out.

In this game the attackers are bound to hold most of the cards; and with his talk of "ceasefire" and "political settlement" President Sukarno has even managed to deal himself one or two extra aces from another pack. The ceasefire supposedly negotiated in January by Mr. Robert Kennedy did not, as the United States Attorney-General proclaimed at the time, take the dispute out of the jungle. It merely threw an additional veil over the scruffy reality of Sukarno's attempts to subvert Malaysia's Borneo territories.

Until then, the Indonesians had been making mostly hit-and-run raids, but afterwards, using the ceasefire as their cover, they began trying to create pockets of guerrilla occupation inside Malaysia.

Happily, they have not so far been much more successful at that than at anything else, it seems; but their efforts have made a farce of the whole concept of ceasefire, and a fool of Mr. Kennedy. Since January 25, when Sukarno ostensibly ordered his men to observe the ceasefire, there have been over 50 recorded clashes with Indonesian armed groups in the Borneo territories of Malaysia, as well as 11 bomb explosions in Singapore and sundry other incidents elsewhere.

BEYOND ANALYSIS

I find it difficult to say anything about a great work of art: it exists, it talks with its own language, and its language is not words . . . I am certain that greatness lies in some elusive, indefinable magic as often achieved by breaking the accepted rules as by keeping them.

Charmingly Different

If one attended the recent production of the "Mikado" presented by the Victoria Operatic Society, expecting to see a performance of elaborate stage settings, spectacular costumes, to hear a big orchestra with woodwinds, brass drums and cymbals, all done in the traditional manner which we all have associated with the "Mikado" one would have been disappointed, surprised, and full of criticisms, for this production had none of the aforesaid qualities or properties.

Instead the audience was greeted with a charming setting suggesting a Japanese print—or a "Satsuma" tea set—very pleasing in its simplicity, lovely colors in the costumes of the chorus and the cushions upon which they sat. Though the costumes of the principals were in no way elaborate they carried out the general effect of the Japanese print and painting.

The conductor and pianos accompanying the performance were always there at the right moment and the voices and words of the performers could always be heard. In fact from the point of view of this member of the audience the whole performance was just right for the small auditorium. It was all very pleasing and charming.

Something should be said for those who take part in these amateur productions. They should be given every encouragement—they work so hard and a word of praise can do much to heal an aching heart for everyone knows what mistakes he makes, but if the listener can forget these sometimes obvious blunders and see the good points in a performance, they are helping to build what may turn out to be a lovely and artistic performer.

Mr. K. in Cairo

Mr. Khrushchev's visit to Cairo is a significant event. As usual, the Soviet leader is sounding off about the evils of colonialism.

Yet it is difficult to write off all the sound and fury as propaganda, at least so far as the Arab world is concerned. For centuries the area has been the pawn of empires.

Mr. K.'s fulminations against imperialism, colonialism and zionism take on special meaning in Cairo, echoing sharp notes of truth against the background of the pyramids.

But if the Arabs appear slow to match Soviet words to deeds, it is not because they are unconscious of these contradictions. It is rather that their own experiences are too real, and too recent. For just about everything Khrushchev cares to say about colonialism, imperialism and, to some extent, zionism, has a ring of truth in Cairo.

Yet for all Khrushchev's tub-thumping the actual record of his own country is worse. Soviet arms, he tells the Arabs, will always be available for freedom fighters seeking self-determination, "for the sacred struggle of national liberation."

Soviet tanks were certainly made available in the revolt in Hungary in 1956. But it wasn't to assist in the liberation struggle but to shoot down the freedom fighters. That sordid lesson is hardly overlooked in Cairo, though at the time the Arabs themselves were busy fighting off the Anglo-Franco-Israeli aggression.

Of course, with the continued bungling on the part of the West it is not surprising to find the Russians gaining influence in the Arab world.

Responsibility Abrogated

Saanich fire department has long been known for efficiency. During all absences of the retiring fire chief, the senior officers have capably run their department.

If merit is the criterion for promotion to Chief in the Saanich Fire Service, and our municipal council say it is, then the position should have been awarded to either of our two deputy chief officers, because they possess, at least, the same qualifications as the successful applicant.

We feel that essential meritorious attributes for promotion to a position of top responsibility are, years of efficient supervisory service, preferably within our own municipality, conscientiousness, complete knowledge of the job and ability to maintain cohesion, harmony and pride within the ranks, with a willingness to assume command.

It seems that the Saanich Council abrogated their responsibility to a firm of Industrial Consultants in Vancouver, who could not have had, in our opinion, enough knowledge of the intrinsic values necessary for securing the most suitable fire chief for Saanich.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA—The diplomatic team of Pearson and Martin is putting Canada back into its old place as a leader of the "middle powers" in the quest for world peace and international co-operation.

This is a matter of national pride, but any chauvinistic satisfaction we get out of it is really unimportant compared to humanity's gain from what these men have done and are doing to make peace more viable.

Take Prime Minister Pearson's most sensible and realistic proposal for strengthening the peacekeeping capabilities of the United Nations. The basic idea isn't new. But Pearson took it and developed it and brought it forward at a time that may be propitious for action.

So in a few weeks we are likely to have an international conference in Ottawa of at least half a dozen countries. The expectation is that they will agree to mesh, under a program for common equipment, training and command, segments of their forces which they have earmarked for UN peacekeeping duties.

* * *

Foreign Minister Paul Martin's major achievement so far was his success in rallying the support of enough other nations to put a UN peace force on Cyprus, while dissuading Turkey from exercising its right to intervene militarily on the island.

This was Martin the suave international wheeler-dealer at his best. His sales pitch in a day of long-distance phone calls to capitals stretching from Washington to Ankara not only made a UN presence on Cyprus possible, but may well have forestalled a war between Greece and Turkey that would have been disastrous for the NATO alliance.

In the boiler room business a few years back, when moose pasture was being sold as uranium claims, Mr. Martin might have made a fortune with his abilities of persuasion.

* * *

But even then he was committed to the diplomatic role. Although minister of national health and welfare in the St. Laurent government, he was Foreign Minister Pearson's right-hand man in international diplomacy, with a background stretching from League of Nations' days. It was Mr. Martin who engineered the expansion of the UN through admission of nearly a score of new members.

Perhaps the kindest thing to say about the Diefenbaker government's record in foreign relations and international diplomacy is nothing. But it is a fact that when the Pearson government took office our relations with the U.S. were at a 50-year low, our relations with Britain were cool, and our status in foreign capitals and international conclaves was greatly diminished from its splendor of Pearson's Suez days.

* * *

Pearson righted relations with Washington and London almost magically; at Hyannisport I felt this magic. And Martin went on to negotiate, in eyeball-to-eyeball bargaining with the Americans, a protocol that has made the Columbia Power Treaty an acceptable deal. The protocol creates a compromise both countries can live with, although the deal is not as good for Canada as it would have been if the Diefenbaker government had not conceded too much to the Americans.

There's a new spirit in the East Block, home of Canada's foreign service. The bad years are over, and now Canada is again exerting influence for positive good in world affairs.

'Improper' Approach By Grits Claimed

OTTAWA (CP) — An "improper" approach by the Liberal party seeking his candidacy in the 1962 federal election was claimed Wednesday by Conservative MP Gene Rheaume.

Mr. Rheaume resigned as a federal civil servant to run unsuccessfully in the Northwest Territories in 1962 against Mrs. Isobel Hardie. He defeated her in the 1963 election.

Mr. Rheaume said he was approached by Senator John Connolly, president of the National Liberal Federation, when he was in Ottawa in 1962 on business and after he had announced that he intended to resign to seek the Conservative nomination.

He said Senator Connolly later took him to the home of then Opposition Leader Pearson for a half-hour talk.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Rheaume said Senator Connolly suggested that the "Liberals would be in power after the election and there would be more money available for my campaign if I ran for the Liberals."

"It was suggested that my family would be looked after after I resigned from the civil service and that my nomination convention would be put on a platter."

Mr. Rheaume said he told Senator Connolly and Mr. Pearson that he had made a commitment. He was nominated in 1962 by the Conservatives by a margin of four votes.

Police Training May Be Included In School Course

The B.C. education department is considering a police training course for its Burnaby vocational school.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said today it would be the same course as the one operated by the Police Academy in Vancouver.

"There is a need for both," he said.

The vocational school course would be primarily for municipal forces across the province. Victoria and Saanich already are sending men to the Vancouver Academy.

NO DECISION

"No decision has been made yet," Mr. Peterson said. "It is just being considered."

He said he and Attorney-General met recently with Vancouver police commission for exploratory talks about the idea.

India Tries Squeeze Play To Get Arms Aid From U.S.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Pressure tactics are being used to bolster India's position in military aid negotiations under way in Washington.

Officials suddenly are talking of a possible Russian diplomatic offensive to compete with the United States for influence in India.

A leading newspaper warns that relations between the United States and India could be badly damaged if India doesn't get the military aid it wants.

The implication is that India would turn to the Soviet Union.

Since 1962 the Russians have supplied India with an estimated $140,000,000 worth of military equipment. The United States military aid bill in that period totals about $110,000,000.

The American equipment was free. The Soviet Union sold its equipment — usually for 10 per cent down, the balance in five years at 2½ or three per cent interest.

India is critically short of ready cash to buy arms. But there is a good chance that it would turn to Moscow, as it did earlier this month when it accepted a big Soviet loan for the Bokaro steel mill project after the U.S. Congress blocked American aid for the mill.

Visions of supersonic jets, advanced radar systems and air-to-air missiles are dancing before Indian eyes. There are indications that Prime Minister Nehru's government, concerned with the Pakistani and Chinese frontiers, intends to obtain these weapons regardless of the source.

There has been considerable disappointment over reports from Washington that U.S. negotiators are not providing this hardware without question.

The Times of India, often close to government thinking, said: "It now transpires that Western arms aid is not available at the speed and on the scale considered essential by New Delhi. . . . If all does not go well, relations between the United States and India will be bedevilled by another Bokaro."

Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan is scheduled to arrive in Washington Monday for final negotiations.

YOUR HEALTH — By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Quack Gadgets

The United States Government Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been cracking down on the manufacturers of some electric gadgets—machines by which diagnoses are supposed to be made. They are sold for as high as $875 to doctors and cult-practitioners of the several types. The machine with its dials and lights looks so impressive that the patients think their doctor must be very scientific. Actually, the experts have shown that these particular electric devices have no value, and are used only to impress the "sucker."

Alvarez

Another gadget that the U.S. has cracked down on is called a Master Violet Ray Device. It is a tube through which go sparks and violet rays. The rays are supposed to cure diseases, but have no value. Another gadget objected to is the "Zerret Applicator," a plastic dumbbell-like device which contains in a glass tube "Zerret water." This is supposed to produce the "Z-ray"—whatever that is—"a force unknown to science." This ray was supposed to expand the atoms of the body, thus curing all diseases. Chemists analyzed the water and found it has nothing in it; it was plain, ordinary tap water.

A gadget that is sold for $300 is called the Vrilium Tube, or Magic Spike. It is a pencil-shaped tube which can be pinned on to the clothes of the patient like a piece of costume jewelry. It is supposed to contain a powerful radioactive drug which can cure cancer, diabetes, leukemia, ulcers, and other diseases. Actually, the U.S. government chemists found that it contained a tiny amount of barium chloride worth about 1/2,000 of a cent.

* * *

I am glad to see that now the Food and Drug Administration people in Washington are emphasizing the important point that they are not attacking quacks because they have only a sixth grade grammar school education, or because they never studied any medicine, or because they were never registered to practice medicine. Unfortunately, many people have little sympathy for such arguments. Most of us are ready to believe that even an ignorant person can practice medicine successfully, or he can discover a cure for cancer. But most of us hate to be gypped, and we don't love a "con man" or a crook, and hence the government is pointing out that most quacks are primarily swindlers.

I remember so well a prominent lawyer, a friend of mine, who gave $5,000 to a well-known quack who guaranteed to cure his blindness. When in three weeks my friend saw he wasn't a bit better and quit the treatment, he—a lawyer—did not sue the quack for breach of contract, as he would have advised a client to do; no, when I asked him about this, he said, "Yes, I know I was a fool, but doctor, when you are going blind and a man guarantees that you will see again, you will gamble $5,000, on the chance that, even a well-known crook might "have something."

Lobelia 'Fixed' in New Colors

The annual lobelia has been a favorite blue edging of summer flower beds for more than 50 years, but it is only during the last 10 or so that other colors have been easily raised from seed.

Hilda

These newer colors are now "fixed" — that is, the seed will produce plants all alike in the individual color groups.

The dark blue lobellia in compact form is called Crystal Palace, and may have been introduced when the magnificent glass structure of that name in London, England, was first opened to the public in 1851. The leaves are usually a dark bronzy-green.

It is rather odd that many people shun other colors in lobelia, yet with another plant such as ageratum (also blue) will ask for mixed colors.

There is an interesting lilac-rose lobelia named Rosamond, just as compact and useful as Crystal Palace. It makes a stunning combination with large blue-purple petunias.

For a white edging of distinction there is White Lady lobelia, glistening white flowers in profusion on mounds of light green leaves. The ideal edging for a path bordered with pink and blue flowers.

In unlighted areas, have you thought how easily the path from the carport or garage could be seen at night if the edge were marked with white flowers?

Tall white nicotines could be used, but not to hang over the path, for the stems, leaves and blossoms are all incredibly sticky.

Imagine your town suit covered with these bits and pieces and you'll remember to enjoy the night fragrance of the enchanting flowers at a discreet distance from their sticky little fingers.

White Lady, however, is a lady as her name implies and will never become a nuisance. No need to remove faded flowers on these lobelias, for they rarely set seed outdoors here.

TEN BLOODY YEARS . . . . . RESULT IN DEATH TO OVER 200,000

Colombian Army Closing In on 'Bandoleros'

SANTA TERESA (AP) — Deep in the heart of Colombia, a country of majestic Andean peaks and fertile valleys, the tough, well-trained Colombian army is fighting banditry and subversion.

Rural violence has plagued Colombia more than 15 years. The nation's armed forces, backed by U.S. aid and commanded by the war minister, Maj.-Gen. Alberto Ruiz Novoa, have sworn to rid the country of the "bandoleros," the last remnants of Colombia's 10 bloody years of inter-party warfare. They say victory is in sight.

The sociology department of the national university has reported that 200,000 persons died before country-wide warfare ended officially with a political truce in 1958.

When the feuding factions made their peace, rural areas emerged as a power vacuum. The new national front regime governed only principal cities and towns, supported by the army and police. Heavily armed groups of bandoleros ruled the countryside.

In the wildest areas self-styled "independent republics," some of distinct Communistic flavor, sprang up, run by war chiefs. Bandit chieftains, terming themselves political protectors of the peasants, waged war against the authorities under flamboyant aliases like Black Blood and Sure Shot.

SELF-STYLED LEADER KIDNAPS POLICE CHIEF

BOGOTA (Reuters)—Bandit leader Antonio (Trueshot) Marin, self-styled leader of the "Marquetalia republic," has kidnapped the regional police chief only 24 hours after Colombian authorities announced troops would be sent to occupy his domain, it was learned Wednesday.

WEST TO EAST

Wife Lures German Back —And to Jail

BERLIN (AP) — An East German trapeze artist who crawled a high tension line to West Berlin 17 months ago was lured back by his wife and now is in a Communist prison, a close relative said today.

The wife has divorced him and married another man.

The relative said the circus performer, Horst Klein, went back to East Berlin last July after receiving letters from his wife, Sylvia, who said she could not go on living without him.

"As soon as Horst got back, he was arrested and last December he was sentenced to 30 months at hard labor," the relative, who asked not to be named, said in an interview.

"The worst thing is, Horst's wife obtained a divorce in February and last month she remarried."

Klein, who was 38, escaped to West Berlin in December, 1962, after he was forbidden to work in a circus because he was too outspokenly anti - Communist.

Klein climbed a pylon supporting power cables spanning the barbed wire barricades and the Teltow Canal.

LINE NOT USED

He did not know that the 110,000-volt line no longer was in use. Fearful of being electrocuted, he used his acrobatic agility to leap from the pylon to insulators and then from the insulators to the cable.

After easing himself onto the cable, Klein slid in a sitting position to the next pylon 70 yards away.

After moving about 30 yards toward the next pylon, he uncoiled a rope he had around his chest and flung it across the cables.

Klein tried to lower himself to the ground, but his hands, numbed by the seven - degree cold, failed to catch one end of the rope and he fell 30 feet.

He landed in the snow only a few feet from the border.

Suffering fractures of both arms, head and leg wounds, Klein was unconscious for about three hours. When he came too at about 5 a.m., he shouted for help and was rescued by the fire brigade.

His injuries had healed when he went back behind the Iron Curtain.

Underground Test Ban Proposed By Russia

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet Premier Khruschev proposed today that Japan and Russia join in calling on all nuclear nations to stop underground nuclear tests immediately.

The proposal was made in a letter delivered to Premier Hayato Ikeda by Soviet First Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan shortly after his arrival for a 14-day visit.

"Such a joint statement or simultaneous statement by our two nations will be beneficial to world peace and will strengthen our neighborly friendship," Khruschev wrote.

6 Hacked to Death

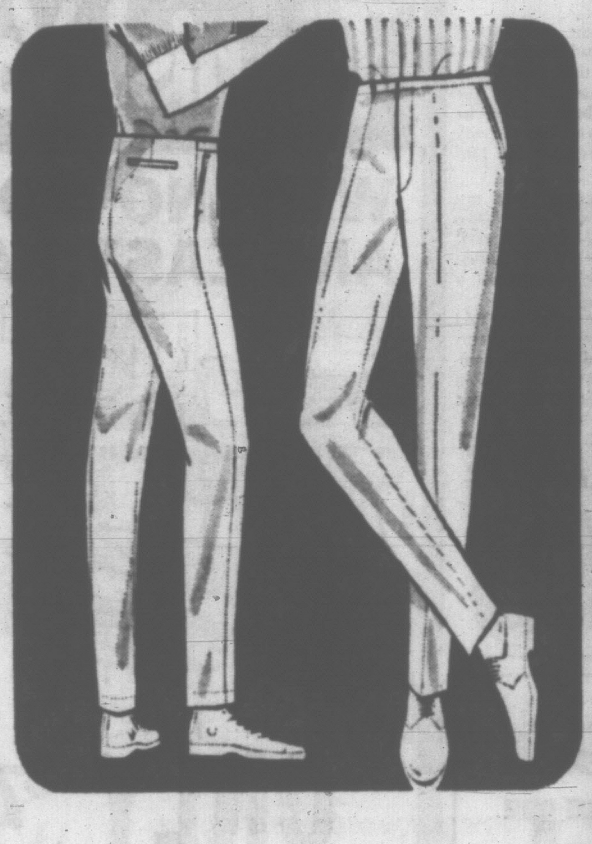

DAR ES SALAAM (AP)— Six members of an Arab family, including a small child, were hacked to death Monday by a gang using bush-knives and axes in the village of Jumbe on Zanzibar, Tanganyikan police reported here Wednesday. Three other members of the family were seriously injured, said the police.

International Trade Fair Brings World to Vancouver

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — The chatty Duke of Devonshire from England sipped morning sherry with shy Miss World 1963 from Jamaica.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes from B.C. fretted about a brief hail and rain fall outside while German technicians wrung their hands because they lost the plastic bubble for the world's smallest submarine.

Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark ambled around glad-handing every foreign representative he saw and smiling Japanese machine experts walked around saying "no speak English."

The rich smell of leather upholstery oozing from an elegant Rolls Royce sedan mixed strangely with the lingering barnyard aroma of the Agrodome.

And then the sun came out shining, speeches were made, curtains parted, crowds appeared—and B.C.'s third International Trade Fair extravaganza opened Wednesday afternoon for a 10-day run.

Hundreds of exhibits—from toys to huge cranes and a giant space rocket—are on display from 40 nations and fair officials hope the $10,000,000 show at the PNE grounds will be seen by 150,000 people.

But most of the interest, and certainly the emphasis, will be on some 12,000 buyers from various firms in Canada and abroad who will shop around supermarket-style for factory machinery and clothes, baubles and food.

Six buildings and considerable outdoor space were used to accommodate the displays and the federal government thoughtfully provided a customs office where importers-exporters could learn how much it would cost to trade across national boundaries.

No Victoria Tourist Booth

For a Victorian, there was one major disappointment.

Among the usual exhibits aimed at the consumer and industrial markets were booths trying to lure tourists and branch plants to Vancouver, Burnaby, New Westminster and other lower mainland centres.

Even the Montreal 1967 World's Fair organization had a large display intended to attract the interest of west coasters and the influential foreign visitors.

But neither the Victoria Visitors' Bureau nor the city's Industrial Development Research Commission rented so much as a square foot of space to put up even a seagull along exhibitors' row where the lower mainland municipalities were so much in evidence.

German efficiency was obvious in crisply designed and smartly made cars, sporting goods, heavier machinery and other items but it also provided the biggest snafu of the fair opening—inability of the much-publicized one-man submarine to submerge.

The loss of the plastic bubble top in transit kept the small machine floating in a huge water tank display because no spare had been brought, no doubt a sign of complete faith in that image of efficiency.

The Japanese exhibit—largest of the fair—provided some interesting sidelights.

For one thing, they appeared intent on changing their image—there was not a single camera in the whole lot of display cases. But there were many large industrial lathes and other electronically-operated factory machines, numerous cars and trucks—including some models now showing at the Jaycee Blue Ribbon fair in Memorial Arena.

Complete Version of Train

Among their wares were beautifully made model trains, including a complete version of the CPR's Canadian with seats built inside the coaches.

Just as in geography, the exhibit of the Republic of China, meaning the Nationalist regime of Formosa, was cheek-by-jowl with the Japanese but the two seemed worlds apart in approach.

In contrast to the business-suited eager salesman and bristling technology of the Japanese, the Chinese exhibit was totally oriental with slit-skirted women, handcrafted articles discreetly tucked behind scroll-work facades and overhung with Chinese lanterns.

But most inscrutable of all the exhibitors were the French who positively hid their offerings of the Tricolor, bottles of wine and perfume, the Tricolor, sports togs, the Tricolor, and a model of the Air France Concorde super-speed jet (which they neglected to mention is being built in l'Angleterre).

These exhibits were arranged along a narrow corridor-like space (reminiscent of the recently lost Casbah?) behind huge vertical panels that warded off any prying eyes.

The display put on by India was, as could be expected, presented in a sumptuous pavillion but, totally unexpected from the pastoral sub-continent, one of their main sales pitches was built around a gleaming, modern sewing machine.

The Bulgarian booth, only one set up by an Iron Curtain country, was rather humdrum visually in its dispay of trinkets and textiles—all very good but none very Balkan—but the sprightly, wailing of reed instruments in some background music was really wild.

Accent on Sports Articles

Numerous other exhibits attracted attention:

The usual British display of fine cars and also a new accent on sports and leisure articles; the Italian emphasis on delicate glassware; the Australian panorama of summery clothes, coral and canned goods; the U.S. Air Force's Thor-Agena rocket which somehow didn't seem to be mighty enough to master space despite its three-storey height; even Ontario tried to sell some of its newer manufactures with some interesting displays of machines and gadgets.

But one exhibit caused many a double-take.

Perhaps typically, the Spanish booth showed only some antique Iberian furniture, paintings and knick-knacks—haughtily disdaining, with a cultured twist of the lip to be sure, any suggestion that it was a commercial display.

Daily fashion shows and fireworks are on the program too.

However, the single most interesting item to be seen at the fair, for a recently launched boating enthusiast anyway, was an amazingly compact German outboard motor producing 55 horsepower in a smaller package than the standard 5 horsepower U.S.-made outboards.

Victorians who miss the province's big fair can have one consolation—there may be a greater variety and number of products in Vancouver than at the Jaycee Fair here, but there ain't nary a horse or cow to be seen over there.

LIFE CAN BE BLUE if you're only five, have had brush with streetcar, and police are asking questions you can't answer. Kevin Careys of Toronto was hit by streetcar but luckily escaped injury. But he suffered touch of stage fright and police had to get answers from one of his friends. (CP photo.)

Youngsters Thrown But Land in Sawdust

The second accident in two days happened Wednesday at the Jaycee fair. But it was not as serious as the first which sent two men to hospital.

Four children were flung from a car on a kiddie train but they suffered only minor bumps and bruises as they landed in four-inch deep sawdust.

Cause of the accident was a dislodged wedge in the track, which caused two cars to become uncoupled and tilt over.

Spilled were Lisa and Karen Der, seven and two-year-old daughters of Thomas Der, 2608 Capital Heights, and Wendy and Susy Chung, five and three-year-old daughters of Mrs. Myrtle Chung, 350 Island Highway.

Injured Tuesday when they fell from a 36-foot light tower toppled by gusting winds were Clarence Faa, 4051 Cedar Hill Cross Road, who suffered minor chest injuries, and Roy Empey, 254 Moss, who sustained a broken leg.

Mr. Faa has been released from hospital, and Mr. Empey is reported in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Snohomish Bandsmen To Play Here Friday

A 65-piece high school band from Snohomish, Wash., will play a symphonic concert Friday at 8 p.m. in Belmont Senior Secondary School auditorium.

Rated as one of the best in its state, the band appears here in exchange for a recent visit of Belmont bandsmen to Washington, and will march in Victoria Day parade Monday.

Musicians, who will be billeted with Belmont band members, will go sight-seeing Saturday and play a public concert in Willows Park, Beach Drive, at 8 p.m. Sunday.

First Power Payment Scheduled in October

Ray Williston, minister of lands, forests and water resources in B.C., discussed power projects in the province at a public meeting in Mount View High School Auditorium on Wednesday.

He told the 20-odd people at the meeting — organized by Saanich Social Credit constituency—that on October 1 the U.S. would make the first payment of $254 million to Canada for the use of water from the Columbia River.

The total payment from the States eventually would pay for the construction of two-and-a-half of the three dams proposed for the Columbia.

FINISHED IN 1973

These would be at Arrow Lake, Duncan and Mica, the latter to be finished in 1973, four to five years after the completion of the other two.

Each dam, he said, would have a dual purpose; to store water to prevent flooding and to produce power.

By the time the project was completed sufficient water, which would otherwise have flowed into the Fraser, would have been harnessed to alleviate the danger of flooding.

Efforts to cut down this flood risk had now been going on six years and already much of the danger was past, he said.

BEST POWER SOURCE

He said that in actual fact the Fraser was the province's best potential power source. But because of the fish it was impossible to dam it.

However, it would be possible to eliminate totally the possibility of flooding when the Peace River power project was completed.

A series of gates on the lakes and tributaries would make it possible to cut off the water flowing into the Fraser at several points, said Mr. Williston.

After the meeting he discussed the problems and hazards which would have to be overcome before the projects could be completed.

Jet Boom Showdown By Angry Citizens

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A three-month program of the Federal Aviation Agency, in which air force jets have bounced sound-breaking booms across the city, faced an uncertain future as the government planned a court move today to keep the tests alive.

A state district court issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday which sought to ban the program, blamed by anti-bombers for "destroying, damaging and weakening the structures of private homes and business properties."

Twice before, federal courts have tossed out suits to end the program, designed to test reactions of people and structures to the vibrating booms which the FAA said will be common with supersonic transports of the future.

U.S. Attorney B. Andrew Potter said an attempt probably would be made today to remove the suit from the state court to federal court. A hearing was set for May 19 on the temporary injunction.

State District Judge Boston Smith signed restraining orders issued against individuals involved in the program, including Najeeb Hallaby, FAA administrator; Lewis Bain, manager of the FAA centre here; Gen. Curtis Lemay, chief of staff of the air force, and nine unnamed pilots who fly the faster-than-sound jets.

George Miskovsky, lawyer representing the protesting citizens, called the action "a showdown on sonic booms." Some 2,800 damage claims have been filed since the program started Feb. 3.

Board Investigating 'Extreme Brutality'

COQUITLAM (CP) — Mrs. T. A. Ripley, a former candidate for the Coquitlam school board, charged Wednesday that an atmosphere of hatred and strapping of pupils has existed since the Sir Frederick Banting school opened in this suburban community last September.

Mrs. Ripley made her charge before the school board with the parents of nine children and charged extreme brutality in the administration of corporal punishment. She said she has a list of 50 children who have been strapped since the school opened, 15 of them girls.

REPORT ORDERED

The board ordered an immediate investigation. A special meeting was called for next Tuesday to consider the report from investigators. The board decided against suspending corporal punishment in the meantime.

Mrs. Ripley said some children had been strapped for merely turning their eyes sideways in class and added:

"Sadism prevails in the school. These are strong terms, but I feel it."

CAMPBELL JOINS FIGHT

Park Industry Under Test

By FRANK RUTTER

The controversial government policy to allow industry into B.C. parks is getting its first real test in Vancouver Island's Strathcona Park.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell bluntly joined the issue Tuesday when he expressed alarm that a mine in the heart of the park could spoil its recreational value.

Western Mines has an old crown grant which it intends to develop as an iron ore mine.

Mr. Campbell proposed that the company should be forced to build a proper access road through the park along the shore of Buttle Lake.

The road, he said, should be paved within three years, and be available for public use.

PROVIDES CAMPSITES

The company would also have to provide campsites and launching ramps beside the lake.

"Because the Western Mines development was the result of an original crown grant which the province must live with now, it would be tragic if we allowed this to result in the misuse of Buttle Lake for recreational purposes," Mr. Campbell said.

He said he was concerned about the threat of a large-scale community of miners being built up within the park.

Mr. Campbell also is alarmed that supplies for the mine will be carried by barge and might pollute the lake.

RECREATIONAL USE

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said, "whatever is done will have to be done in the best interests primarily of the recreational use of the area, because after all that is a park."

He declined to comment further until he receives any application from the company.

Western Mines will probably have to apply for a park use permit before it actually starts its project.

It was Mr. Kiernan's policy statement to the legislature last March that sparked a fierce controversy across the province about park desecration.

He said that the government intends to allow mining and logging in large wilderness parks where there is little or no public access.

Opposition MLAs and many recreational experts expressed immediate fears that this would lead to large-scale destruction of parkland.

Len Wright, vice-president of Wright Engineering Co., said his firm is now completing an evaluation of the mine project in Strathcona.

He said he presumes the government will share in the cost of a road, if that is what it wants.

"If the cost of a road were not a factor, that would be the way Western would want to go," he said.

MONEY LIMITED

However, there is a limit on the amount of money the firm could spend on access.

Mines department officials estimate the minimum cost of a 20-mile road to the Western claim at $1,000,000.

Mr. Campbell said a proper access road is the only answer.

"I would hope the people of the Campbell River area would urge the department of recreation to keep barge traffic off the lake," he said.

"The economy of campbell River would be infinitely better served if the recreational values of Buttle Lake would be maintained.

"The access to a large area of Strathcona Park could be achieved years before it would otherwise occur."

Absentee Ballots Confirm Liberal Triumph

REGINA (CP) — The Liberal party's victory in last month's Saskatchewan general election was confirmed Wednesday night when returning officers made a final count of ballots.

Liberal control of the 59-seat legislature was assured near midnight MST when the re-election of party supporter D. J. Steuart was confirmed in Prince Albert.

It brought to 30 the number of confirmed Liberal victories in the April 22 election. Early today, the CCF, in power for 20 years, had 19 seats confirmed and the election of one Progressive Conservative was assured.

There were no turnovers from election-night results in the 49 seats which were counted Wednesday.

Results April 22 gave the Liberals 33 seats, the CCF 25 and the Conservatives one.

REMAIN UNCOUNTED

Of the remaining nine seats still being counted, six are held by the CCF and three by Liberals. Final count in the five-member Saskatoon riding probably won't be ready for a few days.

The next move is up to Premier Woodrow Lloyd, who entered the first CCF cabinet in 1944 and took over the party leadership in 1961.

He said early today he wanted to see the official results before commenting.

Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher, 47, said the Liberal mandate "should be honored at the earliest opportunity."

When the legislature was dissolved in March for Mr. Lloyd's first election campaign as premier, the CCF held 34 seats compared with 21 by the Liberals. The new legislature will have four additional seats.

The final count confirmed the personal election victories of Mr. Lloyd in Biggar, Mr. Thatcher in Morse and Progressive Conservative Leader Martin Pederson in Arm River.

An estimated 25,000 absentee and declared ballots were counted Wednesday for the first time but the general trend favored the party which was ahead on the basis of election-night returns.

Six of eight seats decided by fewer than 100 votes election night remained unchanged. Counting continued in the other two.

The closest race was in Hanley between Attorney - General Robert Walker and Liberal Herb Pinder. The Liberal's six-vote lead election night over the attorney - general was stretched to 22 Wednesday before counting of absentee ballots ended for the night.

'Not Necessary To Prove Mishap'

VANCOUVER (CP)—An accident victim does not have to prove there's been an accident when applying for compensation, the royal commission into the British Columbia Workmen's Compensation Act was told on Wednesday.

H. F. Berry, assistant chief claims officer of the Workmen's Compensation Board, testified it is not always possible for a man to provide proof of an accident or incident resulting in disability.

ONE OF THE YOUNGEST 4-H Club members to take part in day-long activities Wednesday at Jaycee fair was 10-year-old Maureen Corbett and her four-month-old Jersey calf Darkie. Some 250 youngsters from 14 clubs participated in 4-H judging, educational displays and demonstrations.

IT WAS A BIG DAY at Jaycee fair Wednesday for 4-H clubber Kathy Smethurst whose yearling lamb, a Cheviot-Suffolk cross helped her place second in sheep showmanship. Kathy also took blue ribbons in junior hook weaving and 4-H baking competitions.

4-H Turns Fair Into Barnyard

The bawling of calves and bleating of sheep drowned out the raucous midway Wednesday as some 250 4-H clubbers turned Victoria Exhibition grounds into a barnyard.

The 4-H club members, who range in age from 10 to 21, brought with them more than 125 animals including 86 calves, 25 goats and 25 sheep from 14 clubs on Southern Vancouver Island.

"Our 4-H day is getting to be so big I think we should consider giving them two days instead of one next year," commented agriculture chairman George Robinson.

"They started bringing in their animals at 10 p.m. Tuesday and the barn was bulging at the seams by the following afternoon," added Jaycee Paul Howe.

The club members demonstrated their projects, showed their livestock and set up static educational displays concerning agriculture topics.

Top educational display was constructed by Saanich Ayrshire Club which explained how better forage could be grown for livestock.

Luxton Garden Club placed second, showing uses of fertilizer, and a wool display by Saanich Lamb Club was judged third.

Demonstration winners were North Saanich Goat Club, first; Saanich Home Arts Club, second, and Luxton Garden Club, third.

BEST BARN

Saanich Holstein Club had the best barn stall.

Most of the animals judged were yearlings raised by the youngsters from infancy.

"Many of the lambs exhibited were rejects from breeders and the youngsters raised them from bottle feedings," said 4-H leader Sid Smethurst.

The animals were judged on their depth, width and bone structure, shape of face and neck and grooming.

Aside from learning about the care and breeding of farm animals 4-H club members also receive leadership and public speaking training.

The four 'H's on their clover leaf insignia stand for Health, Happiness, Heart and Hand.

Recreation Vote Tuesday

PORT ALBERNI — Ratepayers were urged by city parks and recreation director Duncan Russell to turn out and vote Tuesday on the $175,000 money bylaw to finance improved recreation facilities.

Only 14 people turned out at a public meeting this week to hear Mr. Russell outline the bylaw.

Wednesday Mr. Russell went before the Chamber of Commerce urging them to support the recreation bylaw.

Plans include a swimming pool filtration plant, an automatic chlorinator for the pool, development of Tenth Avenue Park to provide two soccer pitches and four baseball diamonds, a field house and caretaker's quarters, and improvements at the arena including seating, a skater's lounge and a permanent floor.

He said it is too late to have swimming pool installations changed in time for this summer. But, if the bylaw passes, every effort will be made to have the park ready for the soccer season.

There are 5,700 youngsters in the district's school system now, and almost as many preschool children who will soon be needing recreation facilities.

PORT ALBERNI WORKERS REJECT REPORT

Office Staff Votes for Strike

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Office workers at the MacMillan, Ploedel and Powell River Company pulp and paper mill here voted Wednesday to take strike action against the company to enforce demands on wages and working conditions.

The office workers, members of Local 15 of the Office Employees International Union, took the strike vote after turning down the majority report of a conciliation board brought down April 13. The company had accepted the board recommendations for a pay increase of five per cent.

Bill Lowe of Vancouver, international vice-president of the union, said the five per cent increase would have been less than many employees would have received without the union.

He also charged the company tried to "buy off" the office workers with a letter distributed prior to the vote promising pay increase ranging from 11 to 20 per cent.

There was no immediate comment from company officials.

Union Names Delegate

Union representative on a fisheries conciliation board requested last week will be Ben Swankey, of Trade Union Research Bureau, United Fishermen's business agent Jack Nichol said Wednesday.

A management representative and chairman are expected to be appointed in about a week and the first meeting should be within 14 days.

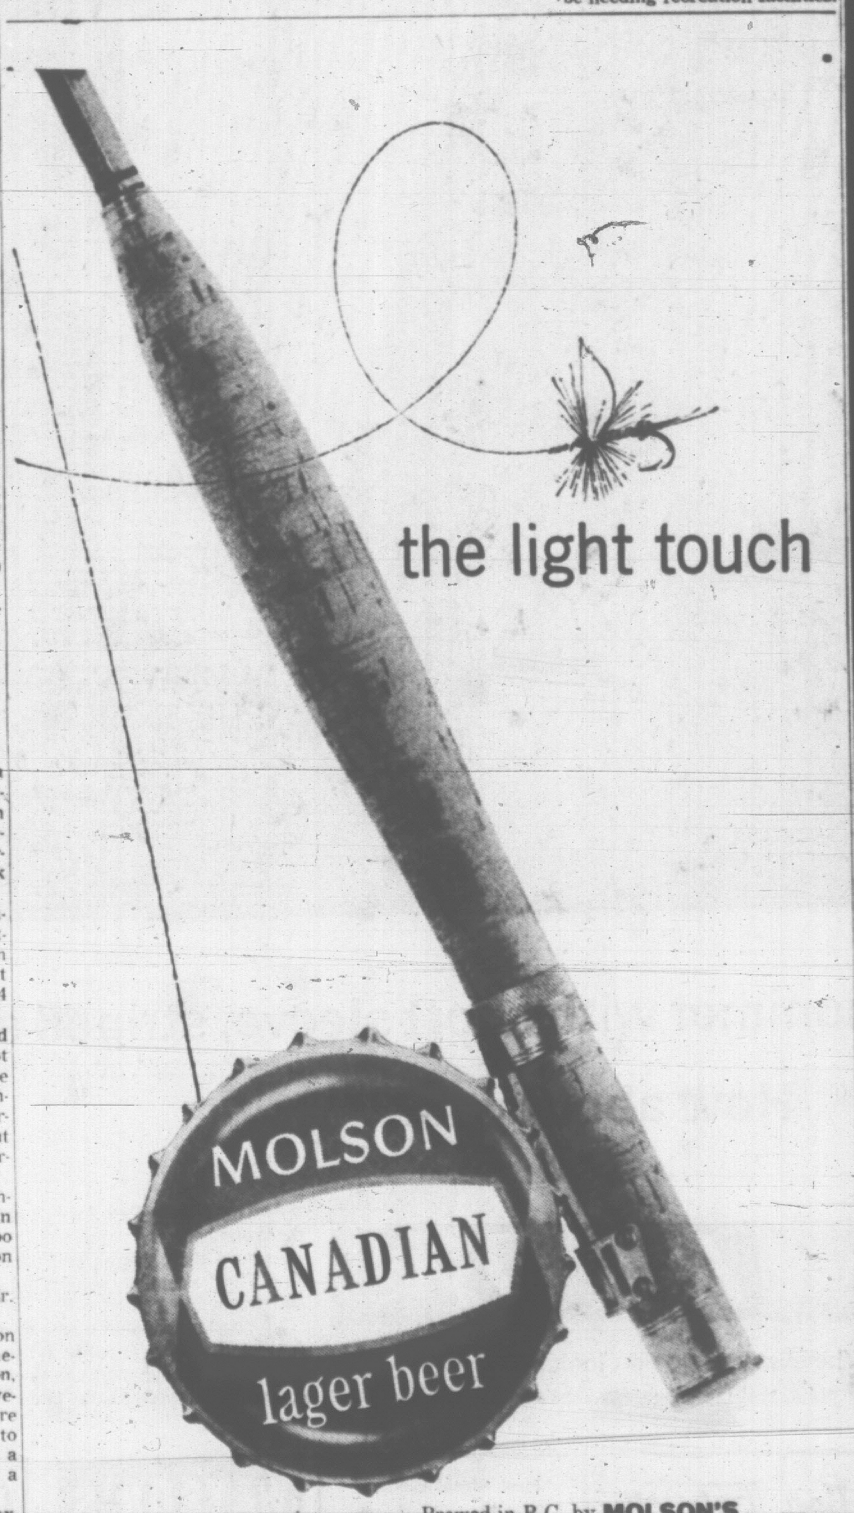

United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union and the coast fishing industry failed to come to agreement with help of conciliation officer George Carmichael over a 1964 agreement for shore workers and tendermen.

Mr. Nichol accused the industry of a lack of faith in bargaining, and of pinning too much hope on the conciliation officer.

"He's not a magician," Mr. Nichol commented.

B.C. Fisheries Association represents the industry in negotiations with the union, which seeks wage improvements for cannery and shore workers ranging from 10 to 20 cents an hour, plus $15 a month basic increase and $2 a ton for tendermen.

Within a few days it is expected that the other half of the industry—the fishermen who sell to processors—will have its first meeting of the season on fish prices.

GROUP URGES PROTECTION

'Too Much Power Over Individual'

OTTAWA (CP) — An eight-point program to arrest increasing threats to the freedom of individual Canadians was proposed today by the Canadian Citizenship Council.

The council, at its annual meeting, adopted the program after stating that it is disturbed over the position of individuals in today's society and the lack of protection for individual rights.

"The tremendous expansion of administrative authority giving vast power to the executive arm of government has resulted in an ever-increasing number of boards and agencies carrying with them authority over the person and property of the private citizen," it said.

The council's main recommendation was for the establishment by parliament of the office of ombudsman. This official's job would be to investigate complaints by individuals against arbitrary decisions by government officials and agencies and to recommend remedial action.

The other recommendations by the council:

1. Entrenchment of a bill of rights in the Canadian constitution.

2. Broadening of grounds of appeals to the courts.

3. Enactment of a law on procedures spelling out the rules of elementary protection for the rights of individual citizens.

4. Establishment of a council, similar to the British Council on Administrative Tribunals, to help guide boards and commissions in making fair decisions.

5. Institution of an administrative appeal court to hear appeals against decisions of administrative boards and commissions.

6. Provision of a better system of free legal aid to persons unable to finance court cases.

Drive for Ombudsman 'My Next Campaign'

OTTAWA (CP)—Hon. J. T. Thorson, retired president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, Wednesday threw his support behind a campaign to introduce the ombudsman system in Canada.

The outspoken Canadian jurist took his stand in an interview at the annual meeting of the Canadian Citizenship Council following a panel discussion on how the system works in other countries and the need for it in Canada.

Mr. Thorson, president-elect of the Citizenship Council for 1964-65, said he supports fully the introduction in Canada of ombudsmen—officers of parliament or the legislatures who investigate complaints by individuals against unfair administrative decisions and, when necessary, recommend remedial action.

"The ombudsman in the federal sphere would be the counterpart of the auditor-general of Canada," he said. "It would be his job to ensure that Canadians are protected from arbitrary action on the part of the state, just as the auditor-general ensures that federal monies are not wasted or spent wrongly."

Mr. Thorson said he considers the campaign to introduce ombudsmen in Canada the next challenge in his busy life as a public figure. The system has proved itself in Sweden and other countries and would be a major victory in safeguarding civil liberties if introduced in Canada.

BAR WILL OBJECT

He agreed with panelist Prof. Donald C. Rowat, professor of political science at Ottawa's Carleton University, that the Canadian judiciary and bar will raise objections to the campaign. However, he felt that with persuasion the judiciary and bar eventually would agree that the ombudsman system would make a major contribution in the preservation of civil liberties.

The panel which discussed the ombudsman system decided to present a recommendation to the council today urging introduction of the system in Canada.

Prof. Rowat said Canadians are living under an illusion that their rights are protected under the law. Powers of government administrators and government boards and agencies had reached a danger point and some system was required to protect the individual against unfair and arbitrary decisions.

INTEGRATION LEADER Gloria Richardson leaves bus under armed guard as she returns to tense Cambridge, Md., from Baltimore. She will face charges arising from street sit-down Monday night which is not allowed under the National Guard ban on demonstrations.

BAYONETS KEEP PEACE IN RACE-TORN COMMUNITY

(Times News Services)

CAMBRIDGE, Md., — National guard troops with bayonets at the ready continued to maintain uneasy peace in Cambridge, twice halting demonstrations and once standing firm between gatherings of Negroes and white persons.

At least a dozen bottles were thrown—smashing in the street—when about 150 Negroes and 300 white persons gathered on opposite sides of a cordon of 50 guardsmen on Race Street late Wednesday night.

"Let's get back," Negro leaders said. "You don't want to fight the tear gas." Both groups eventually drifted away.

Tear gas was used Monday night to break up a melee in this community of 12,600. Seven persons were injured and 13 arrests made.

Meanwhile, an autopsy report showed today that a Negro infant who died in the aftermath of the tear gas barrage was suffering from congenital heart disease. It said there were "no gross signs suggested of tear gas poisoning."

The autopsy on the body of two-month-old Rudolph Perry Jr. was conducted today in the Baltimore city morgue.

Cambridge integration leaders had charged that the infant died because of the tear gas used by national guardsmen.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Perry is about 100 yards from the spot where guardsmen lobbed the tea gas into a mob of about 200 Negroes.

NEW POLITICAL ERA

'Apaan Jhat' Loses Magic For British Guiana Leader

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

GEORGETOWN (AP)—In the old days, "apaan jhat" was a sort of open sesame for Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan of British Guiana.

A phrase roughly meaning "what's your race?" it was the rallying cry of darkly handsome Jagan as he wooed—and won—East Indian voters on his way to the top of the British colony's political heap. Jagan is an East Indian.

But that was in 1953. Today's British Guianese don't seem to be reacting any longer to the vacant magic of "apaan jhat."

Ten years ago when Jagan summoned sugar workers to a strike, the response was total. The call to another strike last January, however, drew results variously estimated at less than 50 per cent effective.

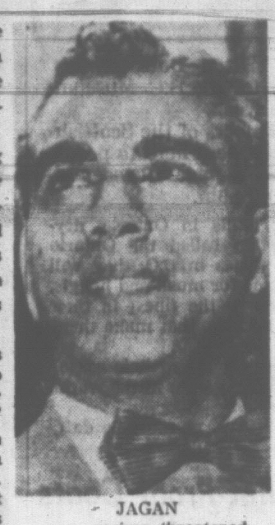

The partial effectiveness of this walkout is regarded as solid evidence that the controversial Marxist prime minister has reached a low point of popularity in his stormy political career. It also is being taken as an early sign of a probable shift of emphasis away from racial bias as a factor in local politics.

Then, as now, the sugar strike summons was purely political. But the grimmer objective this time is Jagan's political survival.

MAY BE TOPPLED

His leadership is threatened by a new formula that will determine Legislative Assembly representation in direct proportion to votes obtained in the forthcoming November elections.

Although his People's Progressive party won only 42.7 per cent of the 1961 election votes, it was given a clear majority of the 35 assembly seats under the old system. It was felt this did not fairly reflect the fact that Jagan's opposition won 57.3 per cent of the vote and should therefore have received a majority of the seats.

JAGAN
. . . regime threatened

The colonial office devised the new formula, hopeful it would neutralize Jagan and create politically stable conditions regarded as a requisite to future independence.

Anxious for the colony's freedom, but not at the price of losing leadership, Jagan's party is attempting to block the November election.

The three-month-long strike by the predominantly Indian Guyana Agricultural Workers Union is believed to be a part of the Progressive party's strategy to obstruct voter registration. It touched off a still unchecked wave of bombings, shootings and fights between East Indians and Negroes that has claimed at least 16 lives.

TRIES FOR CONTROL

The strike originally was aimed at grabbing control of the largest single labor faction in the colony—the sugar workers—away from the anti-Jagan Manpower Citizens Association.

The significant aspect of the labor front developments is Jagan's failure to muster massive support in a sector dominated by East Indians. This is regarded important, because of the racial—rather than political or ideological — nature of the British Guiana crisis.

Although Progressive party leadership and policy are considered unquestionably Marxist-oriented, the predominantly Indian party has stressed race—apaan jhat—in its membership relations. As a result, signs of fissures—small but significant—have sprouted within the ranks, where a tiny Moslem party and an anti-Communist Hindu faction have emerged.

The more affluent Indian classes have been estranged from Jagan for some time.

All this has given rise to tiny hopes that the present turmoil may be producing factors that ultimately may bring an end to racial strife.

But these are heavily outweighed by apprehension about abundant signs that Jagan's more zealous followers will not surrender without a show of such fierce resistance it could bring martial law and postponement of the November vote—their precise objective.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Provincial anthropologist Wilson Duff, always on the prowl for rare specimens for the B.C. Museum may have missed the boat this week.

Visiting the village were members of the Scottish International ruggah team. They were here to prove there is more to Scotland than Robbie Burns and liquid gold to ease the pain. Any pain.

They had demonstrated their skills in Ontario, dry-cleaning and sanforizing a collection called the Ontario Universities side 75-0. After two games in B.C. they will stop off in Quebec and then roar home for mush and haggis.

It is not as athletes alone, even as the finest in their field from Aberdeenshire to Howe of Fife, that make them attractive as collector's items.

It is that they are professionals (in the artistic sense) playing one of the most spine-crunching games in the world and literally paying for the privilege.

"Money? For playing a game? Aye, ye must be daft, mon."

Tartan Bloomers, Bullet-Proof Coats

This priceless revelation was unearthed Tuesday at a reception for the Scots in the Canadian Scottish mess room at the Bay Street rockpile. The Scots were not exactly difficult to flush out.

Unlike Canadians who favor long pants to ward off the chill rising from the Saanich moors, the real Scots are hot to trot in tartan bloomers and wool coats you couldn't put a bullet through.

There are other means of identification. They speak a foreign language cleverly disguised as English. It is rolling and soft. You may not always get the words but the music is delightful.

Inevitably when capitalistic North Americans gather, the talk turns to money.

How do you make out on tour?

"On this tour, nothing," said David Miller Durie Rollo, 29, prop, who is not called "Little Rollo" by casual aquaintances. He is six-foot, 200-pounder with craggy features and a nose that has moved around some as you might expect from a player capped 23 times.

"On long tours," he added, "we receive 12 shillings a day."

But surely, a man said, you get paid for loss of wages when you're on tour?

"Nay," replied Brian Carlyle Henderson, centre. "We take our holidays to fit the tour."

Belt 'Im and Then Buy 'Im a Round

Mr. Henderson, an insurance agent, shuffled his feet which are large.

"If money were to come into it," he said, "I would no play any more." He made money sound like hoof-and-mouth disease. To a North American "feetball player" money is the panacea for all diseases.

Henderson went on. "I've heard about the salaries your professional football players receive, but that's not for me. Once money gets into it, you're a pawn.

"We play for fun. We tear into each other and then after the match we are pleased to buy the other chap a drink. What better relationship?"

If his philosophy of playing the game for sheer exhilaration and camaraderie is the Scottish International's sole motivation, it may be because rugger is so vastly different from what capitalists refer to as football.

Those of you who were not around when "melees" or "mellays" were the main sporting attraction in medieval Britain may be surprised to learn that rugby football, also called "harpastum," was played as far back as 1297 A.D. However, the kings of the period, notably Edward I, put the kibosh on it because they felt the soldiers who were playing ruggah were too distracted by it to fight a decent war.

Playing? What Do You Call Fighting?

By the 18th century the game was going full bore and then some. Science often gave way to vigorous play. As historian Joseph Strutt noted: "When the exercise becomes exceedingly heated, the players kick each others' shins without the least ceremony and some are overthrown at the hazard of their limbs."

Other historians observed that "broken shins, broken heads, torn coats and lost hats are among the minor casualties. A Frenchman, watching a game at Derby exclaimed that if Englishmen called this playing it would be impossible to say what they would call fighting."

Watching them play B.C. All-Stars at Macdonald Park Wednesday, it was apparent that the camaraderie of which Mr. Henderson spoke so fondly did not necessarily apply on the field.

There were no fatal injuries but several near misses.

If you are injured, Mr. Henderson was asked, does the club pay for new limbs and other medical expenses?

"Nay," he said. "We pay."

If those aren't rare specimens in this day and age, my operator is a tsetse fly.

* * *

After them quickly, Mr. Duff. And don't forget this inscription on the plaque identifying the species: "They play the game for the game's sake." . . .

'WATCH IT, MR. REFEREE!'

In line of fire as British Columbia fullback Don Burgess puts boot to clearing kick, referee Dave Mackenzie puts on brakes and attempts to back out of way during first half of rugby game Wednesday night. Mackenzie successfully avoided trouble and generally had easy night with whistle as players avoided illegal tactics while Scotland was scoring 21-0 victory over B.C. All-Stars.

Speedy Scots Sensational— And Dull Too

Purists Appreciate Class But Fans Wanted It Open

Scotland 21, British Columbia 0

By DOUG PEDEN

There are two ways to look at a rugby game.

Perhaps the fact was never better demonstrated than at Macdonald Park Thursday night as the touring Scottish Rugby Union side squared off against the British Columbia All-Stars.

During the opening half, most of the crowd of more than 1,500 fans was slowly lulled into disbelief that this could be Scotland's finest as the teams waged a dull duel of kicks to the touchlines.

There were cries of "Come on, open it up!" coming from the packed grandstand as the Scots squeezed out a 3-0 lead in the first half and started the second session as if they wanted only to protect the margin.

But from the time three-quarter Iain Laughland took a pass from David Chisholm, "sold a dummy" and scooted 20 yards for a try eight minutes into the second half there was no doubt of the strength and ability of the tourists.

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN
Sports Editor

The B.C. defensive dam was broken and the fleet Scottish backs poured through the holes with some brilliant running and fast ball-handling to finish with three goals and two trys for a 21-0 triumph.

For the rugby purists, there was apparently excitement all the way. Men who know rugby were ecstatic about tactics and thrilled by the skill of the visiting backs.

Visitors' Running Game Bothered

British Columbia started with the tactics most likely to produce an upset win and made it dangerous for the the Scots to persist with a running game. The lads from thistleland produced the most effective counter moves—mainly short kicks to the touchlines or bouncing kicks through the opposing backs.

Whatever the purists claim, it added up to unspectacular action and many thought the tourists might have played more for the spectators and attempted to crack through the B.C. defences with their all-international backfield.

But the Scots had come to win.

They were willing to play it by the book until the stage was set for their big punches rather than gamble for show. And when they got running room they proved Scotland's status as one of the world's rugby powers.

Conceding superiority to their rivals in the scrum, where the great hooker, Norman Bruce, was giving Scotland the ball about 80 per cent of the time, the Canadian backs lined up in a shallow defensive formation during the opening half.

Henderson Came Up With a Dandy

They were able to move up quickly when Bruce hooked the ball and smother most of Scotland's running attacks before they were well started. Often the Scots had the alternative of trying to run and risking a B.C. breakthrough, or relieving with kicks. They usually elected to take the safer kicking route.

After the intermission, either through a tactical error or because they were tiring, the Canadians were dropping back a few steps and that was all the visitors needed. They had the running room to put their speed and fine passing to work.

Laughland's try and a conversion by fullback Ken Scotland made it 8-0. At 16 minutes the count was 13-0 after forward James Telfer scooped the ball out of a scrum to start a brilliant passing bout. It went by way of scrum-half Alex Hastie and Chisholm and ended in a try by George Stevenson.

Ken Scotland also converted that try but he missed on an attempt after a try by Chisholm. Brian Henderson, shaking off two would-be tacklers at the end of a fine backfield movement, went over for the final Scottish try with 17 minutes remaining and Scotland booted his third conversion of the match.

Although the eyes were mainly on the Scots, the Canadians also earned a good share of the applause with their determined display and they had their moments of near-glory.

Seldom able to give the ball cleanly to their backs, the B.C. forwards turned in some strong play in the loose and in lineouts. And, like their backs, they threw dozens of devastating tackles until tiring noticeably in the closing stages.

B.C.'s nearest misses came with about 10 minutes remaining when the forwards drove within two yards of the Scottish line, and a minute later, when scrum-half Keith Reckling almost hit pay dirt on a quick dash.

While most of the Canadians turned in excellent team efforts, perhaps the best work was done by forwards Tom Christie and Dick Hayes, and fullback Don Burgess.

Most effective of the Scots was probably Telfer, a 23-year-old chemist student. The 198-pound forward turned up everywhere and did everything so well one has to expect he is due to add a stack to his current collection of five international caps.

Scotland's manager, C. W. Drummond, expressing satisfaction in the way his team played, explained the first-half kicking tactics.

"Our opposition was lying well up and we couldn't get the ball out. We didn't have much choice," he said.

"B.C. is a strong side. A couple of your forwards were very effective and your fullback played well."

THIS ONE HE WINS!

Johnson Chills Leading Giants

By Associated Press

Ken Johnson has given everyone the no-hit willies again, including Willie Mays.

Johnson, Houston Colts' hard-luck right hander who hadn't won in a month despite pitching a no-hitter, wound up the winner Wednesday as the Colts made the most of two bad-hop hits in a 2-1 victory over the National League-leading San Francisco Giants.

For six innings, Johnson was even better than he was April 23 when he set Cincinnati Reds down without a hit but lost 1-0 on two errors in the ninth inning. This time, Johnson was leading 1-0 and working on a perfect game.

So perfect, fouling out and striking out. Then, in the seventh, Jesus Alou smacked Johnson's first pitch for a double and Matty Alou followed with a single, bringing up Mays.

HERBEL THROWS WILD

Mays, however, couldn't get it out of the infield this time either, hitting a grounder that trapped Jesus Alou in a rundown. Johnson then got out of the jam and got a couple of breaks in the bottom of the inning.

With two out, a shot by Bob Aspromonte richocheted past first baseman Orlando Cepeda for a double and Rusty Staub sent him to third by lining a drive that skipped past shortstop Jose Pagan. Ron Herbel came on in relief of Bob Hendley at this point and proceeded to wildpitch the decisive run across.

Johnson left in the eighth, but eventually wound up with his first victory since April 18.

And Mays, faced with his first hitless performance since the third game of the season, eventually wound up with his only hit in four trips, singling off Hal Woodeshick in the ninth. That extended his hitting streak to 20 games, although his batting average dropped 10 points to .468.

Only one other National League game was played, New York Mets defeating Milwaukee Braves 5-2.

In American League action, Chicago White Sox whipped Minnesota Twins 5-1, Cleveland Indians defeated Boston Red Sox 3-0 in a game held to six innings by rain and in a twi-nighter Los Angeles Angels won the opener from Kansas City 9-0 before the Athletics took the nightcap 2-0.

Cleveland's Glover AHL's Most Valuable

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fred Glover, who led Cleveland Barons to the Calder Cup championship as coach and leading scorer, today was named the American Hockey League's most valuable player.

In winning his third MVP award in five years, Glover had competition from veteran goalie Gump Worsley of Quebec Aces who polled 22 votes to Glover's 27 from the league's press and radio representatives.

The only other player to win the award three times was Johnny Bower, who won it three successive years starting in 1956 while guarding the nets for the Barons.

Worsley's teammate Doug Harvey was third in the balloting with 12 points. Others who received votes were Roger Crozier, Pittsburgh Hornets, 6; Mike Nykoluk, Hershey Bears, 5; Ed Giacomin, Providence, and Gerry Cheeves, Rochester Americans, 3; Art Stratton Pittsburgh, Ted Harris, Cleveland and Bian Kilrea, Springfield Indians, 1.

Trials Disappoint British Yachtsmen

GOSPORT, England (AP)—After three disappointing races, trials to determine a challenger for the America's Cup have been interrupted to make adjustments on one of Britain's two new 12-metre yachts.

The crew of Kurrewa V hopes to complete the changes desired by owner Owen Aisher in time to resume trials Friday against Sovereign, the other possible British challenger, and Sceptre, the unsuccessful 1958 cup challenger being used as a pacemaker.

So far Sovereign has won two trial races and Kurrewa V one—all over short courses. Both have found it difficult to beat Sceptre, which lost decisively to the United States defender Columbia.

Kurrewa V was launched on the Clyde only three weeks ago and was sent to the British south coast by road. She has not been in the water often.

British yachting experts, hopeful that one of the new craft will be the kind of challenger Britain has been seeking for 113 unsuccessful years, have been disappointed with results so far.

Britain has been trying to win the trophy since 1851.

MOLSON EXPECTED TO END . . .

. . . MUSICAL CHAIRS GAME FRIDAY

'New Look' Rocket Looms in Habs' Plans

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal Canadiens, who surprised many by finishing first in the National Hockey League this season, may cause a few more raised eyebrows Friday when they unscramble the current riddle of front office musical chairs.

The executive shakeup at the forum has been rumored for some time. It was more or less confirmed last Friday when outspoken Ken Reardon announced his resignation as vice-president.

"There won't be any more announcements during the weekend," said a club spokesman.

However, owner and president Sen. Hartland deM. Molson called a press conference for Friday at which time further front office moves would be disclosed.

"Did he fall or was he pushed?" seemed to be the most repeated question about the Reardon move.

Local observers among the two language press, radio and TV corps are generally agreed on the names involved in Sen. Molson's "operation new look."

General Manager Frank Selke will step down at the age of 71. His 34-year-old son, Frank, Jr., will be elevated from his publicity director's post to a position with more responsibility.

Farm director Sam Pollock, 39, is the chief candidate for the elder Selke's chair as managing director.

The one position that seems to be in a state of limbo at the moment is coach. The eminently successful Toe Blake (six championships and five Stanley Cups in nine years) is a question mark. Final decision on the coaching situation may be delayed until after a libel and slander suit brought by former referee Eddie Powers against Blake is settled late this month.

The lone name that may come as a surprise to hockey followers is Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the greatest player in the colorful history of the club, but seldom thought of as a candidate for the Forum front office. The speculation is that the Rocket will wind up either as an assistant to the general manager, or perhaps as vice-president in charge of public relations. He declined to comment today.

Dave Molson, 35-year-old nephew of the senator, only a fringe member of the organization since the Molsons purchased the club in 1956, is expected to finally assume an active role as overall boss of the entire operation.

With the exception of the Rocket, the other names involved aren't likely to cause more than a ripple of curiosity among "les partisans fervents." But Richard is still a magic name, not only with local fans, but everywhere he goes in Canada as goodwill ambassador for Canadiens. No active player among the Canadiens is any more in demand than the 42-year-old Rocket.

In the three and half years since his retirement the Rocket has changed. The two words used most frequently to describe him are mellow and mature. He mixes with facility wherever he goes; laughs easily and never tires of giving his autograph. More often than not he'll sign his name twice without being asked.

For years the Rocket resented the Molsons, not just because he worked for a rival brewery, but because Molsons gave young Jean Beliveau a fat, long-term public relations job. The mellowed and matured Rocket no longer harbors this attitude, which is another reason why his appointment is expected to be a popular one.

KING-SIZED TROPHY

Gigantic and sparkling new trophy will be presented for first time Saturday night at Western Speedway. Strawberry Cup, presented by Saanich's Geoff Vantreight, stands five feet, three inches and weighs 75 pounds. That makes it one of the largest trophies in existence on Pacific Northwest. It will go to winner of Canadian-American Modified Racing Association feature. Significantly, Vantreight car driven by Al Smith is leading contender in first CAMRA meet of season. Admiring trophy is Ben Bradshaw, representative of firm that built it.

Racial Demonstrators Snarl Davis Cup Match

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Demonstrators protesting South Africa's apartheid (separation of the races) policy stormed a tennis court here Wednesday and disrupted a Davis Cup match between Norway and South Africa.

Hundreds of young men and women invaded the centre court at Masterud and threw themselves down on the grass while a singles match between Cliff Drysdale of South Africa and Gunnar Sjoewell of Norway was in progress.

As fast as the 30 policemen on duty hauled them away, other demonstrators would throw themselves onto the surface of the court, and police reinforcements were summoned. The court finally was cleared with the help of additional policemen, some on horseback.

GAME ABANDONED

But with the demonstrators lined up nearby, officials decided the match could not go on and the game between Drysdale and Sjoewall was abandoned for the day.

The second match was resumed later at a secret location and Keith Diepraam defeated Dag Jagge, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, to give South Africa a 1-0 lead in the Davis Cup series.

When asked if his game had been disrupted by the earlier demonstrations, young Diepraam said good-naturedly that in his opinion the private court was superior to the centre court at Masterud.

Jan Staubo, president of the Norwegian Tennis Association said the second singles match between Drysdale and Sjoewall would be played today.

SPIES ACTIVE

He said if it proved impossible to continue the tournament at Masterud, then the match would be played elsewhere.

However, with spies for the demonstrators having probably tracked down the site of Wednesday's match, the organizers probably have another court in mind.

Staubo blamed the local police for permitting rowdies to get the upper hand in the demonstrations at Masterud.

INDEPENDENT SOFTBALL

Churchills downed ANAF Vets 7-3, and Kings beat Westholmes 6-4 in Independent Softball League action Wednesday.

...SOME CAKE, CANDLES, FRIENDS AND MEMORIES

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Louis was 50 years old Wednesday, a day for cake, candles, friends and memories.

Few men "celebrate" No. 50, but Louis did at a party on the 50th floor of a midtown hotel. If he was concerned about his lost youth, he kept it to himself.

The Brown Bomber of old said he weighed about 235 pounds. That would be about 22 more than he weighed the night he had his last fight—with Rocky Marciano in 1951.

Victoria and Saanich split a pair of minor lacrosse games Wednesday, Saanich taking the midget division tussle 6-4, and Victoria coming back for a 3-1 win in the flyweight division.

One change has been announced in this week's practice schedule. Bantams are to meet at 6 p.m. Friday at Stevenson Park to select a team to play a Saturday night game in Nanaimo.

Firemen Advance To Cup Semifinals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Firefighters defeated North Shore United 2-1 before some 300 fans Wednesday night to move into the semifinals of the Province Cup competition for the provincial soccer championship.

Firefighters will now meet New Westminster Royals in one semifinal at a date still to be decided.

Firefighters took command in the second half and grabbed the lead at the 15-minute mark when left winger Art Bennett scored on a long pass from halfback Greg Arnett. Nine minutes later the Firemen went ahead 2-0 on a penalty goal by Arnett.

North Shore got one goal back at the 35-minute of the second half when halfback Colin Atkinson headed in a perfect pass from inside forward John Woods. Despite pressing hard for the remainder of the game the North Vancouver team could not get the equalizer.

ISLANDERS EYE LIONS' CAMP

Vancouver Island football coaches, including several from Victoria, will be among the 200-plus officials in attendance when B.C. Lions sponsor their eighth annual coaches' clinic on May 30.

Lions also had other news for football fans Wednesday. The Western Conference champions announced the signing of holdover Mack Burton—and new import Don Davis of Texas. Both are offensive ends.

Davis played briefly with Dallas Cowboys of the National League.

TORONTO (CP)—A second soccer player has been blocked by an English Football Association club from competing this season in the eastern Canadian Professional Soccer League it was reported Wednesday.

Ken Bracewell, who played with Toronto Italia last season and returned to England to play for Lincoln City, was barred by the latter club from participating in Canadian soccer.

Toronto City also has its problems — Norman Sykes has been stopped from playing by England's Bristol Rovers.

Famed Bandits Taboo

'Drop Chinese, Please' Plea From West Point

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—World political tensions have claimed another victim—the famed Chinese Bandits of the Army football team.

From now on, just call them Bandits.

That's the official word from the United States Military Academy where a spokesman, who preferred anonymity, explained:

"The term 'Chinese Bandits' was given to our football defensive unit. It was intended to mean a tough bunch of guys. Also it gave the second team some dignity.

"But it had an undesirable international connotation, and we've had some criticism ever since it started. You see there are different kinds of mean guys—good, mean guys and mean, mean guys.

BEST SKIP IT

"There was the idea that the mean, mean guys were Chinese Communists. Rather than create an international incident, we decided it best to skip it." Officially, it was denied that political pressures dictated the dropping of the Oriental tag, which will mean also the end of Chinese laundry chants and coolie hats at West Point games.

"We just decided that the word 'bandits' was simpler," said coach Paul Dietzel, who said he got the inspiration for the Chinese Bandits out of a comic strip (Terry and the Pirates) 15 years ago.

NEVER TOOK

This is not the first time nicknames of athletic teams have been changed for political, or other, reasons.

Right after the Second World War, when the Russians and Americans were in a titanic struggle for world supremacy, the Cincinnati Reds baseball team decided it best to change the name to Redlegs. Later, Premier Khrushchev got a bit more friendly, and the name was changed back. The "Redlegs" tag never took anyhow.

Somebody up in Boston took a dislike to Indians and changed Boston Braves to Boston Bees. Fans refused to accept it.

Alouettes Sign Ex-UBC Quarter

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes have signed Barry Carkner, 23, a quarterback who played with the University of British Columbia, and Warren Rabb, who played with the Eastern Football Conference club last season.

In his three years at UBC, Cariner was named twice to the league all-star teams.

Liverpool Tied By U.S. Squad

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Liverpool's English League soccer champions were tied 1-1 by a team of St. Louis amateurs Wednesday night.

The Catholic Youth Council Stars of St. Louis scored first, with only six minutes remaining, when Liverpool's Philip Ferns, a fullback, nudged the ball into his own net.

Liverpool, pressing constantly got the tying goal with just four minutes to go. It was a quick opening play in which Alfred Arrowsmith, inside right, passed to Bill Stevenson, a halfback.

A total of 5,700 fans watched the tense duel in which the British team, winner in 33 of 35 international matches and tied only once before, showed superior ball handling and finesse, but couldn't fool the tight St. Louis defence.

Initial Tests Prove Value Of Protection

TORONTO (CP) — Mouth-guards for football and hockey have reduced dental injury in the two sports, the Ontario Dental Association was told this week.

Dr. A. W. S. Wood of Toronto, who helped develop the hockey guard, said mouth-guards are worn by most of the Toronto Township League's 3,600 players.

"I had two dental injuries from hockey in my office this year," he said. "I used to have as many as 70."

Dr. Wood said Charles Patterson of nearby Cooksville has formed a company to manufacture the equipment worn by the Canadian Olympic team this year. It has since been ordered by the Russians.

'PHONEY NUMBERS'

Finley Fencing With Joe Again

CHICAGO (AP)—Charles O. Finley, owner of Kanas City Athletics, is fencing again with president Joe Cronin of the American League.

Finley, who recently complained about Yankee Stadium's short right-field foul line, said Friday he asked Cronin to check out field measurements in all league parks.

Finley said he measured fence distances at Comiskey Park here after some of his players said they doubted advertised measurements of some parks were accurate.

"So I spent $92 for a 500-foot steel tape and measured," said Finley.

"Well, Comiskey Park's advertised 352-foot foul lines are 347 feet. The deep centre field measurements are 405 feet instead of the 414 painted out there.

"The phoney numbers are psychological barriers to visiting ball players. The league president should order all umpiring teams to measure distances from home plate to the posted markers in all parks and require corrections where needed."

Finley challenged owner Arthur C. Allyn of the White Sox to "correct Comiskey Park measurements."

Allyn said later he had no intention of measuring the distances, adding "Finley wouldn't know where to measure."

'Baby Banks' Battle Flares In Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The battle of the baby banks is warming up in the Senate and the outcome is far from predictable.

The senators, many of whom are connected with the eight "old" banks and other financial houses, now are wrestling with private bills to incorporate three new banks. One senator predicts there might be as many as a dozen applications before long.

The Senate gave second reading — approval in principle— Wednesday to the incorporation of the Vancouver-based Laurentide Bank of Canada over some objections and sent the legislation to the banking committee for public hearings.

Today, the spotlight turns to the proposed Bank of British Columbia, which also would have headquarters in Vancouver and would be backed by the Social Credit government of Premier W. A. C. Bennett. The bank's capital stock would total $100,000,000.

The banking committee opened hearings earlier on the application of the Bank of Western Canada, which would be based in Winnipeg and backed by a group of Toronto financiers including James E. Coyne, former Bank of Canada governor.

PREPARES APPLICATION

Meanwhile, a Montreal group headed by financier Jean-Louis Levesque has a team of lawyers at work on its application for still another bank, which would concentrate on Quebec and the Maritimes.

Several senators on both sides of the upper chamber are pressing the banking committee to hold up all applications until late next fall at least, when the government is scheduled to introduce revisions to the Bank Act.

HAVE ENOUGH BANKS

Senator Frederick M. Blois (PC — Nova Scotia) said Wednesday Canadians have enough banks as it is.

Senator A. N. McLean (L—New Brunswick), a former bank manager, said 28 banks failed in Canada between 1867 and 1923 and another 38 were taken over by big banks after faring badly. Depositors had lost $15,000,000.

This high mortality rate had been caused by the regional scope of the banks and by the lack of experienced administrators and managers.

He said the Bank of Western Canada claimed to have received many job applications, but "I would venture to state that applications from top bank executives would be few and far between."

Senator Blois said the Senate might receive up to a dozen bids for bank charters from narrow-based groups of financiers attracted by the prospect that the government may lift the six-per-cent interest ceiling on consumer loans by chartered banks.

He said the Laurentide Bank would be controlled by Power Corporation of Canada Limited, a Montreal holding company with four directors who are connected with existing banks.

CLAIMS SETUP WRONG

This was "absolutely wrong" and contrary to Canadian practice. Banks should have a wide base of shareholders and be free of control by any single group of financiers.

Senator Donald Cameron (L—Alberta), sponsor of the Laurentide bill, replied that Canada has been free of bank failures since 1923. Tight federal supervision and able executives ensured the success of the new banks.

He cited portions of last month's report of the royal commission on banking and finance urging more open competition in the money market and more innovation in bank practices.

Senator J. W. deB. Farris (L — British Columbia), sponsor of the Bank of B.C., said there can be few guarantees of solvency to match financial backing by the "great province of British Columbia."

All present banks were run by Easterners and Westerners wanted a bank where they could deal with men who "breathe the atmosphere of the West" and have faith in the economic potential of that region.

He denied charges in B.C. that the Social Credit government plans to use the new bank for political purposes.

Sen. Farris praised the Social Credit government of B.C. for backing the bank but insisted that he is still a convinced Liberal.

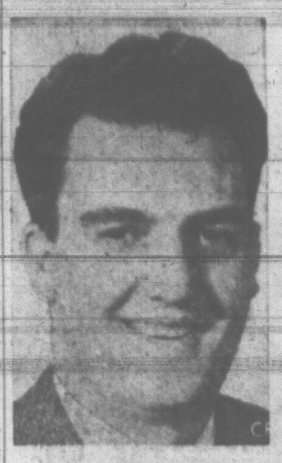

He told the Senate that some B.C. Liberals have directed personal criticism at him for sponsoring the private bill seeking to incorporate the brainchild bank of Premier Bennett, but true Liberals supported independent thought.

The 85-year-old Vancouver lawyer said he never expects to join the Social Credit party, but firmly believed that the new bank would be in the best interests of the people of B.C. and Alberta.

"Whatever you can say about Bennett, he runs successful hardware stores—and he's a good politician," Senator Farris said.

NDPer, SOCRED EXPRESS FEARS AS BILL PASSES

'Don't Make Divorce Commission Political Plum'

PETERS
. . . approves first choice

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit and New Democratic Party MPs expressed fears in the Commons Wednesday that governments might in the future use the post of Senate divorce commissioner to reward friends.

Both Gerard Chapdelaine (SC—Sherbrooke) and Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) aired their reservations before a government bill making the divorce commissioner a judge of the Exchequer Court received third and final reading. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Also given final approval was a bill authorizing Crown corporations to pay up to $3,500,000 in provincial sales taxes ahd auto licence fees.

Mr. Chapdelaine suggested that an amendment be inserted in the divorce commissioner bill to ensure such appointments be made on grounds of merit, not along party lines.

Mr. Peters said the suggestion was a good one.

"I should not like to see the prime minister making this appointment on the basis of who was friendly in the last election," he said.

FIRST NON-POLITICAL

Mr. Peters said the appointment of Allison M. Walsh of Montreal as the first commissioner had been a non-political one.

But the Commons would have to be "overly-cautious" when other appointments were made to see that competent men presided over divorce hearings.

Justice Minister Favreau said the government wanted to make the commissioner a high court judge to bring prestige to the position. It would also be a safeguard that divorce bills from Quebec and Newfoundland got the judicial attention they merited.

The appointments would be made by the Speaker of the Senate in consultation with the president of the Exchequer Court.

But the commissioner would be an official of the Senate and it would have the final word on what marriages should be dissolved, the justice minister said.

OBJECTS TO BILL

H. A. Olson (SC — Medicine Hat) objected to the bill providing for payment of provincial sales taxes by Crown corporations.

Alberta didn't levy this tax, he said, and the government should make a cash payment to the province as it did to others contracting out of federal-provincial programs.

E. J. Benson, parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, said no such payments were contemplated.

Mr. Olson said Alberta was being discriminated against because it managed its affairs so well it did not have to levy a sales tax.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said it would be fairer if the federal and provincial governments agreed not to levy taxes on the other's corporations.

BOB KENNEDY EYES SENATE

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney-General Robert Kennedy is exploring the idea of running for the U.S. Senate from New York State next fall, the New York Times says.

The move has been suggested by members of his family and by Democrats in both Washington and New York, a Washington dispatch to the Times adds.

Salmon Fishermen Repeat Price Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — West coast salmon fishermen will repeat price demands that led to a three-week strike last year—a strike that was called off but never settled.

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) announced Tuesday it will demand 36 cents a pound for sockeye, 30 cents for coho, 15 cents for pinks and 16 cents for chum.

The fishermen went on strike July 13 last year after the Fisheries Association of B.C., representing canneries, rejected the same demand.

Arbitration attempts by Mr. Justice Nathen Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court are continuing, with the union and association unable to agree on his scope.

Pending settlement, fishermen have been paid 34 cents for sockeye, 24 cents for coho, 10 cents for pinks and between 12 and 15 cents for chum for the 1963 catch.

COUNTER-PROPOSAL

Ken Campbell, secretary-manager of the Fisheries Association, said the union's 1964 demands are being studied. The association will submit a counter-proposal to the union within a week, he said.

The fishermen's demands were worked out at a recent joint contract meeting of 40 delegates from 24 union locals and branches of the Native Brotherhood of B.C.

The union also wants the association to pay 10 cents per case of salmon into a welfare fund and another 10 cents a case into a medical service plan. The association now pays six cents per case into the welfare fund, but does not contribute to the medical plan.

The union has applied for conciliation board hearing for shore workers and tendermen, covered under separate agreements with the fisheries association.

HORSE SHOW AT FAIR

80 of the Best Ready for Ring

By RON SUDLOW

Eighty of the top horses and riders from Victoria, up-Island and the lower mainland will be participating in the Victoria Exhibition Horse Show Friday and Saturday.

The horse show is sanctioned by the Canadian Horse Shows' Association and riders will be vying for points which lead to individual championships at the end of the season.

It is being managed by Colwood Trail Riders and the U-Tree Highlanders.

The two evening shows will be preceded by chariot races featuring four drivers, each pulled by a team of two Shetland ponies.

"Chariot races have never been seen south of Duncan and the teams are all from up-Island," said show chairman Earl Pallister.

ANYTHING GOES

"The drivers will be decked out like Roman soldiers and anything goes with those boys except knives on the wheels."

Following the races, the formal English riding events will begin.

The grace and beauty of horse and rider working as a team will be tested in a course of jumps and there will be hack events where conformation and way of going as well as performance, will be judged.

On Saturday morning 10 breeding and halter classes will be judged, starting at 10.

JUNIOR EVENTS

All except ponies will be three-year-olds or over. Other classes are thoroughbreds, Arabian, Anglo Arab, half Arab, Morgan, quarter horse, American saddlebred, Palomino, draft horse and grade mare.

The junior western events will begin in the show ring north of the arena Saturday at 1 p.m.

"These events are designed to test the abilities of the horse under conditions which could crop up on an ordinary trail ride," Mr. Pallister commented.

"In western events, the emphasis is put on the horse. The judges watch the little things such as the tail switching, whether he is fighting the bit or if force is needed to make him perform.

"The horse should respond to the slightest shift of weight or prod of the heel."

A feature of the junior show, limited to youngsters under 15, will be the colorful Arab costume class. Riders must have a full or part registered Arabian mount, and they are judged on their Arabic costumes.

A feature will be junior and senior Morgan pleasure classes.

"The Morgan is a new class to B.C. It was recently introduced into this area and eight of the 23 horses of this breed in the province are expected to be at the show," Mr. Pallister said, and he should know. Mr. Pallister is a breeder of Morgans.

FINAL AT NIGHT

Final horse show of the fair, the western senior events, will begin Saturday at 7 p.m.

"Training characteristics will really show in these events. The horses will have to respond to short bursts of speed and quick stops," Mr. Pallister explained.

The horses will be put through tight turns on figure-eight courses, come to a halt, stand and then back up.

Featured event will be western working class which is similar to rodeo roping events.

Persons attending the horse shows also get a chance on a pony, cart and feed valued at $500 for their 50-cent admission ticket.

Scientific Air Pollution Survey Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A scientific air pollution survey, followed by strong enforcing legislation, was urged Wednesday by Dr. Mervin J. Stewart, Vancouver engineer, in an address to the B.C. public health conference.

Dr. Stewart, who has participated in such surveys in Canada and the U.S., declared: "No one has the right to use the atmosphere as a receiver of waste to adversely affect the health and well being of other people."

He estimated it would cost $50,000 for a pollution survey of the Vancouver area and about $125,000 for all major B.C. centres.

Some people would fight back against pollution controls, he said, but this was mostly "bluff."

Dr. Stewart said the importance of a survey was proved by the Los Angeles situation where strict clamps were placed on oil refineries before a thorough investigation showed that 68 per cent of the smog in the city was caused by automobile exhaust fumes.

The problem of car exhaust had not yet been solved. But two auto fume control devices had passed the first stage of testing in California.

One of the worst sources of air polltuion in B.C. was "those wigwam type burners" still used by some lumber mills. They were now banned in many U.S. states.

SALES STILL RUN STRONG

Major Changes Slated In 1965 Line of Cars

By CHARLES C. CAIN

DETROIT (AP) — Small tears are showing up in the veil of secrecy behind which the U.S. auto industry hides its forthcoming 1965 car line.

With sales still running strong and the industry due to build its 6,000,000th car on the 1964-model run today, it is not surprising that auto makers do their best to avoid any premature publicity about their 1965 models.

Activity in more than 125 tool and die shops in the Detroit area reflects the fact that the auto industry will be making the most extensive changes in its car line in over a decade. Some estimates are that $1,200,000,000 will be spent in tooling, dies and other aspects of the 1965 model changeover.

Basically, the industry seems to be basing its 1965 plans on a belief that the U.S. buying public wants longer, larger and more powerful cars.

American Motors, chief advocate of the compacts, still feels there is a vast U.S. market for compacts and they will continue to play a big role in AMC's 1965 plans.

In brief, these seem to be the major changes coming in the '65s:

1. Larger, more powerful engines.

2. More use of disc brakes, in place of the present conventional drum brakes.

3. Squarish front ends and more use of fast backs. These represent an unbroken curved line from the top of the car to the rear bumper.

4. More use of low-profile tires.

START EARLIER

The first of the '65s are expected to roll off the assembly line by Aug. 15. This is earlier than usual, but the auto industry will be locked in negotiations with the United Auto Workers then with present contracts of the Big Three, Ford, Chrysler and General Motors, due to run out by Sept. 1.

From technical publications, union sources, tool and die makers and other sources, these bits were pieced together about some of the new cars to be:

GENERAL MOTORS

Cadillac will drop its traditional tail fins after 16 years. Some of the standard size Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Pontiac wheelbases probably will be increased slightly, as will the Buick Wildcat. GM will make more use of slanted roofs. It will make major revisions in its Corvair line and will offer a sportier Corvair GT model to compete with Ford's flashy new Mustang. GM's power plant will be bigger.

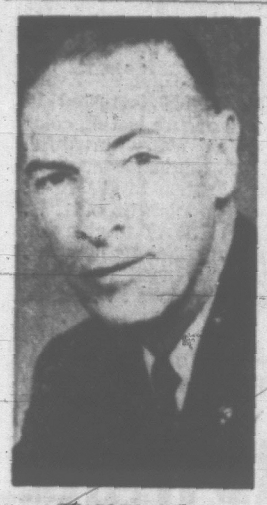

FORD

The Mustang, currently the fair haired boy of the Ford line, will be unchanged in '65 except that a fastback model will be added. Ford will put heavy emphasis on engine improvements, including addition of two new six-cylinder jobs. Mercury will get a larger body. New headlights and a fancier front grille will mark several Ford products. More widespread use of the low profile tire will be made.

CHRYSLER

Chrysler, which since 1956 has used the push-button automatic transmission will drop this in '65 in favor of the more conventional gear shift lever on the steering column. One Chrysler source said the company is still sold on the push button idea, but has found in some surveys that one of the principal reasons some customers give for not buying a Chrysler product is their dislike of push buttons.

Plymouth will introduce a new 119-inch wheelbase line called the Satellite, to compete directly with Ford's Galaxie and Chevrolet's Impala. Dodge also will add a new 117-inch wheelbase to its line.

CHARLES SWAIN

Top Kiwanian To Be Greeted By 30 Branches

The president of Kiwanis International, Charles A. Swain, will speak to more than 30 Kiwanis clubs from Vancouver Island and the lower mainland at the Empress Hotel on Saturday, May 23.

Mr. Swain is a New Jersey businessman.

A Kiwanian for 36 years, he was elected president last June and serves until July this year.

The subject of his after-dinner talk has not yet been announced. He will arrive by ferry from Port Angeles on Saturday and will fly to Edmonton from Vancouver on Sunday.

Gambling Total Up

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons spent more on all forms of betting last year, the annual report of the churches' council of gambling issued here Wednesday says. The total annual turnover for all gambling excluding gaming in clubs, was £866,000,000 ($2,598,000,000), an increase of £13,000,000 ($39,000,000) over the previous year.

Policeman Must Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — A civil jury Wednesday assessed an Ottawa police constable damages totalling $3,475.95 for assaulting an intoxicated man Christmas Day, 1962. The jury deliberated two hours in the Supreme Court action brought against Const. Ronald Harris by George Richards, 26.

624 FLAG DESIGNS

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Lamontagne said Wednesday in the Commons that up to April, 624 designs for a distinctive Canadian flag had been submitted to the government.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette-l'Assomption-Montcalm) asked whether the Liberal caucus discussed a choice between two of these designs. "No," said Mr. Lamontagne.

The only 100% Colombian coffee ever offered in Canada!

Today across Western Canada, a new refinement in the cherished enjoyment of good coffee begins – with Boban. The supreme flavor and higher cost of new Boban Coffee are explained by a single fact: Boban is the only blend of pure Colombian Coffees ever offered in Canada. Colombian Coffees are the finest in all the world, hand grown and harvested on the steep slopes of the Andes Mountains, where the rich earth and mild year 'round temperatures create a paradise for coffee. Infinite care makes Boban possible. First the grower must plant tiny seedlings by hand and tend these constantly until their fifth year, when the plump red berries containing coffee beans appear. Harvesting at just the right time is essential. But the berries do not ripen all at once, so each tree is hand-picked several times. The crop is incredibly small: a good tree yields enough berries for little more than one pound of coffee each year. But what superb coffee!

A little more expensive... but worth it!

Experts judge the quality of many coffee brands by the amount of Colombian in the blend. Pure Colombian Coffee is a rarity. And Boban is a gourmet blend of 100% Colombian Coffees; brought to you fresh in vacuum sealed tins. You can't imagine how good it tastes. So try it today.

EQUAL BLAME LAID BY JURY IN FATALITY

NANAIMO (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that both the victim and a truck driver were equally to blame in the death of Mrs. Mary Gold, 70, hit by the truck while crossing a highway near here April 24.

The jury found that the woman had an alcohol content in her blood of .18, enough to be intoxicated. It ruled also that there was a lack of caution on the part of truck driver Jaswant Singh Johal of Duncan.

FIVE-WAY PLAN

Schemes Invited For Centenary

Suggestions are invited for a Canada centenary project in which all Langford-Metchosin areas may participate, Langford's new recreation project chairman said today.

It is suggested all five areas in the district—Langford, Metchosin, Colwood, Glen Lake and Happy Valley — pool efforts and resources to contribute a single recreational improvement for the enjoyment of all citizens.

H. M. Palsson, Belmont Secondary School teacher, was named chairman of the Langford committee Wednesday night.

Serving with him will be Fred Boulter, Curtis McCulloch, Laurie Harrison and Clem Cunningham.

Langford recreation commission chairman Mrs. Fred Boulter said, "We feel that one big project would be better than five small ones."

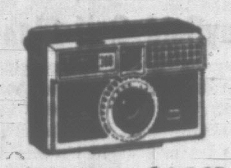

Metchosin area has a project committee and the other three areas are expected to name committees soon.

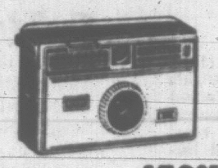

When all committees are chosen and a broad concept of centennial project is discussed with the provincial centennial project is discussed with the provincial centennial committee, a single local committee could be chosen, Mr. Palsson said.

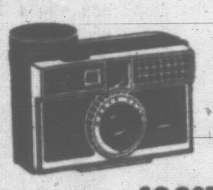

Anyone may suggest a project, which could be a park, swimming pool, community club, curling rink, tennis courts, marina, or similar type of recreational development of benefit to the community at large.

Car Rolled Over By Young Driver

CUMBERLAND — A man charged with unlawfully allowing a minor without a licence to operate a car was fined $15 in magistrate's court, Wednesday.

"You should have more sense than to let a boy drive your car," Magistrate J. Ryland told John Thomas Ball, 18, of Cumberland.

The court was told the 16-year-old boy lost control of the car on the Minto Road and it rolled over, sustaining damage totalling $800.

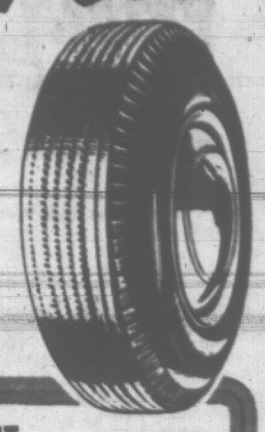

The juvenile who left the scene was fined $15 for driving without a licence.

Cost Estimates Asked for New Courtenay School

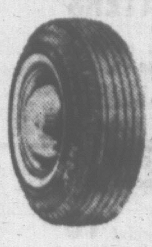

COURTENAY — School board architects have been asked to draw up plans and submit cost estimates for a new school, provided for in a 1961 bylaw. It was not built at the time because school trustees felt enrollment might go down.

District superintendent C. E. Ritchie said when the new junior secondary school is completed, elementary school students will move into the present high school, and the primary school built in 1898 will be torn down.

Esquimalt Officer Inspects Duncan Sea Cadet Corps

MAPLE BAY — Thirty-eight cadets of the Admiral Mainguy Corps, Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, were inspected Tuesday night by Cmdr. Ivan McPhee, RCN, member of the Admiral's staff, Pacific Command, Esquimalt.

The annual inspection, held at the barracks at Maple Bay, was attended by naval officers, Navy League officials and parents of the cadets.

Cmdr. McPhee was accompanied by Lt.-Cmdr. J. Hobbs, sea cadet officer of B.C. Other officials included W. Bishop of the Vancouver Island branch, Navy League of Canada, and Norman Bevan, president of the Cowichan branch.

Demonstrations in boat handling, rigging and jackstay were given as well as a performance by the corps' drum and bugle band under the direction of PO Mark Purdy.

Panel Claims Hopes Held For Retarded

DUNCAN—A panel discussion on "the care of the handicapped child in the home and community" highlighted Tuesday's meeting of the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children.

The main points emphasized by the panel included: Parents of a retarded or slow child should never give up hope that the child can be helped and a place found for the child in the community; the parents should learn to enjoy the child, as the retarded child needs his parents more than the average child; and parents and teachers must realize that the child is more sensitive and therefore requires more affection and encouragement.

It was also pointed out that a noisy approach when disciplining the child will only frighten him and cause him to withdraw from the assistance of the parent or teacher.

Panelists included Dr. Joe Pawlowski, past president of the association; Mr. and Mrs. Bud Ramwell and Mrs. J. I. Taylor, teacher of a special class at the Duncan Elementary School. Miss Iva Woodward, social worker, was moderator.

Membership convener, Mrs. J. Long reported membership had reached an all-time high of 64.

It was also learned that all Vancouver Island chapters will be represented at the regional meeting in Alberni, June 6.

A drive to collect clothing and other articles for Woodlands School will start soon, and a fuller campaign will be held again in the fall.

The resignation of Mrs. J. Lowood, an assistant teacher at Arcadian School for nine years, was accepted with regret.

Sooke Schools Bylaw Delayed Until Fall

A proposed $700,000 school building referendum in Sooke School District 62 will be put off until the fall, board spokesman Mrs. Isabelle Reader said today.

She said the board feels it is too late in the season to try to put the three-year program before ratepayers, many of whom would be on vacation by the time they would vote.

Mrs. Reader blamed delay by the education department on processing the district's plan to provide for additional classrooms in the area, which has one of the fastest growth rates on the Island.

government elected, like its predecessor, on a promise to reduce them.

Already the income tax has been raised to cover an increased old age pension, the sales tax has been imposed on the construction industry and some two years hence new taxes will be levied on corporations and workers to finance a contributory pension scheme.

If any taxpayer was innocent enough to imagine that taxes were going down because the politicians said so he can forget this pleasant illusion. Taxes are going up and, with them, the cost of all production.

Fiscal Misery

Nevertheless, the nation is still further from a balanced budget than it appeared to be in the March budget and the famous rocks on which Mr. Gordon foresaw shipwreck last year have not receded. When all his plans go awry he must feel a secret sympathy for Mr. Donald Fleming, a companionship of fiscal misery.

If Mr. Gordon could be sure that the boom would last indefinitely he could count on ever-increasing yields of revenue, perhaps sufficient to hold the deficit at its current figure or gradually eliminate it, provided, of course, that he can arrest his spiralling expenditures.

As he has warned repeatedly, he cannot count on the boom, at its existing level anyway. Sooner or later, he says, the economy must level out in its historic cycle.

For the present the boom is far larger than the public has realized. Preliminary figures, not yet published, indicate that in the six months ending March 31 the gross national product grew at the almost incredible rate of over 10 per cent.

Forced Draught

It moved in this period under the forced draught of huge wheat sales, the winter housing program and the construction industry's advance buying to escape the increased sales tax imposed this spring. Now the pace shows signs of slackening and the year's total growth is expected to be around 6 per cent, or roughly that of 1963.

In historic terms this would be gigantic growth, almost equal to that of 1962 when Mr. Diefenbaker was being attacked by the Liberals for failing to make the economy move. But in this buoyant tide of prosperity certain basic facts are conveniently forgotten.

The Diefenbaker and Pearson governments, while solemnly dedicated to the theory of Keynesian finance, have stood it on its head.

If Keynes' principles of cyclical budgeting were being enforced, instead of being merely worshipped in the abstract, the federal treasury would now be accumulating large revenue surpluses and planning deficits, with tax reductions, as soon as the economy turned down again.

Worst Time

On the contrary, the government is accumulating heavy deficits and planning tax increases likely to begin at the worst possible time when the boom tapers off, as Mr. Gordon expects. The Keynesian cycle has been applied in reverse.

Moreover, the relaxing climate of the boom has postponed any serious attempt to correct the economic distortions, the excessive production costs and the weaknesses of many soft industries that revealed themselves in the last recession and were quickly forgotten as soon as business improved.

While the politicians exult in good times and the electorate is weary of political debate, the better economists of the government are alarmed by two obvious dangers.

The first is that the boom—already 38 months old and longer than any such period since the last war—may not maintain anything like its present momentum for more than another year or so.

Certainly no economist in the government or the Bank of Canada will guess the prospects beyond next spring, since everything must turn mainly on the health of United States business, not on Canadian policy, as the politicians like to pretend.

Old Spiral

Secondly, the boom has started to heat up the old, familiar spiral of wages, costs and prices in this year's labor negotiations. One of the ablest economists in Ottawa believes that the government's central problem (apart from Quebec) is an inflation sure to appear openly, in the cost of living, before next spring.

His opinion is not widely shared so far. In Ottawa and Washington the cheerful graphs and sleek official speeches assert that prosperity will continue unbroken without any price rise worth worrying about.

All history, and Europe's current inflation, deny this assumption but the American election campaign, now well under way, compels the government to proclaim it, at least until the November polls close. And in Ottawa a boom that Canada inherited by good luck from the world market is naturally interpreted, by Liberals and Conservatives alike, as a triumph of good management by Mr. Pearson or Mr. Diefenbaker.

Northern Dancer In Just Under the Wire

BALTIMORE (AP) — Northern Dancer, this year's Kentucky Derby winner, just got in under the wire and gave officials several anxious moments today when six three-year-olds were nominated for Saturday's 88th running of the Preakness at Pimlico.

There were just three minutes to the 10 a.m. deadline when trainer Horatio Luro tossed in the name of Northern Dancer. Luro explained that he was late because he wanted to give the Toronto - bred colt a gallop around the track first.

Hill Rise, beaten by a neck in the Derby, at Louisville, May 2, was the third to check in for a return shot at the Canadian flyer. Other entries were the Scoundrel, Quadrangle, Roman Brother and Big Pete.

The rail position was drawn for Big Pete and ranging out from him in the starting gate will be Roman Brother, Quadrangle, Northern Dancer, The Scoundrel and Hill Rise.

Luro, the casual Argentine, said two hours before the entry box closed that he would be in no hurry to get to the racing secretary's office and that he planned to be there around 10:30. When advised the deadline was half an hour earlier, he said "I'll be there, but first I must work my horse."

Northern Dancer galloped two miles, going the last half-mile in around 55 seconds. Luro then strolled into the secretary's office—three minutes before closing time. He stopped and chatted with friends.

Finally, Charles Maclennan, racing secretary, reminded him to enter the booth or he would be shut out.

Luro just made it.

The entrance fee was $1,000 for each horse. The six owners must ante up another $1,000 Saturday to start in the Preakness, which has a post time of 5:45 p.m.

IMPAIRED TOTAL UP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drinking driving offences in the city are occurring at a record-setting pace.

The total of 512 such offences in the first four months of 1964 compares with 384 last year.

Total arrests for the offences last year set a record one-year figure of 1,156.

An increase in fines in 1962 has failed to curb the growing amount of offences each year.

Rites Today For Pioneer City Woman

Funeral service for one of Victoria's pioneer residents were held today at 3:30 p.m. in Hayward's Chapel.

Mrs. Annie Wallace Ward, who came to Victoria in 1890, died Monday at the age of 98.

Born in London, England, Mrs. Ward came to Victoria with her uncle, Fleming Hewett, her sister and a cousin, and spent her first night sleeping in a shack where Eaton's parking lot now stands.

Her husband, William Ward, who died in 1941, was owner of the original Scotch Bakery on the east side of Douglas near Johnson.

Always active in many organizations Mrs. Ward cooked meals for the Veterans of France in their quarters over the old Poodle Dog restaurant after the First World War and helped them with Christmas parties.

She was an active member of the Ancient Order of Foresters, Court Maple Leaf, the ladies auxiliary of St. Andrew's and Caledonia Society and First United Church.

She is survived by a son, Horace; a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Mason, both of Victoria; four grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and a niece, Mrs. Gordon Kerr of Burnaby.

'Rangers' From Formosa To Aid South Viet Nam?

TAIPEI (Reuters) — The United States has given tacit approval to Nationalist China to prepare troops for "harassing raids" against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam, reliable sources said today.

The order means that every item sent to Cuba from the United States will have to receive government approval. The only exception will be gift parcels.

It was disclosed Wednesday that Cubans have approached U.S. companies about the possible purchase of millions of dollars worth of drugs.

The commerce department said the order requiring specific export licences for shipments of food and medicines "does not mean that such shipments are precluded, but that the department wishes to be informed of all intended trade with Cuba and thereby be in a position to act according to the national interest of the United States. Each decision will be made in the light of all relevant circumstances."

The sources predicted Formosa might likely offer South Viet Nam contingents of well-trained special forces, but not regular troops.

If actually employed the Formosan "rangers" would probably operate under the command of Chinese Nationalists themselves, according to the sources.

One of the reasons for the "rangers" operating under nationalist command was because of nationalist experience in guerrilla warfare against the Communists on the mainland.

Another reason was that the troops fighting alone or with the South Vietnamese would not compromise the U.S. policy not to encourage the nationalists to take offensive operations.

Meanwhile, both Nationalist Chinese and American military authorities did not throw any light on the reports.

Lt.-Cmdr. John Mackercher, spokesman to the United States Formosa defence command, said he had "no comment to make at present."

Rear-Admiral Pei Yu Fun, nationalist defence ministry spokesman, said "I have no knowledge of it."

CASSIUS NOT OUT-AND-OUT FAILURE . . .

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay (Muhammed Ali to you) wasn't quite an all-out failure in the U.S. Army mental tests.

Edmund Fuchs, chief of the army's military selection research section, told a U.S. Senate appropriations subcommittee that Clay "wasn't an absolute failure in the tests."

Fuchs said Clay, who was rejected for the draft after twice taking the mental tests, rated in the middle third of those tested. He explained that the top third passes automatically, the bottom third is rejected outright, and those in the midle third are marginal types.

Arthur Mayse

In our corner of the coastal jungle we are occupied, these long evenings, with a spring rite called Getting the Place into Shape. This is distinct from Keeping the Place Up, a task which knows no season.

Since my record is patchy, we won't dwell on that last. But getting the place into shape is a concentrated drive, a sprint as opposed to a jogging marathon, and once off the mark I even enjoy it.

What sparks us into action is the spectacle of other people beginning to get their places into shape. We go for an after-dinner drive, and the car ahead of us has its trunk deck raised to accommodate several nursery bales of peat moss. In every suburban block, we spot couples toiling and moiling.

The friends who a week or two earlier would have asked us in are now out front, he mowing and she delving as if an invisible presence stood handy by with a blacksnake whip. They are getting their place into shape, and would as soon suffer a visitation of chickenpox as break off to chaffer with drones.

We pass a man on a shaky-looking ladder doing something to a roof gutter, then a new house whose occupants are plunking shrubs into fresh-dug holes.

"You know," one of us—the industrious one—observes, "it's nice, driving around like this. But we really ought to be home getting the place into shape."

That triggers it. In no time at all, we've washed out a Saturday fishing trip and are debating whether the porch floors should be sanded before we paint them, and whether to order single or double geraniums for the window boxes.

* * *

We are now approximately halfway along with this year's bout of getting the place into shape.

The geraniums are ordered, but will be singles and a trifle off-shade. It seems the ones we wanted were all bespoken by other place-shapers in February.

The porches look pretty neat, or will when we've retouched the spot where a careless oaf planted his hoof while straightening to ease a cricked back.

Naturally, we are behind schedule. This is because a man is only as good as his tools, and ours have been giving us considerable trouble.

I lost a day trying to start a rototiller with a stuck valve. Finally we took it down to an expert, who darn near cried over it.

"You left the fuel in all winter!" he accused.

"Well," I explained, "I intended to use it."

That one cost us a new gas tank and other appurtenances, and reduced me for a week to an old-fashioned spading fork, an implement with which I prefer to make haste slowly.

Then there was the power mower, not the big one that last year hurled a piece of itself at me, but the little flat rotary we depend on for rough work.

I used to haggle the long stuff down with a brush scythe, but that was before we watched a neighbor charge clear through a thicket with rotary wailing like a banshee.

We were getting along fine with the lower forty when our pet hit a rock it couldn't handle. I suppose the guy in the shop will fuss over the mower, too.

* * *

But the work goes on—my gardening partner has been plying her lady-spade steadily—and by mid-July, if nothing worse befalls, we'll just about have the place in shape.

Of course, there's some stucco to be touched up, if I can get the red porch paint out of the brushes, and we did sort of count on extending the back lawn and putting in a patio of reclaimed brick, complete with barbecue hearth.

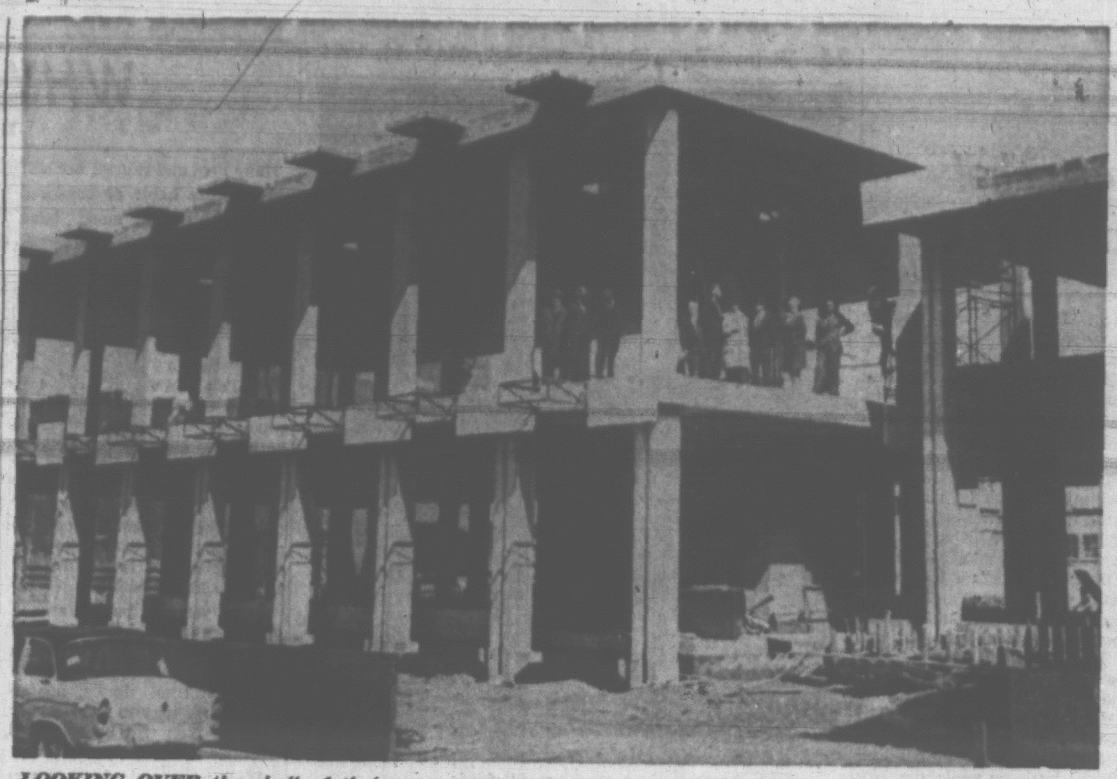

It's possible, though, that we'll postpone the patio until next spring-wakes the urge.

An angler friend who has completed, or more likely abandoned his own place-shaping, stopped by the other evening while we were at grips with a Pacific willow which had strayed in among the barberry.

He bounced a Cowichan Black Ant on his palm, and raised a questioning eyebrow.

So I think when the geraniums are in, and the evenings longer still, we will allow Getting the Place into Shape to merge with Keeping the Place Up.

That's easier, doesn't get in the way of the fishing!

LOOKING OVER the shell of their new quarters today were aldermen and city officials shown in photo above on second floor of City Hall addition under construction on Pandora. Work is one week ahead of schedule now and Mayor R. B. Wilson, after tour of City Hall and McPherson Theatre projects, said the program is becoming more exciting as it unfolds. "I think it will be even better than we anticipated and something of which all citizens will be proud," he said. Aldermen were pleased to learn that the old Columbia Rooms will come down. The somewhat shabby three-storey building, facing the new Pandora Avenue City Hall entrance, was purchased recently by the Douglas Hotel interests who plan to turn it into a parking lot with generous landscaped screening.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1964—PAGE 23

4th Bank Suspect Identified

Believed Hiding In East; Police Have 3 In Custody

Saanich police have issued a warrant for the arrest of a fourth man in connection with the April 24 hold-up of the Cook and Quadra branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Sought is Philip Arthur Carew, a hotel waiter believed to be in eastern Canada.

Police have already arrested and arraigned three men in connection with the $7,300 robbery.

Clarence William Kraft, 32, of Victoria, was formally charged in Saanich police court this morning with the armed robbery.

He asked for a week's remand.

Jean Robitaille of Montreal, left today for the B.C. penitentiary at New Westminster to start serving a 10-year sentence for his part in the holdup.

SURRENDERED

He surrendered here three days after the robbery.

Ronald Dagenais of Vancouver, surrendered to Detroit police last week, pleaded guilty here and was scheduled to be sentenced this afternoon.

Kraft was arrested in Atlantic City, New Jersey, by immigration officers, city police and sheriff's officers, and was deported.

He was returned here Wednesday evening in the custody of Saanich detective sergeant Joseph Armstrong, who flew to Toronto to pick him up.

He is being held in the city jail, because Saanich cells are full.

ADJOURNMENT ASKED

In dock this morning, he appeared serious but composed. His only words were to ask Magistrate William Ostler for a week's adjournment without plea or election.

He was still wearing the black shirt, dark pants and light canvas jacket he was arrested in.

PHILIP CAREW
. . . hotel waiter

Police say the fourth man they were seeking, Carew, is 27, about 6' 2", has black hair and blue eyes, and weighs about 175 pounds.

Still under investigation is the whereabouts of the money taken from the bank.

Robitaille had about $1,600 scattered around his hotel room here.

Degenais apparently lost his share—$1,600 that he gave to his girl friend to hold when they were in Detroit. It was evidently stolen from her there.

Kraft had only about $1.24 on him when he was arrested on a street corner.

This leaves about $4,000 unaccounted for.

SEVERAL REPORTS ON BLOND SIX-FOOTER

Motel Guests Overpower Prowlers

Two Vancouver men wrestled with prowlers at a city motel early this morning, but were unable to prevent them from escaping.

One of the prowlers jumped over a 15-foot drop from a stairway to escape.

City police say H. G. Eakins, a guest at the Crystal Court Motel, 701 Belleville, tangled with a dark, heavy-set prowler in his room about 1:30 this morning.

The man struggled with him, then broke free and ran.

John Eichhorst, also of Vancouver, saw an arm coming in the window of his room at the motel, and grabbed it as it tried to reach around and open his door.

On the other end of the arm was a six-foot blond prowler with a receding hairline.

They struggled, and prowler broke loose and jumped over a bannister to the ground 15 feet below.

He was last seen running south on Blanshard towards its intersection with Douglas.

Police searched the area with a tracking dog, without results.

About half an hour later, a heavy-set blond prowler resembling the second one at the Crystal Court was seen to try entering a room at the Crest Motel, 455 Belleville.

A check revealed the man apparently entered one of the rooms with a key.

DOG IN SEARCH

A tracking dog search there was without result.

Late Wednesday night, city police investigated after a prowler followed a girl home, then apparently broke into the house and robbed it.

A girl living on Style Street with her two sisters was followed home by a young, heavily-built man with blond hair.

Another sister heard a knock at the window about 11.30, and saw the man in the back yard.

Investigation indicated the basement door of the house was open.

The man apparently entered a basement bedroom, taken 50 cents in change, a wallet, a bankbook and a pair of glasses.

ROAD OPEN BRIEFLY

Up-Island Loggers Get 'Pass' to Outside

Another link in the "route of the Haidas" will become part of the Queen's Highway to residents of isolated communities north of Campbell River this weekend.

For the first time, loggers and their families will be able to drive to the supermarkets of Campbell River.

They will use 133 miles of logging roads pushed through Nimpkish Valley by four separate companies, provided final clearances are granted today.

The northern end of the road now becomes Camp Nimpkish and soon will be Beaver Cove, a little farther on.

But the permits which employees of logging companies will need to make the rough trip will be valid only for the holiday weekend. It will be several months before a public road connects Kelsey Bay with Beaver Cove.

PUBLIC BARRED

The special routes will be open from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 a.m. Tuesday, but not for the general public.

To mark the occasion, a special Campbell River Chamber of Commerce cavalcade of 10 cars will go north to visit the logging communities, which have existed with their own network of roads unconnected with civilization.

If successful, the permit plan may be extended to other weekends, weather conditions permitting use of the roads.

Communities involved are Camp 10, Vernon Camp, Woss Camp, Camp Nimpkish, Englewood Camp and Telegraph Cove.

Canadian Forest Products Ltd., which holds 54 miles of road, is arranging bus service.

BENNETT COLISEUM JUST 'JOKE'

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today refused to allow a new Vancouver sports coliseum to be named after him.

He dismissed the suggestion, by Vancouver Mayor William Rathie, as a joke.

"He's entitled to his little joke. He had a good smile and so did I," Mr. Bennett said.

As for taking it seriously: "Certainly not—I don't seek personal aggrandisement."

The premier, who has steadfastly refused a number of suggestions that bridges, roads and buildings be named after him, added: "Even the best of coliseums will fall down some time."

Topics of the Day

Waterfront watchers will have to stay up late Friday night if they want to get an illuminated glimpse of the Ss Canberra, due to pick up pilot at 1 a.m. Saturday off Ogden Point.

Negotiations aimed at settling the more than 12-months-old strike of meatcutters at Alberta Meat Market have resumed after a lapse of two months.

A meeting on Tuesday, which included an international representative of the meatcutters' union, was described by management representative E. E. Pearlman as "very useful."

There was "some progress," Mr. Pearlman said, "but I can't say what might happen. The parties met in a spirit of trying to work something out."

He said another meeting would follow, but not before the holiday weekend upcoming.

A proposal that city council buy the Heaney Carriage building in Bastion Square was expected to go before a council meeting today.

The building—first home of the Victoria board of trade and described as a historic landmark — is up for sale and apparently drawing bids.

City Hall is being urged to save it from undesirable use or even demolition for a parking lot.

A man whose car sheared off one parking meter Wednesday night and came to rest against another today pleaded guilty in city police court to impaired driving.

William Dewar, 1230 Lyall, was fined $300 and had his licence suspended.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions: Empress Hotel, noon; Percy Frampton, "Spectacular Peace River."

SUIT LAUNCHED BY MACHINIST

A Victoria machinist sought damages in B.C. Supreme Court here today because of severe injuries sustained when a heavy oil drum crashed on top of him while he was working on a barge tied up at 1250 Wharf Street.

The accident occurred June 11, 1962.

Louis H. Schmelz, 5246 Parker Avenue, sued Pacific Piledriving Co. Ltd. of Victoria, claiming the accident was caused by negligence in the operation of a mobile crane which lifted the oil drum.

Donald G. Cameron appeared for Mr. Schmelz and Lloyd G. McKenzie, QC, for Pacific Piledriving.

SCARS PERMANENT

Mr. Schmelz claimed that he suffered severe and extensive lacerations of the upper lip, leaving permanent scars and facial disfigurement; a ruptured spleen which had to be removed; fracture of the upper jaw followed by extraction of teeth; loss of smell, loss of taste, loss of concentration ability, sleep impairment, brain damage, extreme emotional upset, loss of expectation of life, great mental anguish, pain and suffering and substantial loss of ability to earn a living.

Mr. Cameron said Mr. Schmelz was employed as a machinist to repair a steam winch on the company's barge. While he was working on the winch, a mobile crane lifted the oil drum from one part of the barge to another.

RIGGING CRITICIZED

Because of negligence in the operation of the crane, he said the oil drum fell on Mr. Schmelz from a considerable height causing him severe injuries.

Mr. Cameron held that the company used improper or defective rigging to secure the oil drum to the load line of the crane. He said the rigging was in an unsafe condition and "unfit" to be used for this work.

He stated that the operators of the crane failed to keep a proper lookout and failed to warn Mr. Schmelz the crane was in use.

The allegations of negligence against the company were denied by Mr. McKenzie. He argued that Mr. Schmelz was guilty of negligence in that he walked under the oil drum while it was being lifted by the crane.

The hearing continued this afternoon.

Youth Band Head Chooses 5 Victorians

Five young Victoria musicians have been selected again this year for the summer training sessions and tour with the National Youth Orchestra under Toronto Symphony conductor, Walter Susskind.

Leaving for the four-week session in Toronto early in July will be violinists Mark Butler, 14, and Veronica Milton, 17; cellist Norman Abbott, 17; violinist, Elizabeth Gahn, 20, and percussionist Fergus Heywood, 19.

The five Victorians were selected following coast-to-coast auditions conducted by Montreal violinist-conductor Eugene Kash. There will be altogether 93 players in the NYO chosen from approximately 250 applicants between the ages of 14 and 24.

Each student selected pays a $50 registration fee which amounts to about one 17th of the cost of the tuition, board, travel to and from home in any part of Canada, and the two weeks' tour which follows the training session.

Last season the NYO toured the west, including a concert in Butchart Gardens. This year eight concerts will be played in a tour of eastern Canada.

Guidance Clinic Moving to Site Beside Jubilee

Victoria's Child Guidance Clinic will be moved to an apartment block next to Royal Jubilee Hospital this summer.

Health Minister Eric Martin said today the provincial government is renovating the block, bought as part of the site for a new Victoria Mental Health Centre.

The child guidance clinic currently operates in an old government-owned building at 515 Superior.

Baseballers Given Space At Fairfield

City Hall's truce team today found a permanent and peaceful solution to the Fairfield Little League-residents war at Pemberton Park and Brooke Street playgrounds.

City manager Dennis Young said the committee has recommended relocation of the league to Hollywood Park, on Fairfield near St. Charles.

He said the proposal was found satisfactory by a league official and he was certain that residents of that area would not object.

"The homeplate backstop will be relocated on the north side of the football field which will result in a screen of trees and almost 200 feet separating homeplate from the nearest houses," said Mr. Young.

FITS IN WELL

"In addition there is a comfort station there and the hardball activity will fit in well with a park that already is set up for organized sport.

"This will become the permanent home field for this league."

Ald. M. H. Mooney, who fought for a quick solution to the league's difficulties "for the sake of 100 boys who want to play ball right now," said he was pleased with the solution.

"It's a good location," he said.

DEAR ABBY . . .

One Mother's Heartache!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dear Abby: Please print this. Maybe it will spare some other mother the heartbreak I suffered. I am the mother of a retarded son. When he was very young, my family and my doctor tried to get me to put the boy in an institution, but I loved him so dearly I could not bear the thought of putting him away. I thought I could give him the care he needed, so I kept him at home. I didn't know how wrong it was. As the years passed, he developed normally physically, and he began to take notice of the girls. One day he grabbed a little 11-year-old neighbor girl and tried to rape her. The outcome was so terrible for our family. My boy is now in an institution, branded as a "rapist." If I had only listened to my family, this would not have happened. Please advise mothers of retarded children to learn all they can about their problem.

HEARTSICK.

Dear Heartsick: Thank you for your letter. If it helps just one mother, it will be well worth the space it is given in this newspaper.

Dear Abby: How many times should you invite a couple to dinner when they have never had you back? I invited a certain couple to my home for small dinner parties on three separate occasions in this past year, and they never invited us back. I am planning another party and my husband suggested I invite this couple. I told him I would not invite them again until they returned the invitation. My husband says I shouldn't be so "touchy." Abby, these people have entertained many times that I know about, and my intuition tells me they could have invited us if they had wanted to. What do you say? "TOUCHY."

Dear "Touchy": I'll go along with your woman's intuition. Don't invite them again until they have invited you.

Dear Abby: Unfortunately I go to the same beauty shop as the woman who owns and manages the apartment building I live in. My problem is that this woman tells the beauty operator all my business while she gets her wash and set. It's a neighborhood shop, and many of my friends go there, too, and they all listen in while this landlady blabs all my personal business and especially about the family arguments she hears. The beauty parlor operator not only eats it up, but pumps her for more. What can be done about this? ANTI-BUSYBODIES.

Dear Anti: You can't shut up your landlady, but you can move. You can also find a beauty shop where the operator doesn't feast on the domestic scraps of others.

Confidential to F.G.B.: Your letter was a dandy, but too long to print. I agree with you. To sum it up: "What we don't spend on education today we will spend on penal institutions tomorrow!"

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to Abby, Box 3363, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Use Special Formula Soap For Soft, Delicate Skin

By PENNY SAVER

Have you ever heard someone remark that they can always tell a Dutch girl by her complexion? And, it's true. I have yet to see a girl from Holland who doesn't have velvety soft, flawless skin.

Recently I found that a part of their secret lies in the daily use of buttermilk soap. And, now this special formula soap is available to you.

This delicate, fragrant soap produces a soft, smooth effect and imparts a delicate velvety appearance to the skin. Price is $1.35 for a box of three bars of soap or 40 cents each.

A woman's hands are always in view and nothing detracts from their appearance more than chipped nail polish or ragged cuticles.

New type of polish remover I found recently comes in easy-to-use pad style and eliminates the muss and fuss of liquids and cotton batting. One pad holds enough remover to clean the nails on both hands. Price is 98 cents for a box of 15 pads.

Another new product is a cream cuticle remover that keeps your nails looking professionally manicured. Price is $1.19 and manicure takes only five minutes.

Apply remover to all cuticles, remove with soft tissue and rub with brush under warm running water and manicure is completed.

If you are interested in these products, call Penny at 382-3131 for name and location of shop selling them.

Build Own Dessert

Prepared cake mixes are delicious and no homemaker should ever feel that an apology is in order because she uses them. After all, expert cake bakers have usually helped devise and perfect them and the very best ingredients are used in these mixes. However, it is fun to add your variations to make the cake truly your own. Rhu-B-Dessert is an example of a delightful cake dessert that takes very little time to make and even less time for the family to eat.

RHU-B-DESSERT

Three cups rhubarb, 1¼ cups sugar, ½ teaspoon shredded orange peel, Red food coloring (optional), 3½ cups bite size shredded rice biscuits crushed to 1 cup, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ cup soft butter or margarine, 1 layer white cake mix, ¼ cup orange juice.

Heat oven to moderate (350°). Butter 9-inch square baking pan. Put rhubarb in saucepan. Sprinkle with sugar. (If using sweetened rhubarb, omit sugar and cook according to package directions for making sauce.) Cover and cook over low heat until mixture bubbles and rhubarb is soft. Blend with orange peel until smooth. If necessary, add water to make a sauce which is thin enough to pour easily. Red food coloring may be added to tint sauce a pale pink. Combine crumbs, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in butter until thoroughly blended. Pack crumbs firmly and evenly on bottom of baking pan. Prepare cake according to directions on package substituting orange juice for ¼ cup liquid. Spread half of cake batter evenly on top. Bake 40-45 minutes or until cake is very brown and tester inserted in centre comes out clean. Cool. Turn upside-down on flat plate. Cut in squares. Garnish with whipped cream. Yield, 9 servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Many men and women are still battling the habit of smoking. Evidently many more have given up the fight, judging by the upward curve in cigarette sales.

Lowman

You can "shoe" away the nicotine blues with brisk walks. Medical authorities have long been aware of the value of physical exercise to "unknot" the nerves. There is no use pretending that those who stop smoking do not feel tense and irritable for a while.

When you are pacing around the room eyeing the cigarette box, leave the house for a walk if it is at all possible. This is a tried and true, simple, nonfattening, free way to relieve your tension. You will be surprised with the results.

Walk when and wherever you can. Substitute walking for a drive or a phone call. Do as many errands as you can on foot and also take real walks of some length on as many days as you can. Walking brings you a feeling of freedom and relaxation, mental and physical.

Do not wear clothes which are too tight or too heavy. Once your circulation is stirred up you will feel warmer. Be sure that you have comfortable footwear which gives you the proper support. Leather uppers support and mold themselves to your feet. Leather soles protect you from sharp objects and hard surfaces. Low or mid-way heels are favored by experts.

CREAM ON YOUR DIET: IT'S ESSENTIAL TO BEAUTY!

Are you watching your weight? Then your complexion needs extra care! Low-fat diets, plus harsh weather and overheated rooms, rob skin of natural moisture. Result? Flaky patches, little lines, crow's feet. But with POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM you can maintain a reservoir of precious oils and moisture within the skin. This famous cream contains Allantoin—a substance that floats off lifeless surface cells, speeds deep penetration of Pond's moisturized lanolin. Dried-out, thirsty tissues in the skin's sub-surface are revitalized . . . and almost overnight, your complexion looks softer, smoother, younger. Use POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM regularly. In jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

BRAID CLEVERLY USED WILL HIDE SUIT WEAR

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"I need some help in disguising some frayed sleeve edges at the wrist. (If I have to buy a new suit, I can't have a vacation.) The jacket was a tweed and I also have a plain colored skirt to wear with the jacket. I also have a 'botched' buttonhole to try to hide." Mrs. A.C.H.

Dear Mrs. A.C.H.:

A perfect disguise for the frayed sleeves would be to use a wool braid that matches the plain colored skirt you wear with your tweed jacket. This could be applied to the collar and front edges as well, for continuity. One solution for the buttonhole is to whip it closed, sew on a large button to cover the buttonhole and close your jacket with a covered snap. If you are clever, you can also apply the braid around the buttonhole which would give it a military appearance. (Necessity makes designers out of all of us.)

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY:

Slip stitch. This is a term that is used for an invisible stitch to attach appliques to your fabric. Take a small stitch in your fabric, then slide your needle through the fold of the applique, again a small stitch in the fabric and repeat.

Gown Has Sentimental Interest

The gown she wore when she was crowned "Miss Victoria" in 1959 was worn by Vivi Mandrup Peterson, Monday evening when she exchanged marriage vows with Thomas Andrew Wyatt.

The bodice of the elegant floor-length gown of draped nylon was accented with mother of pearl and sequins around the cummerbund waisteline and the sweetheart neckline. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion misted from a crown of pearls. Deep red roses, white stephanotis and trailing white satin ribbons and rosebuds were in her bouquet.

Baskets of white gladioli decorated Grace Lutheran Church for the double-ring ceremony at which Rev. William A. Williams officiated. Organist was John Bergbush.

Parents of the principals are Mrs. and Mrs. Volmer Mandrup Peterson, 1739 Adanac Street, and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wyatt, 515 Admirals Road. Mr. Peterson gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. D. Jenkinson and Miss Lone Peterson were their sister's matron of honor and bridesmaid.

They wore identical full-skirted gowns of cornflower printed chiffon over white taffeta with light blue mohair brim headpieces. Only jewelry was blue crystal necklaces, gift of the bride. They carried bouquets of white stephanotis centred with blue carnations.

The bride's nieces, Lisa and Leslie Jenkinson were flower girls in full-skirted chiffon over taffeta frocks styled on similar lines to those of the senior attendants. Their headpieces were light blue net brims highlighted with matching flowers. They carried small baskets of white stephanotis.

Michael Mason was best man and guests were ushered by Anthony Else.

A heart-shaped wedding cake decorated with blue roses and topped with a china figurine centred the bride's table at a dinner reception in the Dingle House. Dennis C. Jenkinson proposed the toast to the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip to Burlington, Ont., the couple will make their home in Victoria.

For travelling, the bride chose a midnight blue suede suit with pink accessories and carried a long-stemmed rose.

Baby Rodney Edwin, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Van Nes, 6881 Woodward Drive, wore his mother's Brussels lace christening robe, when he received his names last Sunday in St. John's Church. Rev. C. A. Campbell officiated and godparents are Miss Sharon Edmonds, Mr. Michael Margison and Mr. Gary Marshall. A tea followed for 40 guests, at the home of the maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. E. Moore. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Van Nes and the great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis G. Pennock and Mrs. A. L. Moore, all of Victoria. The baby is the fourth generation on his mother's side, to be born in Victoria.

Alberta Appoints Woman Magistrate

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial cabinet Wednesday approved the appointment of the third woman magistrate in Alberta's history.

Mrs. Olga Kempo, 27, a law graduate of the University of Alberta now articling with an Edmonton law firm, will act as magistrate in Edmonton's small debts court. She will take her bar exam in June.

Mrs. Kempo was born and raised in Vegreville, Alta. The wife of Edmonton lawyer John Kempo, she has two children.

The first woman to receive a judicial appointment in Alberta was suffragette leader Emily Murphy, also believed to be the first woman magistrate in the British Commonwealth.

Alberta's second known magistrate was Miss Isobel Stewart, who held a post in Fort Chipewyan, Alta.

Motherhood Includes Threefold Responsibility

Women who give birth to children and then go back to work outside the home, leaving the children to the care of others, misunderstand the role of motherhood.

His Excellency, the Most Rev. Remi J. De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, presented this indictment at a banquet in the Empress Hotel at conclusion of the day-long 36th annual Victoria Diocesan convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

To be a good mother, the speaker said, there is a threefold duty that reaches far beyond the physical birth of a child.

"A mother cares for the well-being and health of her child; she cares for the growth of the child's mind and for the growth of the child's spiritual knowledge."

This is the special role of women, the bishop told his audience—far ahead of working for equality of the sexes and equal responsibility with men in the working world.

"There is grave danger," he warned, "that through the glib and superficial approach of shallow minded people to talk of such equality that a woman eventually will be asked to walk into a man's world and act as a man."

Seated at the head table with the speaker were Mrs. W. E. Rogers, new president of the diocesan group; Brother J. Cassidy, principal of St. Louis College, the diocesan director, Rev. P. Monahan; Rev. P. Batchford, hostess councils director; Alderman Cecil Parrott, representing the city of Victoria, and Mrs. Parrott; Sister Mary Ann Monina, and Sister Katherine Rose, superiors of St. Ann's Academy and Sacred Heart School; Sister Mary Anne Celesta, St. Joseph's Hospital administrator; Mrs. A. C. Niehaus, past diocesan president and Mrs. E. Desilet, president of the hostess council.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Niehaus, Chemainus, and thanked by Mrs. E. V. Jones, Victoria. Appreciation was given by Mrs. W. Mahoney, Port Alberni. Musical interlude was provided by Miss Leona Hanley, accompanied by Mrs. Peggy Zurling.

Difficult Age

LONDON (AP)—Quote of the day: Actress Ingrid Berman, who will be 47 in August, told a London press conference that 30 is a woman's most difficult age, and explained: "When she's 30, she thinks that most of life is already over. She rushes to get things done. At 40, a woman learns the meaning of economy. There's no need to rush. The panic of the 30s is over."

Hitchhikers Enjoy Stroll Through Once-a-Week 'Flea Market'

Former Times staffer Judy Richardson and her friend Linda Beales, are now travelling in Western Europe. From time to time you will hear more of their adventures from abroad.

By JUDY RICHARDSON

On a Sunday morning in Rome there is no better entertainment than a three-hour stroll through the once-a-week "flea market."

Richardson

And, it's free—if you can resist the temptation to buy.

After our budget-breaking splurge in Florence, Linda and I were content to just enjoy the antics of the stall keepers, intent on selling everything from one chipped cup without saucer to new typewriters and radios.

Best of the performances was put on by a group of two young men and two girls. They attracted a crowd by playing music loud and noisy, if not very harmoniously.

With the curious assembled around them, the young man on the accordion or the other on the horn became a barker.

They began by selling as prosaic a product as razor blades. But, before they were through they had persuaded some to buy needle kits, sheet music, even statuettes of the Lady of Lourdes.

Between sales pitches, the group would once more strike up a raucous melody. One girl even had a drum solo but it was rather painful to watch, she was concentrating so earnestly. The other attempted to sing through the noise.

For the razor blades and needles the group received a remarkable response. But, even when the crowd was not so eager to buy, the group remained undaunted. They passed a hat asking people to pay for the entertainment.

Many of the stalls were no more than a display of 10 to 20 items spread out on the ground on some paper or an old carpet. Aladdin's lamp teapots were plentiful but the avid collector might have found a genuine antique among what appeared to be only rubbish.

There might have been someone in the crowd who wanted the old-fashioned phonograph with the morning glory shaped horn painted a bright pink. Or, perhaps there was someone looking for a pair of blue jeans "beat up the way you work years to get them," as one boy put it.

In the path between the rows of booths, games of chance were set up, adding to the midway atmosphere created by the crowds and their noise.

Instead of taking a chance on finding an antique, many were attempting to find the centre of a deceptively coiled cord. Others watched intently while a bean was placed under one of three cups, hoping they could keep the cup in sight as the sleight-of-hand artist moved them around.

More intriguing to us were the small stands littered with blue-black mussel shells and lemons. For 20 lira (four cents) we discovered that the stall-keeper opens the raw mussel, squeezes on a generous amount of lemon juice and hands the delicacy to you to slurp down your throat.

If you like lemon juice you need hardly even notice the mussel.

Dishes breaking against a brick wall made us hurry over to one corner of the market. It wasn't a fight between hot-tempered Italians—just another device to draw a crowd.

Gritting our teeth, we stayed to watch, while the salesman banged a plate against a wooden box to show how strong it was. It didn't break until he caught an edge on the box.

Then, grouping them 10 at a time like the petals of a rose, he'd shake the whole thing to emphasize his sales talk.

He had our vote as a juggler but we'd rather he used less valuable merchandise for his exhibition.

Take Peace River Tour

Members of the Women's Canadian Club were taken to the Peace River, Wednesday afternoon, when they met in the Empress Hotel. Hon. Ray Williston, minister of lands, forests and water resources, was guide.

Illustrating his talk with slides, he showed the audience pictures of the Peace River and outlined, step by step, the transformation taking place in that area, now that the proposed power project is under way.

Slides showed three massive tunnels, each half a mile long and 48 feet wide, that rerouted the Peace River, to prepare for the proposed dam and provide storage for 88,000,000 feet of lake water.

There were pictures of the 80-mile road that has been cut through bush in order to provide access to the area as well as glimpses of Hudson Hope and other communities where trailer cities, housing dam workers, are springing up.

Also seen was the newly-built $2,000,000 bridge which will be destroyed when the area is flooded.

The speaker described the power project as "the largest source of energy on this continent, commanding attention in financial communities throughout Canada."

He also told members that the Peace River had been a source of speculation for many years, citing as an example interest shown by the late Theodore Roosevelt and other famous Americans who visited Finlay Forks in 1901 with the idea of developing the Peace River area.

Speaker was introduced by Mrs. F. M. Corbett and thanked by Mrs. Kenneth Drury.

Following the talk, members to the new executive were introduced. Miss Elizabeth Forbes is the new president. Other officers are: First vice-president, Mrs. H. H. Youson; second, Mrs. D. Leslie Macdonell; third, Mrs. R. T. Wallace; secretary, Mrs. A. T. N. Cowley; treasurer, Mrs. John H. Brown; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Frank Mack; historian, Mrs. A. B. Young and past president, Mrs. F. M. Corbett.

Committee members are Mrs. T. C. Evans, Mrs. W. Redford, Mrs. Charles L. Smith, Mrs. Dai MacLeod, Mrs. J. A. Routledge, Mrs. Harold Smith and Mrs. A. S. Stringer.

In her treasurer's report, Mrs. R. H. McDougall reported receipts of $5,710.62 that included $563.35 raised through an April Food Day. Disbursements were $5,506.41.

Other reports were given by Mrs. Cowley, secretary, and Mrs. Corbett, retiring president.

Miss Forbes presented Mrs. Corbett with a past-president's pin and Mrs. Youson presented her with a huge bouquet of flowers.

For years of service as pianist, Miss Mary Ashworth received a birthday flower brooch.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Broken-hearted Xavier Cugat quite obviously would still like to reconcile with Abbe Lane despite their brawling . . . this is clear from chivalrous remarks he made to this columnist.

"I'm insane about Abbe and always will be," Coogie said. "Just eight weeks ago she wrote me a letter with some presents saying she was madly in love with me. Certain people broke up the marriage by telling her, 'You should be in Hollywood.'

"Abbe walked out of my life but I cannot wish her bad luck. She has taken over every one of my dates in Las Vegas, in Ohio, in Canada, and I will be doing band dates in Portugal, Spain and Italy . . . Abbe was just marvelous with Cugat . . . she will be just marvelous without Cugat . . . because Abbe can only be marvelous. She will be a great, great success, but I only hope she'll remember that her 14 years with Cugat helped her a little along the way."

I think Mother-in-Law's Day should be observed nationally just as Mother's Day was, and I nominate my own Gorgeous Mother-in-Law for the honor . . . As she nears 80, she's gaining energy.

As I was getting dressed to go out heiling around with the celebrities, I said to my Beautiful Wife, "I'm out of socks. What size do I wear?"

The BW said, "You'll have to ask Mother, who always buys them, and she's out marketing."

At that moment my Gorgeous Mother-in-Law returned. "I was out buying you a dozen pairs of socks," she said.

"By the way," I asked her, "what size socks do I wear?" . . . "Size 10½," she laughed . . . "Thanks," I said, "I'd better make a note" . . . "You don't need to," Rosella said. "I'll remember it."

Richard Burton limped around the stage in "Hamlet" and "explained" jokingly to the audience: "Last night a man booed me, so I went to my room and kicked the TV set" . . . Sammy Davis Jr. heard the Copa chorus girls playing his records on a scratchy phonograph—so he sent 'em a new stereo set and $200 worth of albums . . . Duo: Alan Jay Lerner and actress Barbara Harris at Sardi's . . . Busy tycoon Conrad Hilton went to the cocktail dansant at the NY Hilton's new $500-a-day East Penthouse with its glorious view of the city, then limousined to the Fair to the equally luxurious Hilton Cafe International and Marco Polo Room. That'll be the new kick: to dine on some terrace overlooking the fairground's colorfully lighted fountains.

Beatrice Lillie confused the Rainbow Rm. waiter by asking for her favorite ice cream flavor: "Molly Pecan" . . . Yul Brynner bought another boat, and Frank Sinatra told him, "Congratulations — you've now got a bigger navy than Switzerland" . . . Barbra Streisand was offered $20,000 for a one-nighter this summer at the Forest Hills Auditorium . . . Princess Margaret, who attended an Ella Fitzgerald concert in London, will be at a Beatles premiere, too.

Bob Haymes Jr. is singing at the Las Vegas Flamingo, while his uncle Peter Marshall is working at a nearby cafe . . . Jockey Bill Hartack brought his favorite filly to the Chateau Madrid . . . Jolie Gabor turned out to see another Hungarian, singer Nina Dabore, open at the Viennese Lantern . . . David Niven's son Jamie is dating N.Y. model Pauline Templar . . . The original production of "By Jupiter" starred Ray Bolger: the next revival will turn that role over to—Benay Venuta.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Singer Bernadette Castro reports she signed up for one of those economy cruises — she stays home, but the company sends her picture postcards, to mail.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The Cannibal said to his cannibal host, "I don't like your mother-in law." Said the cannibal host, "Then never mind her, just eat the vegetables."

EARL'S PEARLS: Television isn't replacing radio half as fast as it's replacing homework.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A woman driver is a person who drives the same way as a man, only she get blamed for it."—Dan Valentine.

That's earl, brother.

Young Generation Hard on Hatters

By JACK HUTTON

Tell me, when does a fellow start wearing a hat these days? For years I've gazed in slight awe at the sophisticated male models wearing their hats at just the right angle. But how many friends you know wear a hat?

I started wondering about this question this week after hearing that one of Canada's best-known hat stores (L. J. Applegath of Toronto) is closing its doors because more males are scorning headwear.

Its proprietor said he knew the handwriting on the wall when he saw it. The entire hat industry in Canada, he said, is finding that the younger generation prefers going bareheaded.

Twinges of Guilt

I felt twinges of guilt when I heard this. The only hat I've worn was a felt sports model bought to accompany a white sports car, and it blew away the second day.

I've obviously let down the hat industry in Canada. Shame on my bare head.

In the interest of pure research I raided my picture files. If I was looking for company for my sins, I found plenty of it. And the files revealed reasons for the bareheaded trend.

There is, as far as I know, not one picture in existence showing Elvis Presley wearing a fedora. You will also search in vain for a picture of either Paul Anka or Bobby Curtola sporting a fedora.

Never on Elvis

Can you imagine a picture of Elvis politely tipping his hat to a passing lady friend? A sneak photographer grabbing that picture could destroy the Tennessee singer's image overnight.

I also plowed through hundreds of pictures of Richard Burton, but the image was always the same, the melancholy Welshman with uncovered tousley hair. Miss Elizabeth Taylor wore some knockout hats—but never her partner.

Come to think of it, I never remember the late President John Kennedy wearing a hat unless it was a formal affair demanding a top hat. And his example undoubtedly influenced millions on both sides of the border.

Better Under Cover

Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra have worn hats in public for years. But they have something else in common: receding hairlines that look far better under felt covers. Bob Goulet, who hasn't that problem still sings bareheaded.

I remember stepping into a hat store on impulse one day. The impeccably dressed salesman looked me over coldly and remarked, "Hmmm, don't know if we have anything to fit the shape of that face."

Twenty hats later, I thrust my money into the salesman's hand and bolted with a black fedora. Half way home I paused to look in a mirror and saw a fellow who resembled a pickle bottle.

I threw the hat into a trash can one block later. Somehow I think Elvis and Richard Burton would have approved.

Exam Humor

It may be a bit like smiling in the face of a loaded shotgun, but our correspondents tell us the approaching exams have produced a flurry of sick humor slogans.

A Halifax, N.S., reader spotted a card the other day that read: BE THE FIRST IN YOUR CROWD TO FLUNK. WHY WAIT FOR OTHERS TO SET THE STYLE?

Several Vancouver, B.C., students are making up cards that look like good-will messages when they first arrive in the mail.

Good Luck?

One card shows a beaming face on the cover and the message: GOOD LUCK TO A BRILLIANT STUDENT. Inside it reads: NOT YOU STUPID. (That must do wonders for one's self-confidence.)

Another one states on the cover: WE KNOW YOU'LL WIN A SCHOLARSHIP AND BE THE MOST BRILLIANT STUDENT IN OUR SCHOOL. Inside it adds: UNLESS THEY CHECK YOUR CUFFS.

It must be wonderful to know you have friends like that.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Kathleen Campana, age 10, of Williamsport, Pa., for her question:

What is the centre of an atom?

It takes about 100 million atoms of iron to measure one inch. One atom is far too small to be seen by human eyes. But our scientists can probe the secrets of the world of atoms, weigh and measure and figure until they learn what these bitsy midgets are made of and how they act.

The microscope enlarges small objects so that they can be seen by human eyes. Often the enlarged view is photographed. Not so long ago some scientists thought that the tiny atom would never be photographed, even with the most powerful microscope. Then a different miscroscope was invented, and it can photograph the blurry shadows of even the tiny atom.

But this picture does not show how the bitsy atom is put together. This was figured out bit by bit by the best brains from many countries, and the job took years of patient work. We now know of 103 different atoms. Each kind is a certain size and certain weight. But all atoms are built on the same plan. This plan is somewhat like a miniature solar system with a central sun and a number of orbiting planets.

The central sun is the nucleus of the atom. It is thousands of times bigger and heavier than the orbiting planets, which are called electrons. This nucleus is a wad of tiny fragments. Its particles are tied together with tremendous energy — the same nuclear energy set free when trillions of atoms burst apart in an atomic bomb.

Binds Particles Together

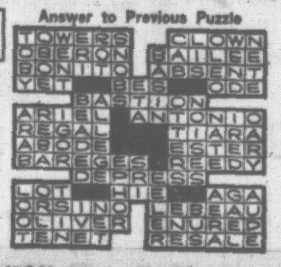

The main building blocks of the nucleus are proton and neutron particles. Each proton has a charge of positive electricity and equals the weight of 1,863 orbiting electrons. A neutron equals the weight of one proton and one electron. It is neutral with no positive or negative charge. The protons and neutrons of the nucleus are glued together by swarms of other particles. Many of them are different mesons. Most mesons weigh 200 or 300 times more than an electron, and some are much heavier. Most of them live only for a tiny fraction of a second.

So far, science has found more than 30 different particles in the nucleus of the atom. Still more may be found. The main particles are protons and neutrons. Most of the others, we suspect, carry on the job of binding and holding the main particles together.

All the fragments in the nucleus carry small bundles of energy. Some mesons seem to be tossed back and forth between the protons and neutrons like baseballs. Experts suspect that they bind the main particles together by toting small bundles of energy back and forth. Most of them live only long enough to whisk from a proton to a neutron or another proton.

Rayner Sees Little Change For RCN With Integration

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI) — Vice-Admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of the naval staff, has predicted that integration of Canada's three armed forces would bring "very little change" to the Royal Canadian Navy.

Rayner told a press conference that in fact the air force and the navy already were "fully integrated" both in operations and in command on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

"In the navy we have already had considerable experience with integration," he said.

The country's top navy man predicted the navy's primary anti-submarine role, its size and the work of naval officers would remain substantially the same under integration.

Rayner estimated naval enrollment "at or near" its authorized strength of 20,700.

The existing functional position of the navy put the sea forces "in a good position" to fit into the new defence scheme outlined by Defence Minister Hellyer's white paper on defence, he said.

He pointed out that the navy already was carrying out two significant tasks assigned to it in the defence White Paper. Its primary role was anti-submarine warfare and its tertiary role the transport of troops. The recent voyage to Cyprus by the aircraft carrier Bonaventure was evidence of the latter.

Rayner, on a two-day visit here for briefings on the latest anti-submarine exercises, quipped about talk of a single uniform for the army, navy and air force.

LIKES DARK BLUE

Emphasizing that the defence White Paper made no such proposal, and that a single uniform wasn't being considered by top military men, he said: "I think dark blue would be wonderful."

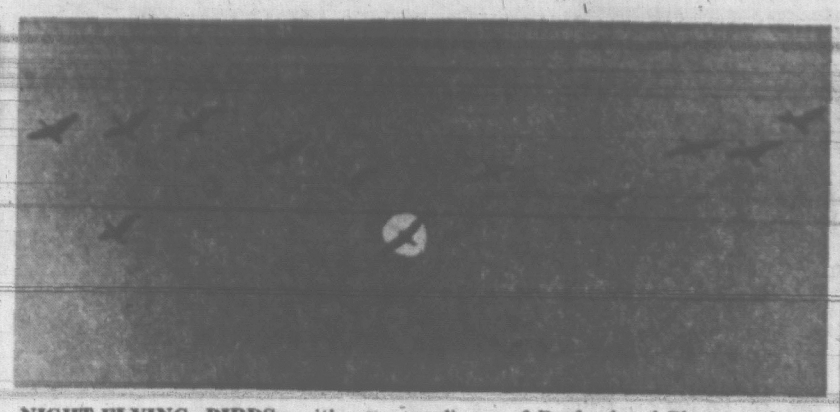

Rayner warned that "in times of great change, it is necessary to remind ourselves of certain constants.

"One of these is the importance of the sea and seapower to Canada and the free world. The more we produce and the greater our trade in world markets, the more we depend on the sea.

"Unquestionably the free and peaceful use of the sea is essential to Canada's progress and prosperity.

The new defence scheme as presented in the White Paper "generates tasks for the navy that are not new to the navy."

The maritime commands on Canada's Atlantic and Pacific coasts combine navy ships and air force planes in daily surveillance of Canadian coastal waters.

DE GAULLE D-DAY DECISION HIT

Slap at Britain and U.S.

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle's decision not to attend the 20th anniversary celebration of the Allies' D-Day landing was assailed today by some French newspapers as a slap at Britain and the United States.

De Gaulle flew to his country home at Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises Wednesday to continue recuperating from his April 17 prostate operation with two weeks of uninterrupted rest.

He had presided over a cabinet meeting Wednesday morning that cancelled financial aid to Tunisia in retaliation for Tunisian expropriation of 675,000 acres of French-owned land.

De Gaulle decided earlier this year to bypass the June 6 celebration of the D-Day invasion of Normandy. He said then he would preside over ceremonies in August marking the 20th anniversary of the landing of French troops on France's Mediterranean coast.

The Conservative newspaper Aurore said in a front-page article today that "Frenchmen feel fairly shocked" by De Gaulle's decision.

Figaro, also a Conservative paper, said in a front-page editorial, "This deplorable absence will cause resentment among all right-minded men."

$24,500 Egg Cup

LONDON (AP) — An egg cup sold Thursday for £8,500 ($24,500). The egg cup was an Elizabeth I silver-gilt ostrich one made in 1584. It was bought by a silver dealer, S. J. Phillips of London, at a Sotheby's auction.

Que. Names 1st Minister Of Education

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's new education department came into being Wednesday and its first minister, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, said it will be a basic instrument in developing the province's "enormous economic and intellectual resources."

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, 44-year-old constitutional expert and close cabinet adviser to Premier Lesage, was sworn in as minister during a ceremony at the legislature offices of Lieutenant-Governor Paul Comtois.

His appointment was no surprise. He campaigned across the province last summer to sell the legislation creating the ministry, recommended by a royal commission a little more than a year ago.

The new department came into being with a stroke of Mr. Comtois' pen as he signed a proclamation officially putting the legislation in to force. The legislation — best known in Quebec as "Le Bill 60" — got final approval March 19.

Snow Blocks Highway In North B.C.

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — A stretch of the Alaska Highway between Mile 73 and Mile 130 north of Fort St. John, B.C., was still blocked with heavy wet snow Wednesday night following a spring snowstorm that dumped up to four feet of snow in some areas. Fort St. John is Mile 49 on the highway.

Cars and trucks were strewn in ditches in the vicinity of Mile 101 on the Alaska Highway and southbound traffic was being stopped at Mile 200.

The federal public works department gave no indication Wednesday afternoon when the highway would be cleared. Highway crews were hampered in cleanup operations by a continued heavy snowfall.

ITALIANS CAPTURE WORLD BRIDGE TITLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Italy defeated the United States to win the world bridge Olympiad Tuesday night by a score of 158-112.

In taking the 60-deal final match, the Italians captured their seventh world championship.

The Italians played almost flawless bridge over the final 20-board session having gone into the final 20 deals with a 119-98 advantage. They raised their margin of victory to 46 international match points by defeating the U.S. team 29-14 in the last 20 deals.

In a contest held to decide third place, Great Britain defeated Canada in a 60-deal match 108-97.

Silent Parade Marks Women's Peace Bid

THE HAGUE (CP) — Mrs. C. B. Macpherson of Toronto, who with several other Canadians joined nearly 1,000 women in a silent parade past the site of the NATO ministerial meeting here Wednesday, said the demonstration was a success.

The women were demanding a halt to the nuclear arms race.

"More attention will be drawn to what is being discussed at the NATO conferences," Mrs. Macpherson said. "The fact that so many women from so many countries are concerned as to when we are going to stop manufacturing weapons of all kinds and start disarmament instead of talking about it must have an impact.

"This sort of demonstration has already had an impact. Five years ago people were talking about a third world war. Now they say it's impossible."

7,000 Left Homeless

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters)—More than 7,000 persons were made homeless by last week's earth tremors and floods in northern Tanganyika and at least 600 were marooned, it was stated here Wednesday.

Esquimalt Adopts Zoning Bylaw Change

Esquimalt council Monday evening adopted without opposition six amendments to its 1957 zoning bylaw, following a public hearing.

Final adoption was also given to the municipality's 1964 budget and the mill rate was formally fixed at 44.

The zoning regulations apply mainly to apartment builders and involve building specifications.

Highlights of new regulations are: buildings less than five units must contain 700 square feet per unit, or, if over five units, 30 per cent of the units must have a minimum of 400 square feet;

Height of buildings shall not exceed 45 feet; no building site can be occupied by buildings to more than 30 per cent of its area; minimum setback of structure must be 25 feet from front property line; minimum landscaped area of the building lot must be 25 per cent, and off-street parking cannot be closer than 10 to a building or within three feet of a property line.

CALL IT 'FAMILY LIFE'

Sex Education Community Topic

Sex education should be renamed "family life" education.

That was the general opinion at a meeting of ministers, teachers, school board officials, doctors, public health workers and YM and YW counsellors held in Metropolitan United Church hall Tuesday.

"It should be a community education project in which everyone can participate," said Rev. G. Howard Turpin, chairman of the Victoria Presbytery of the Untied Church of Canada, who presided at the meeting.

"It should not be limited to the home or the classroom."

All church denominations, including the Roman Catholic church, were represented at the meeting.

PROPER EMPHASIS

"We agreed that all sections of the community should be included in a program of education in which the relationship of sex to family life is given the proper emphasis," Mr. Turpin said.

"Lawyers have an important contribution to make since they virtually pick up the pieces when marriages are wrecked and try to look after the interests of children who suffered from these wreckages."

John Gough, superintendent of Greater Victoria school board, took part in the discussions and said he would call another meeting later this month.

"At that meeting we hope to evolve a new program family life education for the schools," he said.

The committee also agreed that the calibre of the teacher, rather than the type of material used, is the most important aspect of sex or family life education.

Mr. and Mrs. David Treat authorities on sex education from Flint, Michigan, addressed the committee and answered questions.

"It was a very practical session," Mr. Turpin said "and I think we all learned something from it."

The Roman Catholic Church was represented by Monsignor Michael O'Connell.

Networks Boycott TV Emmy Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Columbia Broadcasting System News and the American Broadcasting Company announced Tuesday they are withdrawing support of television's Emmy awards and would not accept any awards they might win.

CBS News, which made the first announcement, described the awards by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as "unprofessional, unrealistic and unfair."

ABC's announcement charged the awards are not determined "on the merits of the programs."

A spokesman for the National Broadcasting Company, asked about that network's attitude on the awards, said NBC "proposes to maintain our active participation in the academy, to have our nominees attend the awards ceremony and—hopefully—to win our fair share of awards."

An ABC spokesman explained that if ABC shows are winners stars of the shows or anyone other than ABC employees are free to accept their awards. But no ABC personnel will show up to accept statuettes, he added.

CBS News President Fred W. Friendly said CBS News "will not participate in the awards ceremony in any manner or form."

"The Emmy awards, in my judgment, are unprofessional, unrealistic and unfair," he said. "Although they purport to be the best judgment of the television industry for its best work, in reality they are the result of pressure, politics and—in the case of news—lack of professional knowledge."

AIRMEN SAW IT, TOO!

Mysterious Object Puzzles Idaho Town

GRANGEVILLE, Idaho (AP)—For two nights now, residents of this north-central Idaho community have watched a mysterious, bright object in the sky to the north.

Sheriff James Fuzzell said Tuesday he wouldn't call it a flying saucer—just a strange object. He said he watched it, along with many other people, and its origin is unexplained.

Fuzzell said it appeared Sunday night and again Monday night for nearly two hours.

"It looked like a street light but a lot bigger," Fuzzell said.

"There were people taking pictures last night. It may be a reflection of light."

Fuzzell said he watched the object through binoculars. He described it as oblong in shape and eight to 10 feet long. He said it moved "back and forth on the level."

Fuzzell said the object appeared to be near the Cottonwood Air Force radar station.

Col. Luif Zendeguy, station commander, said several of his men had reported sighting a bright object.

"Whether it was a star or what I don't know and neither do they," he said. "We are buffaloed. I have forwarded our report to a higher headquarters."

NEW FATHER at 63 is Ed Begley, veteran stage and screen star who last year won Academy Award as best supporting actor. Wife Helen, 38, gave birth Wednesday to daughter in Dublin, where the couple are visiting. The baby, first for the Begleys, was four months premature.

U.S. Court Action Against B.C. Group

SEATTLE (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has filed a complaint in United States district court against a British Columbia gold mining enterprise.

The action was against Wingdam Lightning Creek Mining Co. Ltd., Argus Securities Ltd., and R. A. Brossard, all of Vancouver, B.C.

The SEC asked the court to enjoin the principals from offering or selling common shares and convertible first-mortgage debentures of the Wingdam Co. in interstate commerce or through the mails until they file a registration statement with the commission.

Lack of Work on Space Flights Weakens Heart for Normal Use

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet space doctors are suggesting that "lazy heart" trouble could prevent men from ever going on long space flights.

The heart doesn't have to work as hard in the weightlessness of space as it does under ordinary gravity on earth. The blood has no weight in space, for one thing.

Such a semi-holiday or laziness for the heart "should lead to a weakening of the heart muscle," a Soviet report warns.

The heart is a muscle. And any muscle that isn't used atrophies or grows weaker, rather quickly, as anyone who has had his arm in a sling soon discovers.

But the heart suddenly would have to do its customary work again when spacemen returned to earth. And there would be the heavy stress of meeting a many-fold increase in gravity pull when the spaceship re-entered the atmosphere.

The Soviet doctors say this question calls for cautious study before men go on prolonged flights. They do not say whether they think a 14-day flight to the moon would be possibly too long.

U.S. space physicians already have perhaps detected this same problem.

ALMOST FAINTED

Maj. Gordon Cooper almost fainted when he stepped out of his capsule after 34 hours in space. Blood pooled in his legs from reduced pressure. And Maj. Walter Schirra had a bit of the same type of blood-pressure signs after his flight lasting a little more than nine hours.

American doctors are not sure that this was caused by weightlessness. They plan to increase space flight times gradually to follow any physiological effects.

The Russians are the leading experts on what happens to man in space, because their cosmonauts have flown longer. Valerie Bykovsky circled the earth for 119 hours — almost five full days.

Now, through a Moscow broadcast from the news agency Tass, Dr. Roman Bayevsky and Dr. Oleg Gazenko detail changes in the heart actions of the Soviet spacemen.

The pulse rate slowed and so did electrical conductance of the heart, which regulates heart beat, they said. The heart had lower general working capacity.

"As known, not one of the Soviet cosmonauts suffered any untoward effects in the state of weightlessness," they reported.

"However, for future prolonged flights, it is extremely important to establish the degree of 'weakening' of the heart" for safety both during flight and on return to earth.

A physician consulted by The Associated Press said that not only might the heart weaken, but also the little muscles of the arteries themselves in the absence of gravity and peripheral resistance. The open question, he said, is how long it might be before such weakening becomes serious.

If truly there is any "weakening" hazard, it might be counteracted by creating artificial gravity, as by spinning the spacecraft. Or special exercises might be helpful.

It also is just possible that man's earth-adjusted heart—not his imaginative mind and technology—might deny his dream of exploring the moon and planets.

CENTENNIAL PROJECT

Items Hunted Here For Museum Train

Material for a museum train which will travel across Canada during the centennial year of 1967 is being surveyed here by Dr. George McBeath on behalf of the federal government.

Dr. MacBeath, who is director of New Brunswick Museum, is making a preliminary survey of Canada's historical treasures on behalf of the Centennial Commission in Ottawa.

"It is too early yet to say what form the museum train will actually take," he said, "but it seems certain Indian art from Vancouver Island will be included."

Dr. MacBeath conferred with B.C. archivist Willard Ireland at the Legislative Buildings Wednesday and studied many exhibits in the provincial archives.

"It is a most absorbing study," Doctor MacBeath said, "and I hope to return later this year. Canada is such a diversified country that its possibilities for museum purposes are almost limitless."

MC AT EXHIBITION

English Jokes, Southern Drawl

By RON SUDLOW

Taf Arnold, banjo-playing emcee of the arena stage show at Victoria Exhibition, just ain't whistlin' Dixie. He sings it.

Not only that, he's probably the only singer-comedian who sings with a Southern accent and tells jokes in a British tone of voice.

"I like to do a lot of (Al) Jolson stuff," he says. He plays his steel-stringed banjo without a pick and writes his own jokes and arrangements.

Taf also enjoys doing impressions of British movie comic George Formby.

BORN IN WALES

"I feel I do a pretty good one because I was born there," he says.

Taf—who recently changed his name from Taffy—was born in Wales 35 years ago. He came to North America in 1955, landing at Toronto.

He spent two years there making wood molds for steel castings at A. V. Roe Aircraft Co. while doing a series of one-night stands at local night spots.

He then went to Detroit but his agent shipped him back across the river to Windsor.

"I was booked for three days at the Edgewater Club and I lasted for 37 weeks," he said.

From there he toured what is known as the "Southern circuit," which took him to a Miami Playboy Club, operated by Hugh Hefner, publisher of Playboy magazine.

JUST LIKE HOME

"Playboy Clubs," Taf says, "are much like your own home. Except the rooms are bigger, but the living room is much like the living room in your own house."

"I did four shows a night in a room called The Library which was surrounded by book racks and held about 75 people."

He met his wife Betty seven years ago in Detroit, now his home town.

"We have no children but we do have Soc, a male border collie with 95,000 miles on him. We try to take him everywhere we go."

More Aid For Aged Studied

OTTAWA (CP)—The Catholic Women's League of Canada said Wednesday that Canadian radio and television stations should develop more suitable and interesting programs for older people.

This was one of a series of recommendations made by the league to the special Senate committee studying problems created by the growing numbers of aged Canadians.

"It would be much appreciated if the mass media would develop special programs for their older listeners just as they have developed programs for younger persons," the league said in a brief to the committee.

The city of Toronto in a brief prepared by Mayor Philip Givens urged the federal government to share with municipalities the cost of providing various services to needy aged persons.

NO PROVISIONS FOR AID

There was no provision under the Ontario Welfare Assistance Act for municipalities to receive financial aid to help provide drugs, glasses, dental treatment, dentures and other services to indigent pessons. Expenditures were borne entirely by the municipality.

Other recommendations were that the committee should consider the development of suitable employment opportunities for senior citizens and that it should study types of housing suitable for aged persons living in large cities.

The Catholic Women's League also urged the committee to study the cost of drugs and the possibility of supplying them free to older persons or at least making them exempt from sales tax.

Vancouver Puts Tax Propaganda In 1964 Bills

VANCOUVER (CP)—A statement protesting "the unfair taxation burden" resting on municipalities will be sent to ratepayers here with their 1964 tax bills.

The statement, released today, is included in the annual city council report on the city's financial outlook for 1964.

"We have argued for many years that the city is not receiving fair financial treatment from the provincial government and we still hold this view," the statement says.

The government's aid grant of $2,600,000 this year was the lowest grant, per capita, given any B.C. municipality.

Gordon Taylor, city comptroller, handed the statement to a group of 30 Canadian and United States investment executives of a tour of the lower mainland.

Suez Canal Blocked

PORT SAID (AP) — Cranes and divers worked around the clock Thursday to clear the Suez Canal of a sunken barge blocking the passage north of more than 100 loaded supertankers from the Persian Gulf. Waves from a passing ship sank the cement-loaded barge a week ago about three miles south of the halfway point in the canal.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PEARCE—In loving memory of my dear husband, John H. (Jack) Pearce, who passed away May 14, 1962.

Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand I cannot touch,
Still I have so many memories,
Of the one I loved so much.
God saw him getting weaker,
He did what He thought best,
He put His arms around him
And whispered "Come and rest."
Always remembered by his loving wife, son Len and family.

A STEADY
FLOW OF CASH
Here is a home that literally PAYS FOR ITSELF. Merely select an apartment for your own occupancy and set up housekeeping. On the 1st day of the month you will find, as if by magic, there will be GENTLE KNOCKS at the door—from tenants who provide CASH for the mortgage payment and utilities. Excellent location near Cook and Bay. DO call and ask for more particulars of a general nature. DO NOT call and ask for the address of the property. The owner values her tenants—and if it becomes general knowledge that the property is for sale the GENTLE KNOCKS may cease. Try your mortgage paper as a down payment or offer your present property in exchange. How about giving me a GENTLE CALL on this, so that we can discuss the situation further.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

British programming is strongly influencing and penetrating the American TV industry.

Though seemingly unnoticed by many, there are some American sources picking up format and rights to British television shows with the idea to adapt them to North American tastes, bring in American artists and produce them in the United States.

Stephen

The most notable show to which this has happened is That Was The Week That Was. Leland Hayward picked up the format and rights from BBC-TV. He also imported one of the original satirists, David Frost, and launched it on NBC-TV with so-so success.

The network is to give the program another lease on life. So Frost will remain along with the TW3 girl, Nancy Ames, but, aside from them, an entirely new cast will be hired and given the chance to make it or break it next season.

The show is also to get a change in the script department. Goodman Ace has been signed as a contributing writer on a regular basis.

The all-time smash comedy series "Steptoe and Son" will get a new face for American audiences. There are some suggestions that the central figure in the BBC-TV story, a London funkman and his son, will be converted into a New York antique dealer and his progeny.

Still another example involves "Our Man at St. Marks," a comedy series about the adventures of a local vicar. The show is one which deals with an impossible TV subject and yet it soared high in the ratings in British television. It has been picked up and with development along Ameriman lines will, probably be exposed to us before another viewing season rolls by.

Even CBC-TV's Flashback may be developed into a U.S. series. Word has Jim (Fibber McGee) Jordan and Charles (Amos 'n' Andy) Correll liking the idea of the show. Both men were recent guests on the Toronto-produced program and both men are just itching to get back to work, so they may develop Flashback.

* * *

However discreet, the influences into the American market are forerunners of what could prove a whole new concept of programming, ideas and approaches in the industry.

* * *

TWO BITS: CHEK-TV will cover the annual Victoria Day parade from camera locations along the route. The program which will also be seen on Channel 8, Vancouver, will start at 10:15 a.m. Monday . . . Mike Nichols and Elaine May have been signed for six guest appearances on the Jack Parr show next season.

'Poverty War Begins At Home,' LBJ Told

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two Republican congressmen said today they found shocking squalor on Alabama farm land owned by Mrs. Lyndon Johnson.

"If the President is sincere in his poverty program, he should have demonstrated his sincerity a long time ago by assisting these people who are living in such deplorable conditions on the Johnson land in Alabama," Rep. Dave Martin (R—Neb.) told a news conference.

"We saw people living in deplorable poverty with little evidence of concern by their millionaire landlords," Rep. M. G. Snyder (R—Ky.) said. "We saw nothing here that could not easily be corrected by the Johnsons themselves without a nickel of federal funds or a single federal program, if of course, they really cared."

The two GOP house members described themselves as "amateur poverty investigators."

ADVANCE REBUTTAL

In advance of the GOP news conference, Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to Mrs. Johnson, told reporters that the First Lady had permitted three families to live on her Alabama property instead of converting the land to timber for financial gain as neighboring land owners have done.

According to Mrs. Carpenter, the President's wife charges $5 a month rent and provides the families with clothing. The tenants raise cotton and corn on the property, she said.

. . . QUERY

Pennell a chance to determine the proper course of action.

Parliamentary counsel Dr. Maurice Ollivier advised the committee that where witnesses refuse to answer committees they can be reported to the Commons, and, if they're not MPs, can be called before the bar of the House and admonished by the Speaker.

He said in such action involving an MP, the member would not go before the bar but would speak from his Commons seat.

Mr. Girouard was appearing for the second day as the opening witness in the committee's inquiry into his complaint, made April 27 in the Commons, against Mr. Davey.

He was again grilled by committee members about a 45-minute meeting which he said took place between him and Mr. Davey in the presence of four Liberal MPs. He said the four MPs did not participate in any way in reference to the benefits of joining the Liberals but were witnesses.

CALLED LIAR

About the only bit of new information he added to previous statements was that Mr. Davey said he (Mr. Davey) would try to see Quebec Liberal organizers and attempt to put more pressure on other MPs to join the Liberals, who are in a minority in the Commons.

Earlier in the day, committee proceedings erupted into charges by Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) that the new Conservative MP was lying in saying that he (Mr. Girouard) had never been a member of the Ralliement des Creditiste political party.

After a long procedural argument in which Progressive Conservatives demanded Mr. Gregoire withdraw his charge, chairman Pennell (L—Brant-Haldimand) instructed Mr. Gregoire to od so, and he complied following some objections.

Tabernacle Group To Visit Helsinki For Conference

Six members of the Glad Tidings Pentecostal Tabernacle, North Park Street, will be travelling to Helsinki, Finland, in June for the seventh World Conference of Pentecostal churches.

They are: Miss Doreen Jackson, 3167 Rutledge; Miss Ruth Leland, 3105 Yew; Miss Doreen Mann, 1312 Hillside; Miss Viola Smith, 1091 Joan Crescent; Rev. Frank Funk, 659 Niagara, and Gary Webb, 1706 Garnet.

The group will leave Victoria in early June and travel to Toronto to join other Canadian delegates.

They will leave Toronto on the 10th by charter plane, arriving in London, England, next day.

From there they will begin a tour of eight countries by coach and boat, arriving in Helsinki for the beginning of the conference on the 23rd. The conference in the Laakso Race Ground will last six days.

Bond Issue To Finance Ferry Fleet

The B.C. Ferry Authority will finance five new ships by selling long-term bonds, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today.

He announced earlier this week the award of a $6,000,000 ferry contract, that tenders have been called for another $3,500,000 ferry and that plans are being drawn for three smaller ships.

Mr. Bennett said the new bonds will be sold "from time to time" but gave no indication when the first ones will go on the market.

He said operating profits from the ferry system together with an annual government subsidy amounting to $1,000,000 will be put into a sinking fund to pay off the bonds.

PROFIT NOT LARGE

Mr. Bennett said the ferries are operating at a profit, but not a large one.

And he completely ruled out any immediate possibility of fare reductions.

"There is no profit there that can be used for cutting fares," he said.

All the money is being set aside for debt repayment and none of it goes into the province's general revenue fund, he said.

more appropriately met if the amount were at least double. I know the difficulties and I am not trying to place him (Mr. Pearson) in an embarrassed position."

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas suggested Ottawa pay half of the $1.5 million in damage costs if and when the B.C. government provides the full details of the damage assessment.

The prime minister referred again to "certain principals" which govern federal consideration of such cases. In the circumstances, he added, a grant of a quarter of a million dollars was "not an unreasonable one."

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni), asked Mr. Pearson if he would "at least" consider giving its active support to the local disaster committee's efforts to raise donations. Mr. Pearson said he would be glad to take that into consideration.

Urban Redevelopment Presents Major Problem

By GORDON BELL
Times' Business Editor

Just back from an intensive weekend of study and discussion of the latest trends in urban development, Victoria realtor Don Whyte is more convinced than ever that the key to the future of the city is planning.

Bell

Mr. Whyte was one of 30 senior members of the Canadian Institute of Realtors who met at the Banff School of Fine Arts for a two-day seminar led by top Canadian and American experts in real estate, architecture, economics and law. Co-ordinator of the seminar was Prof. Philip H. White of the faculty of commerce and business administration at UBC.

The need for city planning which will be adhered to for controlled development was emphasized, Mr. Whyte said, but there are certain aspects of planning which need increased attention. A dominant fact is that any visionary plan which refuses to recognize that automobiles are going to continue to come into the city centre is bound to fail.

★ ★ ★

"Cities must be planned for people, for the maximum convenience of people and all their wants and needs," said Mr. Whyte. This will mean a trend to what the experts at the seminar described as "environmental complex units" comprising high rise apartments, complete shopping centres, business and professional quarters and adequate car parking—all in one huge building or base-and-towers structure.

A problem stressed at the Banff meeting, Mr. Whyte said, was difficulty of assembling land for urban redevelopment. Land assembly inevitably means some loss of rights for certain property owners since redevelopment programs will require expropriation of land by city councils. Councillors will need a great deal more technical experience in this phase of development than is usually found on existing councils and they will have to get over their fear of the profit motive in development plans.

★ ★ ★

"This is not such a big problem in the U.S." Mr. Whyte said, "where the pursuit of profit is considered more honorable than it is in Canada. But in this country any developer who comes up with a plan runs into the fact that city council's are nearly always afraid that somebody is going to make a dollar."

Western Canada Steel Ltd. in Vancouver is planning a $750,000 program to increase production by one-half — from 100,000 to 150,000 tons a year.

The $750,000 price tag covers only the cost of new machinery, according to company president G. H. D. Hobbs, and costs of new building and installation will be extra.

The expansion, which will be in the company's rolling mill, is scheduled for full operation by next January to meet expected increased demand for steel in both domestic and foreign markets as well as to provide gerater product diversification.

In addition, Western Canada Steel plans to install facilities for production of heavy steel castings in the ingot division which previously were imported from the east.

A battle for control of the R. J. Jowsey Mining Co. Ltd. is shaping up with a Dutch group expected to make its bid at the annual meeting.

A group headed by John Shemilt, manager of the Netherlands Overseas Corp. Canada Ltd. has bought a large block of shares and, apparently, holds options on other shares which it believes would give it control. Netherlands Overseas is controlled by the Netherlands Overseas Bank.

No date has been set for the annual meeting and the annual report has not yet been mailed.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. is financing $15 million of its $37 million capital expenditure for 1964-65 with an issue of 5¼ per cent sinking fund debentures to be offered at $97 to yield over 5.72 per cent.

A group headed by W. C. Pitfield, Wood, Gundy and Burns Bros. and Denton is underwriting the issue which will be dated June 1 and mature June 1, 1989. The debentures are non-callable for refunding prior to June 1, 1976, by the application of borrowed funds bearing interest at a rate less than 5½ per cent.

The balance of the company's capital expenditures will be financed from cash on hand and from operations.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flax strengthened and feed grains were firm while rye and rapeseed slipped about a cent or more in dull trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Moderate demand was prompted in the flax market by higher continental linseed oil prices.

Shippers and exporters lent support to the oats and barley markets, mostly to barley. Prices were steady.

Rye was aided by upturns in Chicago rye in early trade, but followed Chicago turns downward late in the session.

Rapeseed developed some irregularity. Oriental inquiry was reported, but there were no firm reports of business.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat: Soviet Union 1,400,000 bushels, Germany 215,000, United Kingdom 145,000.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were up ⅛.

CHICAGO (AP) — The May wheat contract was the most spectacular performer again today in the grain futures market but support was somewhat improved and prices generally became firm on the board of trade.

May wheat moved up well over seven cents a bushel at times as short interests again scrambled to cover commitments in the pit. Brokers said it appeared that the shorts had become trapped and went on to buy their way out since no tenders have been made and none are expected.

BY THE WAY—How large were those gateway trees when St. Stephen's Church was built to serve the pioneers of Saanich Peninsula in 1862? How many of those pioneers who attended the dedication rest now in this shady churchyard cemetery? Here under the moss-covered boughs is a rare place for contemplation, and a favorite ground for setting up easel or camera tripod. It's easy here to squeeze your eyes a bit and live for a moment in the dedication year, the same year Victoria was incorporated, when it was an all-day journey out from town by horse and buggy. Men worshipped here and went to wars and women prayed here for their safe return. Christenings and weddings and funerals made it a place of beginnings and endings. So many have stood here before you, yet the little church has time to give pleasure and comfort to all—even as its photograph does.

AP's 'THE TORCH IS PASSED' TOPS 3.6 MILLION

JFK Stories Top Best-Selling List

By SID MOODY

NEW YORK (AP)—The biggest and best sellers in the publishing industry are books about the life, times and assassination of John F. Kennedy.

They range from a thesis Kennedy wrote as an undergraduate at Harvard to the book that won him a Pulitzer Prize.

One runs only several hundred words and sells by the tens of thousands. Some sell by the millions. Some were written and rushed into print after Kennedy's assassination last November. Others had been written earlier and were rushed into reprint. More are coming.

How many of the Kennedy books have been sold is difficult to determine. The publishers know, of course, but many aren't releasing sales figures. They say it is against their policy.

But the largest seller is one that hasn't even made the best-seller lists. It is The Torch is Passed, the Associated Press book on the assassination. By early May it had sold 3,612,000 copies and orders were still coming in for about 35,000 a week.

'TORCH' NOT LISTED

Almost all of the copies have been sold through member newspapers of the news cooperative rather than book stores which is why it is not included on the best-seller lists.

Sales of The Torch is Passed have totalled nearly 73,000 in Canada, also made through newspapers which get The Associated Press service through The Canadian Press.

And more than 300,000 copies have been sold overseas in Spanish, Korean, Japanese, Italian, Dutch, Danish and Swedish editions.

Western Publishing Company, which printed The Torch Is Passed, says the press run is the largest they know of in terms of units produced and sold in so short a period.

Another multi-million seller is Four Days, a joint effort of United Press International and American Heritage. Four Days also has been distributed in book stores by Simon and Schuster.

THIRD IN CANADA

Sales total slightly more than 2,000,000 copies through UPI newspaper subscribers and broadcasting stations and an additional 350,000 to date through book stores. The latter figure has put Four Days atop the U.S. non-fiction best-seller lists for several weeks. It is in third place in Canada.

UPI had no breakdown of sales figures to show what number have been sold in Canada but said it has been substantial. A press run of 40,000 in a Dutch version has been ordered.

Life magazine printed 3,000,000 copies of a memorial Kennedy edition combining its issues on the assassination and funeral of the president. A total of 2,850,000 copies has been sold to date.

Look magazine also put out a memorial Kennedy edition but declines to disclose sales.

High among top sales figures for 1963 was Profiles in Courage, Kennedy's own Pulitzer Prize winner. Long a top seller after publication in the 1950s, it had gone through 30 printings. It sold "fantastically well" after the assassination, Harper Row, the publishers, said.

Harper has put out a special edition of Profiles in Courage with a foreword by Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, the president's brother. A newspaper account said 100,000 copies of this edition have been printed.

Belgian MDs Plan Second Strike Call

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Belgian doctors' unions have taken steps to call another strike at short notice if the negotiations resumed last month with the government break down, medical sources here have reported.

These emergency steps were taken because of new difficulties in the negotiations, the sources said. Negotiations were resumed April 22 following an 18-day, country-wide strike of the country's 12,000 doctors.

Although it was hoped it would not be necessary to go to the extreme length of calling another strike, the doctors called a "state of alert" of all the country's medical unions in case no solution can be found to the present deadlock.

The sources said that the twice-weekly seeret talks between the medical unions and the the government have not taken place for the last week because of serious differences of opinions between the two sides.

The main difficulty was reported to be the provision of the new national health insurance law.

It states that patients, who go to doctors who have signed the new rules, will be reimbursed at a higher level than those who go to private doctors.

The Socialists, who together with the Social Christians make up the present Belgian coalition government, insist that this provision should be maintained.

This has met with strong opposition from the medical unions who claim such a measure would amount to unfair discrimination against patients, the sources said.

South African Press Report Raises Storm

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — South Africa's Press Commission, which condemned most of the world press in a mammoth report Monday, raised a storm in Parliament Tuesday night.

Opposition members attacked its findings as "fatuous" and "verbiage" and demanded to know why the report was withheld from the cabinet prior to publication.

Mrs. Helen Suzman, Progressive member of Parliament, declared she had "seldom read anything more fatuous and more completely wasteful of time" than the commission's report.

Reading a list of "famous name" foreign correspondents condemned by the commission for bad reporting of South Africa, she referred to the "terrible spectre of the commission handing out conduct marks on these people."

Mrs. Suzman referred to British journalist and author Rebecca West, "one of the world's greatest writers," some of "the top men from Reuters," top men from the London Daily Express, all of whom were categorized by the commission as sending "bad" reports.

"These names," she declared, "will remain long after the names of the members of the press commission have been forgotten."

Mrs. Suzman said Reuters was criticized for failing to report there was no desire among members of the non-white groups to be admitted into white society.

She asked why it was then the government had been at pains to bring in legislation such as the Group Areas and Riotous Assembly Acts—"legislation designed for the specific purpose of keeping the races apart?"

Watts Drops Out Of Byelection

The Oak Bay byelection on May 23 was reduced to a contest of two today with the withdrawal of candidate John D. Watts.

"Now that they have two good contestants running with opposing views I have decided to withdraw from this election," Mr. Watts announced.

Being chairman of the Greater Victoria Day Celebrations Committee Mr. Watts said, would prevent him from taking an active part in the election campaign.

Also, withdrawing at this time would allow him time to complete a development study course started earlier this year. But he indicated he might consider running in the next December election.

New-comer Eric Makovski and former councillor Fred Hawes are the only two candidates running for the seat vacated by Fred Robinson. The seat will be up for re-election in December.

Nominations closed at 12 noon.

NEW SOVIET WARNING AGAINST CUBA ATTACK

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union warned again today an attack on Cuba would bring immediate retaliation.

The threat was contained in an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, which was devoted to the 9th anniversary of the Warsaw Pact. It did not mention the United States by name.

"In spite of the clear-cut warnings by the U.S.S.R., certain quarters continue hatching plans of attacking socialist Cuba, though they ought to know this would have the most serious consequences for the aggressors."

Neither Moscow radio nor the official Soviet news agency Tass have made any mention of a raid by Cuban exiles on Cuba's coast.

FOOD, DRUGS

New U.S. Curb On Cuba Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. moved today to block Cuban feelers for the purchase of American drugs by tightening export restrictions of both food and drugs to the Communist-controlled island.

The action did not ban food and medicine shipments completely, but requires that each shipment be reviewed on an individual basis by the commerce department.

Cuba apparently has been scouting the American market for a large-scale deal on drugs. Several firms have asked the department for its view on drug deals ranging in value from $10 million to $12 million.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D—Fla.) said the commerce action is "well timed in light of our efforts to halt allied trade with Cuba."

"This action to be taken by the U.S. government will offer proof to our allies that any trade with Cuba is an affront to freedom," he added.

A department spokesman said it "wishes to be informed of all intended trade with Cuba" in the future so as to be in a position "to act according to the national interest of the United States."

The spokesman said decisions would be made on individual shipments "in the light of all relevant circumstances."

GIFTS ALLOWED

Gift parcels still will be permitted under general licence so as not to interrupt such relief and humanitarian acts on the part of individuals, the department said.

Exports to Cuba — except non-subsidized foodstuffs, medicines and medical supplies — were banned on Oct. 19, 1960. During the 1950s, American exports to Cuba averaged about $300 million a year.

Following the ban, the exports dropped off to less than $14 million in 1961.

At the end of 1962 and through the first half of 1963, special relief shipments were sent to Cuba in exchange for the release of prisoners captured during the abortive Bay of Pigs attack. These shipments swelled the export total by $13 million in 1962 and $36 million in 1963.

Aside from these relief shipments, merchandise sent to Cuba during the past two years was valued at $407,000 and $76,000.

The department sought to make clear that today's move did not constitute an embargo on exports of food and medicine to Cuba. It simply means that the government wants to take a closer look at these shipments.

U.S. Denies Any Part In Raid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. state department today issued a sweeping denial that the United States was involved in any way in a hit-and-run Cuban exile attack on the southern coast of Oriente province Wednesday.

Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he was authorized to "categorically deny" that any U.S. agency, including the Central Intelligence Agency, was involved or supported in any way in the raid. The attack was by a party led by refugee leader Manuel Artime on a sugar mill at Pilon.

The Castro government claimed the raid was made with a launch owned by the CIA.

Officials here indicated extreme displeasure of the fact that Artime's organization, the Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR), had issued its so-called "communique" about the attack from Miami. They acknowledged this was embarrassing to the United States and indicated that something might be done to prevent a recurrence.

Exile forces in Miami say their attack on a sugar mill and port in eastern Cuba is just the beginning in their war of sabotage and nerves aimed at toppling Fidel Castro's Communist regime.

The Revolutionary Recovery Movement, a military action group, said in its "first war communique" Wednesday that a combined raid by seaborne commandos and guerillas already in the hills gained control of the port of Pilon for three hours and left the sugar mill burning. It said other raids would come soon.

EXILES NOT INJURED

The exiles claimed they suffered no losses but said there was "tenacious fighting" with "a numerically superior Communist army." A spokesman for the invaders said Castro forces suffered considerable losses.

While commandos held Pilon, said the communique, engineers set off demolition charges at the mill, then withdrew. Guerrillas returned to the hills, the exiles said. Some townspeople in the area welcomed the attackers, they added.

Former Socred Refuses To Answer Probe Query

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands were made in the Commons privileges committee today that MP Gerard Girouard be reported to the Commons for refusing to comply with instructions to answer a question.

Liberal and New Democratic members voiced the demand after chairman Larry Pennell (L—Brant - Haldimand) ruled that Mr. Girouard must tell the committee whether he discussed with any of his former Social Credit colleagues a bid by Liberal national organizer Keith Davey to have Mr. Girouard join the Liberals.

Mr. Girouard, MP for Labelle who last month switched to the Progressive Conservatives from Social Credit, told the committee:

"I refuse to reply."

His statement came in the wake of a committee vote of 14 to 9 that Mr. Girouard must make a reply.

Mr. Girouard has told the committee under oath that Mr. Davey offered him certain benefits such as a fat election campaign fund to switch to the Liberals.

He said he would not reply so as to avoid involving other persons in the committee's inquiry into his allegations against Mr. Davey.

He said under questioning by Conservative and Liberal MPs he had refused to "play politics" and he wouldn't allow the committee proceedings to become a "political show."

The question he rejected was posed by Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) who demanded that chairman Pennell report Mr. Girouard to the Commons for his action. Mr. Fisher was backed by Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard).

Mr. Pennell originally gave a ruling that Mr. Girouard did not have to reply to Mr. Fisher on the ground that the question was irrelevant.

UPSET RULING

However, by a vote of 14 to 9 the committee upset his ruling with eight Progressive Conservatives and one Social Credit MP being outvoted by Liberals, New Democrats and Creditistes.

In the light of the vote, Mr. Pennell then instructed Mr. Girouard to reply to the question.

A procedural wrangle followed and the committee adjourned for lunch to give Mr.

'A Token Payment' —Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennet today called for more Alberni disaster aid from the federal government.

He refused to accept the suggestion that Ottawa will pay only $250,000—the amount announced by Prime Minister Pearson.

He termed the sum—only one-third of what B.C. asked—"a token payment."

"I would take this as an initial payment," he said.

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. government has already contributed a total of $800,000 disaster aid—and will not pay any more.

"That's our final figure," the premier said.

"Now it's up to the federal government to do their share."

B.C. asked Ottawa to pay half the $1,500,000 net depreciated loss caused by tidal waves on Vancouver Island's west coast after the March 27 Alaska earthquake.

Mr. Bennett said Ottawa gets 80 per cent of the tax revenue from the province, and therefore should pay its fair share of disaster aid.

When first informed of Mr. Pearson's announcement, the premier asked: "Is that all?"

He recalled that Mr. Pearson had not answered either of his two telegrams about disaster aid.

NEVER ASKED

The prime minister said that the fact he had received no detailed breakdown of the damage was one reason for the decision to pay only $250,000.

"He never asked for any more information," the premier replied.

Mr. Bennett said the cabinet-appointed Alberni disaster committee — "a non-partisan committee"—would be happy to supply any additional information requested by Ottawa.

B.C. has already approved payment of $750,000 for compensation to flood victims, and also has given the local Alberni valley disaster fund a gift of $50,000.

The total damage estimate of $1,500,000 was decided by 25 independent appraisers hired by the provincial government.

Edward Benson, chairman of the Alberni valley and west coast of Vancouver Island disaster fund, said the amount "was well below what was expected by the committee."

The committee was to start today to pay compensation to home owners and operators of small industries, he said.

Mr. Benson was unable to say what percentage of damage will be covered.

"It appears it will not be 100 cents on the dollar or anywhere near it."

Mr. Benson said the fund is still $400,000 short of the assessed total damage figure.

"WATCHDOG" assignment as conciliator in an effort to head off war between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus has been given to Dirk Stikker, outgoing secretary-general, by NATO. Appointment was approved at closing session of three-day council meeting in The Hague today. Both Greece and Turkey accepted the appointment.

CYPRUS

Canada Plan Accepted

THE HAGUE (CP)—Canada's plan for a NATO mediation role between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus has been generally accepted, it was learned today as the North Atlantic alliance ministerial meeting drew to a close.

Wording of the agreement has yet to be worked out but a source emerged from the conference room to say that Greece and Turkey had agreed to a mediation role by Secretary-General Dirk Stikker of The Netherlands.

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada had put forward the plan on the basis of a 1956 formula evolved by NATO's "three wise men"—Canada's Lester Pearson, Italy's Gaetano Martino and Norway's Halvard Lange.

The formula, now part of article one of the NATO charter, provides that on request the secretary-general can mediate between disputing NATO members.

It is stressed here that NATO does not propose any mediation role in Cyprus itself—that is an affair for the United Nations—but only between Greece and Turkey.

KEY ISSUE OF MEETING

Cyprus was one of the key issues up for discussion among members of the 15-nation alliance on the final day of their three-day ministerial meeting.

The sources said Stikker, who retires as NATO secretary-general Aug. 1, would have a conciliator's role limited only to relations between Ankara and Athens and he would play no part in attempting to solve questions on the island itself.

Details on Stikker's role were being worked out for inclusion in the communique summing up the spring meeting.

Opposition Suggests Increase

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A $250,000 donation to the Alberni disaster fund — $500,000 lower than the amount requested by the B.C. government — was offered today by the federal government.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the government's decision in the Commons, and immediately prompted opposition suggestions that the federal contribution should be higher.

Mr. Pearson, in reply to these requests, said he could give no assurance that any higher grant would be provided but would give the reconsideration asked for.

In his statement, Mr. Pearson acknowledged that the B.C. government had proposed equal sharing of the March 27 flood damage between Victoria and Ottawa; on B.C. Premier Bennett's estimate this would have been $750,000 each.

MADE EARLY OFFER

"As soon as the news of the damage was received," Mr. Pearson told the House, "the government made an offer of assistance to the government of B.C., subject to the usual conditions, namely, that the federal government be given details of the extent of the damage and an indication that the cost was beyond the local municipalities, and provincial government.

"We still haven't got a copy of the report of the assessors retained by the B.C. government to survey the damage, but we have been notified that the net depreciated loss amounts to approximately $1.5 million.

"While Premier Bennett of course did not maintain that this sum was beyond the ability of his province he proposed that one half be met by the federal government.

"It has not been the practice of the federal government to meet half the cost when the scale of damage was not high. W are making a grant to the disaster fund rather than following the policy proposed by the provincial government, and we have decided to make a grant of $250,000 to the Alberni disaster fund."

SUPPORTS POLICY

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in comment on the announcement said he was in entire agreement with the policy behind the grant. But he went on to say that the grant, "while substantial, is considerably less than members (of the Commons) generally would have expected, regard being taken of the loss suffered by so many private people."

"Is there any possibility of reconsidering and increasing that amount?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. "I think Canadians as a whole would feel that the situation could be

WOMEN DEFEND SIDEWALK ROMEOS

'Please, Don't Pinch Pinchers'

ROME (AP) — The American Women's Club of Rome rallied today to the defence of Italian sidewalk wolves. It warned that official plans to curb them would take much of the romance out of romantic Italy for women tourists.

Italian officials announced recently they would take steps against the Romeos because many foreign women complained they had been molested.

The women's association, which includes hundreds of wives of U.S. diplomats and businessmen, defended the romantic tendencies of the Italian male in an unsigned article in its newspaper.

The article, titled A Pinch of Romance, declared the amorous tweaks and "carefree leers of Italian men" were an integral part of Italys appeal for the visiting woman.

"Every woman over 30 views a trip to Italy with flutters of excitement which owe nothing to the anticipation of viewing ruins," said the article. "What is the first question confronting the returned female tourist in the suburbs? Certainly not 'did you see the Sistine chapel?' But 'did you get pinched?'

"For an American woman, a mature, responsible new-world product who is accustomed to walking a street as if invisible . . . the fact that Italian men aged 17 to 80 will, without exception, turn their heads at her passing, is a thing of wonder and joy.

"It may take a bit of getting used to but it's an adjustment women are willing to make. The Italian attitude is the important thing. 'You're a woman and therefore worthy of admiration' is so charmingly un-American.

"Let the tourist bureau control prices and museum hours, but take care of any unesthetic handling of the Italian Romeos."

Financial, Economic Woes Loom for Liberal Regime

OTTAWA—Amid all its mistakes and liabilities the Pearson government enjoys one immeasurable asset. The current Canadian boom relaxes all political tensions, even the tension of racial conflict. Without the boom, indeed, the government's position would probably be impossible by now. No critic dares to attack prosperity.

Hutchison

But the boom is less the result of good management than of good luck. It began with the business recovery of the United States more than three years ago, it rides on an abundant export market today and already is beginning to confront the economists with a Keynesian nightmare.

Mr. Diefenbaker can rightly claim that the boom was well launched before his defeat by the Liberal party which promised to "get the economy moving" though it was then moving at breakneck speed. Mr. Pearson can claim that the nation, except for the unemployed in a few depressed areas, is highly prosperous under his administration.

In truth, the only decisive act of government affecting the economic climate was the devaluation of Canada's dollar in 1962 and it was not undertaken as a positive policy but as a negative surrender to a currency crisis.

For our present good fortune we have little reason to thank the politicians on either side. And now, despite their self-congratulation and retrospective wisdom, we are heading into serious trouble.

This trouble, disguised for the moment, has two interdependent sides, financial and economic.

Financially, the Pearson government is somewhat better managed than its predecessor but that is not saying much, since the Diefenbaker government almost precipitated national bankruptcy.

Extra Burden

To be sure, Mr. Walter Gordon rejoiced prematurely in his March budget speech that he had reduced the deficits of the preceding two years by a third, down to $455 million. Within a month, however, the new taxation deal with the provinces had placed an extra annual burden of about $200 million on the federal treasury.

This cost will not appear immediately but must be absorbed during the next few years and it cannot be absorbed without a sharp rise in federal taxes.

Though firmly committed to such an increase, the government has not decided where, or in what form, it should be applied. In any event all Canadians must pay more taxes to a

ONE OF THE YOUNGEST 4-H Club members to take part in day-long activities Wednesday at Jaycee fair was 10-year-old Maureen Corbett and her four-month-old Jersey calf Darkie. Some 250 youngsters from 14 clubs participated in 4-H judging, educational displays and demonstrations.

IT WAS A BIG DAY at Jaycee fair Wednesday for 4-H clubber Kathy Smethurst whose yearling lamb, a Cheviot-Suffolk cross helped her place second in sheep showmanship. Kathy also took blue ribbons in junior hook weaving and 4-H baking competitions.

4-H Turns Fair Into Barnyard

The bawling of calves and bleating of sheep drowned out the raucous midway Wednesday as some 250 4-H clubbers turned Victoria Exhibition grounds into a barnyard.

The 4-H club members, who range in age from 10 to 21, brought with them more than 125 animals including 86 calves, 25 goats and 25 sheep from 14 clubs on Southern Vancouver Island.

"Our 4-H day is getting to be so big I think we should consider giving them two days instead of one next year," commented agriculture chairman George Robinson.

"They started bringing in their animals at 10 p.m. Tuesday and the barn was bulging at the seams by the following afternoon," added Jaycee Paul Howe.

The club members demonstrated their projects, showed their livestock and set up static educational displays concerning agriculture topics.

Top educational display was constructed by Saanich Ayrshire Club which explained how better forage could be grown for livestock.

Luxton Garden Club placed second, showing uses of fertilizer, and a wool display by Saanich Lamb Club was judged third.

Demonstration winners were North Saanich Goat Club, first; Saanich Home Arts Club, second, and Luxton Garden Club, third.

BEST BARN

Saanich Holstein Club had the best barn stall.

Most of the animals judged were yearlings raised by the youngsters from infancy.

"Many of the lambs exhibited were rejects from breeders and the youngsters raised them from bottle feedings," said 4-H leader Sid Smethurst.

The animals were judged on their depth, width and bone structure, shape of face and neck and grooming.

Aside from learning about the care and breeding of farm animals 4-H club members also receive leadership and public speaking training.

The four 'H's on their clover leaf insignia stand for Health, Happiness, Heart and Hand.

Recreation Vote Tuesday

PORT ALBERNI — Ratepayers were urged by city parks and recreation director Duncan Russell to turn out and vote Tuesday on the $175,000 money bylaw to finance improved recreation facilities.

Only 14 people turned out at a public meeting this week to hear Mr. Russell outline the bylaw.

Wednesday Mr. Russell went before the Chamber of Commerce urging them to support the recreation bylaw.

Plans include a swimming pool filtration plant, an automatic chlorinator for the pool, development of Tenth Avenue Park to provide two soccer pitches and four baseball diamonds, a field house and caretaker's quarters, and improvements at the arena including seating, a skater's lounge and a permanent floor.

He said it is too late to have swimming pool installations changed in time for this summer. But, if the bylaw passes, every effort will be made to have the park ready for the soccer season.

There are 5,700 youngsters in the district's school system now, and almost as many preschool children who will soon be needing recreation facilities.

PORT ALBERNI WORKERS REJECT REPORT

Office Staff Votes for Strike

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Office workers at the MacMillan, Ploedel and Powell River Company pulp and paper mill here voted Wednesday to take strike action against the company to enforce demands on wages and working conditions.

The office workers, members of Local 15 of the Office Employees International Union, took the strike vote after turning down the majority report of a conciliation board brought down April 13. The company had accepted the board recommendations for a pay increase of five per cent.

Bill Lowe of Vancouver, international vice-president of the union, said the five per cent increase would have been less than many employees would have received without the union.

He also charged the company tried to "buy off" the office workers with a letter distributed prior to the vote promising pay increase ranging from 11 to 20 per cent.

There was no immediate comment from company officials.

Union Names Delegate

Union representative on a fisheries conciliation board requested last week will be Ben Swankey, of Trade Union Research Bureau, United Fishermen's business agent Jack Nichol said Wednesday.

A management representative and chairman are expected to be appointed in about a week and the first meeting should be within 14 days.

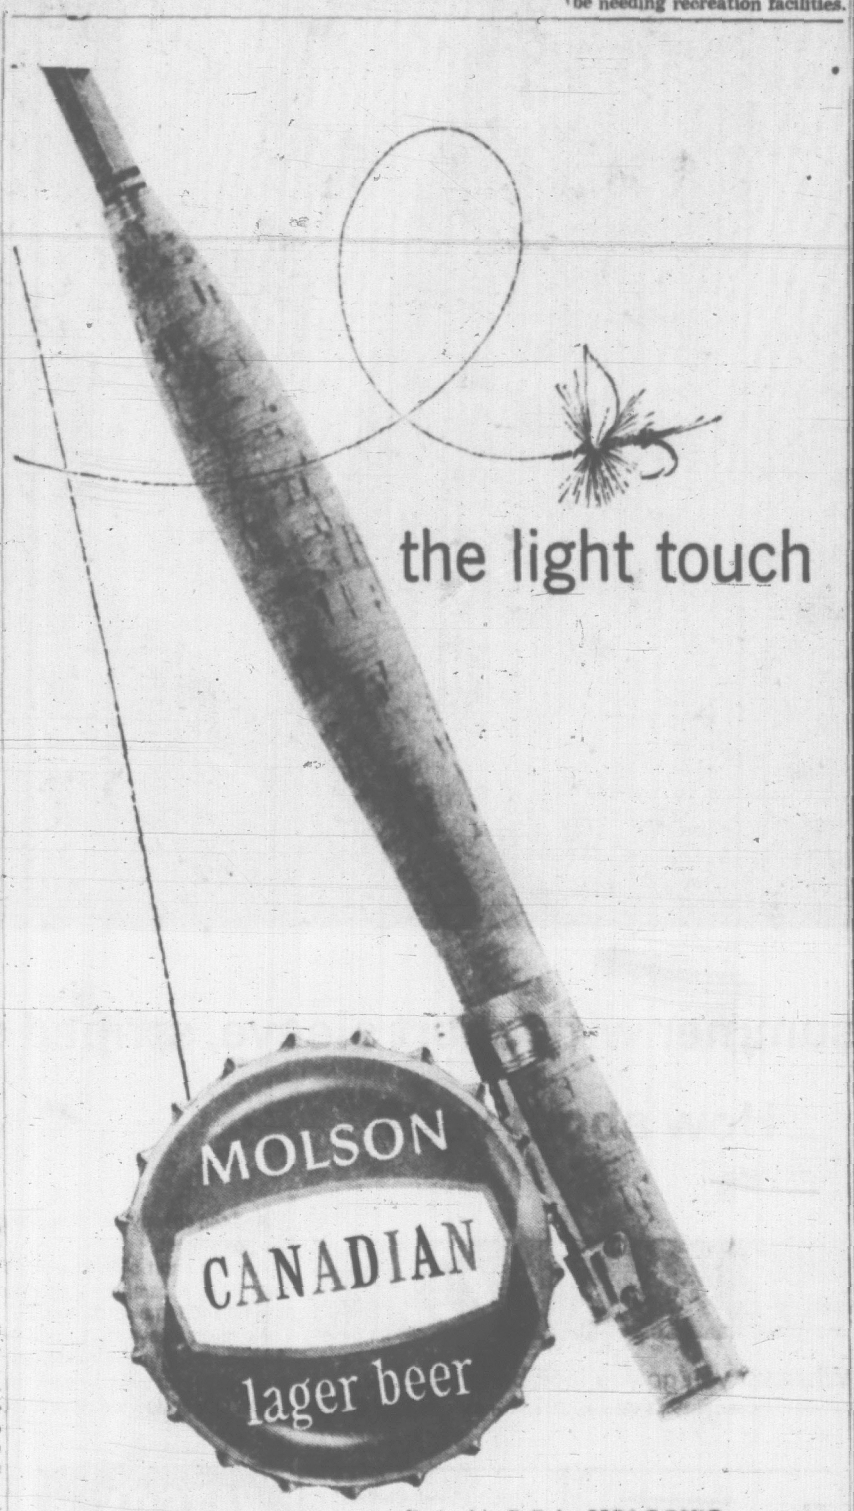

United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union and the coast fishing industry failed to come to agreement with help of conciliation officer George Carmichael over a 1964 agreement for shore workers and tendermen.

Mr. Nichol accused the industry of a lack of faith in bargaining, and of pinning too much hope on the conciliation officer.

"He's not a magician," Mr. Nichol commented.

B.C. Fisheries Association represents the industry in negotiations with the union, which seeks wage improvements for cannery and shore workers ranging from 10 to 20 cents an hour, plus $15 a month basic increase and $2 a ton for tendermen.

Within a few days it is expected that the other half of the industry—the fishermen who sell to processors will have its first meeting of the season on fish prices.

ADVANCED AIRCRAFT design concept details were presented to American Helicopter Society meeting in Washington today by officials of Lockheed-California Co. The craft—half airplane and half helicopter—pictured here in drawing released by aircraft firm would combine the hovering qualities of a helicopter with the range and speed of a fixed-wing airplane. The big rotor blade would be used for vertical takeoff, landing and hovering manoeuvres. (AP Wirephoto.)

government elected, like its predecessor, on a promise to reduce them.

Already the income tax has been raised to cover an increased old age pension, the sales tax has been imposed on the construction industry and some two years hence new taxes will be levied on corporations and workers to finance a contributory pension scheme.

If any taxpayer was innocent enough to imagine that taxes were going down because the politicians said so he can forget this pleasant illusion. Taxes are going up and, with them, the cost of all production.

Fiscal Misery

Nevertheless, the nation is still further from a balanced budget than it appeared to be in the March budget and the famous rocks on which Mr. Gordon foresaw shipwreck last year have not receded. When all his plans go awry he must feel a secret sympathy for Mr. Donald Fleming, a companionship of fiscal misery.

If Mr. Gordon could be sure that the boom would last indefinitely he could count on ever-increasing yields of revenue, perhaps sufficient to hold the deficit at its current figure or gradually eliminate it, provided, of course, that he can arrest his spiralling expenditures.

As he has warned repeatedly, he cannot count on the boom, at its existing level anyway. Sooner or later, he says, the economy must level out in its historic cycle.

For the present the boom is far larger than the public has realized. Preliminary figures, not yet published, indicate that in the six months ending March 31 the gross national product grew at the almost incredible rate of over 10 per cent.

Forced Draught

It moved in this period under the forced draught of huge wheat sales, the winter housing program and the construction industry's advance buying to escape the increased sales tax imposed this spring. Now the pace shows signs of slackening and the year's total growth is expected to be around 6 per cent, or roughly that of 1963.

In historic terms this would be gigantic growth, almost equal to that of 1962 when Mr. Diefenbaker was being attacked by the Liberals for failing to make the economy move. But in this buoyant tide of prosperity certain basic facts are conveniently forgotten.

The Diefenbaker and Pearson governments, while solemnly dedicated to the theory of Keynesian finance, have stood it on its head.

If Keynes' principles of cyclical budgeting were being enforced, instead of being merely worshipped in the abstract, the federal treasury would now be accumulating large revenue surpluses and planning deficits, with tax reductions, as soon as the economy turned down again.

Worst Time

On the contrary, the government is accumulating heavy deficits and planning tax increases likely to begin at the worst possible time when the boom tapers off, as Mr. Gordon expects. The Keynesian cycle has been applied in reverse.

Moreover, the relaxing climate of the boom has postponed any serious attempt to correct the economic distortions, the excessive production costs and the weaknesses of many soft industries that revealed themselves in the last recession and were quickly forgotten as soon as business improved.

While the politicians exult in good times and the electorate is weary of political debate, the better economists of the government are alarmed by two obvious dangers.

The first is that the boom—already 38 months old and longer than any such period since the last war—may not maintain anything like its present momentum for more than another year or so.

Certainly no economist in the government or the Bank of Canada will guess the prospects beyond next spring, since everything must turn mainly on the health of United States business, not on Canadian policy, as the politicians like to pretend.

Old Spiral

Secondly, the boom has started to heat up the old, familiar spiral of wages, costs and prices in this year's labor negotiations. One of the ablest economists in Ottawa believes that the government's central problem (apart from Quebec) is an inflation sure to appear openly, in the cost of living, before next spring.

His opinion is not widely shared so far. In Ottawa and Washington the cheerful graphs and sleek official speeches assert that prosperity will continue unbroken without any price rise worth worrying about.

All history, and Europe's current inflation, deny this assumption but the American election campaign, now well under way, compels the government to proclaim it, at least until the November polls close. And in Ottawa a boom that Canada inherited by good luck from the world market is naturally interpreted, by Liberals and Conservatives alike, as a triumph of good management by Mr. Pearson or Mr. Diefenbaker.

Northern Dancer In Just Under the Wire

BALTIMORE (AP) — Northern Dancer, this year's Kentucky Derby winner, just got in under the wire and gave officials several anxious moments today when six three-year-olds were nominated for Saturday's 88th running of the Preakness at Pimlico.

There were just three minutes to the 10 a.m. deadline when trainer Horatio Luro tossed in the name of Northern Dancer. Luro explained that he was late because he wanted to give the Toronto - bred colt a gallop around the track first.

Hill Rise, beaten by a neck in the Derby, at Louisville, May 2, was the third to check in for a return shot at the Canadian flyer. Other entries were the Scoundrel, Quadrangle, Roman Brother and Big Pete.

The rail position was drawn for Big Pete and ranging out from him in the starting gate will be Roman Brother, Quadrangle, Northern Dancer, The Scoundrel and Hill Rise.

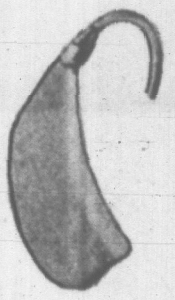

Luro, the casual Argentine, said two hours before the entry box closed that he would be in no hurry to get to the racing secretary's office and that he planned to be there around 10:30. When advised the deadline was half an hour earlier, he said "I'll be there, but first I must work my horse."

Northern Dancer galloped two miles, going the last half-mile in around 55 seconds. Luro then strolled into the secretary's office—three minutes before closing time. He stopped and chatted with friends.

Finally, Charles Maclennan, racing secretary, reminded him to enter the booth or he would be shut out.

Luro just made it.

The entrance fee was $1,000 for each horse. The six owners must ante up another $1,000 Saturday to start in the Preakness, which has a post time of 5:45 p.m.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drinking driving offences in the city are occurring at a record-setting pace.

The total of 512 such offences in the first four months of 1964 compares with 384 last year.

Total arrests for the offences last year set a record one-year figure of 1,156.

An increase in fines in 1962 has failed to curb the growing amount of offences each year.

Rites Today For Pioneer City Woman

Funeral service for one of Victoria's pioneer residents were held today at 3:30 p.m. in Hayward's Chapel.

Mrs. Annie Wallace Ward, who came to Victoria in 1890, died Monday at the age of 98.

Born in London, England, Mrs. Ward came to Victoria with her uncle, Fleming Hewett, her sister and a cousin, and spent her first night sleeping in a shack where Eaton's parking lot now stands.

Her husband, William Ward, who died in 1941, was owner of the original Scotch Bakery on the east side of Douglas near Johnson.

Always active in many organizations Mrs. Ward cooked meals for the Veterans of France in their quarters over the old Poodle Dog restaurant after the First World War and helped them with Christmas parties.

She was an active member of the Ancient Order of Foresters, Court Maple Leaf, the ladies auxiliary of St. Andrew's and Caledonia Society and First United Church.

She is survived by a son, Horace; a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Mason, both of Victoria; four grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and a niece, Mrs. Gordon Kerr of Burnaby.

'Rangers' From Formosa To Aid South Viet Nam?

TAIPEI (Reuters) — The United States has given tacit approval to Nationalist China to prepare troops for "harassing raids" against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam, reliable sources said today.

The sources predicted Formosa might likely offer South Viet Nam contingents of well-trained special forces, but not regular troops.

If actually employed the Formosan "rangers" would probably operate under the command of Chinese Nationalists themselves, according to the sources.

One of the reasons for the "rangers" operating under nationalist command was because of nationalist experience in guerrilla warfare against the Communists on the mainland.

Another reason was that the troops fighting alone or with the South Vietnamese would not compromise the U.S. policy not to encourage the nationalists to take offensive operations.

Meanwhile, both Nationalist Chinese and American military authorities did not throw any light on the reports.

Lt.-Cmdr. John Mackercher, spokesman to the United States Formosa defence command, said he had "no comment to make at present."

Rear-Admiral Pei Yu Fun, nationalist defence ministry spokesman, said "I have no knowledge of it."

FOOD, DRUGS

New U.S. Curb On Cuba Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. moved today to block Cuban feelers for the purchase of American drugs by tightening export restrictions of both food and drugs to the Communist-controlled island.

The action did not ban food and medicine shipments completely, but requires that each shipment be reviewed on an individual basis by the commerce department.

Cuba apparently has been scouting the American market for a large-scale deal on drugs. Several firms have asked the department for its view on drug deals ranging in value from $10 million to $12 million.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D—Fla.) said the commerce action is "well timed in light of our efforts to halt allied trade with Cuba."

"This action to be taken by the U.S. government will offer proof to our allies that any trade with Cuba is an affront to freedom," he added.

A department spokesman said it "wishes to be informed of all intended trade with Cuba" in the future so as to be in a position "to act according to the national interest of the United States."

The spokesman said decisions would be made on individual shipments "in the light of all relevant circumstances."

U.S. Denies Any Part In Raid

The Castro government claimed the raid was made with a launch owned by the CIA.

CYPRUS

Canada Plan Accepted

THE HAGUE (CP)—Canada's plan for a NATO mediation role between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus has been generally accepted, it was learned today as the North Atlantic alliance ministerial meeting drew to a close.

Wording of the agreement has yet to be worked out but a source emerged from the conference room to say that Greece and Turkey had agreed to a mediation role by Secretary-General Dirk Stikker of The Netherlands.

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada had put forward the plan on the basis of a 1956 formula evolved by NATO's "three wise men"—Canada's Lester Pearson, Italy's Gaetano Martino and Norway's Halvard Lange.

The formula, now part of article one of the NATO charter, provides that on request the secretary-general can mediate between disputing NATO members.

It is stressed here that NATO does not propose any mediation role in Cyprus itself—that is an affair for the United Nations—but only between Greece and Turkey.

KEY ISSUE OF MEETING

Cyprus was one of the key issues up for discussion among members of the 15-nation alliance on the final day of their three-day ministerial meeting.

The sources said Stikker, who retires as NATO secretary-general Aug. 1, would have a conciliator's role limited only to relations between Ankara and Athens and he would play no part in attempting to solve questions on the island itself.

Details on Stikker's role were being worked out for inclusion in the communique summing up the spring meeting.

Stikker recently visited Athens and Ankara for talks with ministers there.

The Greek-Turkish agreement was the only major accomplishment of the NATO meeting.

'A Token Payment' Remarks Premier

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today called for more Alberni disaster aid from the federal government.

He refused to accept the suggestion that Ottawa will pay only $250,000 — the amount announced by Prime Minister Pearson.

He termed the sum—only one-third of what B.C. asked—"a token payment."

"I would take this as an initial payment," he said.

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. government has already contributed a total of $800,000 disaster aid—and will not pay any more.

"That's our final figure," the premier said.

"Now it's up to the federal government to do their share."

B.C. asked Ottawa to pay half the $1,500,000 net depreciated loss caused by tidal waves on Vancouver Islands' west coast after the March 27 Alaska earthquake.

Mr. Bennett said Ottawa gets 80 per cent of the tax revenue from the province, and therefore should pay its fair share of disaster aid.

When first informed of Mr. Pearson's announcement, the premier asked: "Is that all?"

He recalled that Mr. Pearson had not answered either of his two telegrams about disaster aid.

The prime minister said that the fact he had received no detailed breakdown of the damage was one reason for the decision to pay only $250,000.

"He never asked for any more information," the premier replied.

Mr. Bennett said the cabinet-appointed Alberni disaster committee — "a non-partisan committee"—would be happy to supply any additional information requested by Ottawa.

B.C. has already approved payment of $750,000 for compensation to flood victims, and also has given the local Alberni valley disaster fund a gift of $50,000.

The total damage estimate of $1,500,000 was decided by 25 independent appraisers hired by the provincial government.

Edward Benson, chairman of the Alberni valley and west coast of Vancouver Island disaster fund, said the amount "was well below what was expected by the committee."

The committee was to start today to pay compensation to

'Should Be More' Says Opposition

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A $250,000 donation to the Alberni disaster fund—$500,000 lower than the amount requested by the B.C. government—was offered today by the federal government.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the government's decision in the Commons, and immediately prompted opposition suggestions that the federal contribution should be higher.

Mr. Pearson, in reply to these requests, said he could give no assurance that any higher grant would be provided but would give the reconsideration asked for.

In his statement, Mr. Pearson acknowledged that the B.C. government had proposed equal sharing of the March 27 flood damage between Victoria and Ottawa; on B.C. Premier Bennett's estimate this would have been $750,000 each.

MADE EARLY OFFER

"As soon as the news of the damage was received," Mr. Pearson told the House, "the government made an offer of assistance to the government of B.C., subject to the usual conditions, namely, that the federal government be given details of the extent of the damage and an indication that the cost was beyond the local municipalities, and provincial government.

"We still haven't got a copy of the report of the assessors retained by the B.C. government to survey the damage, but we have been notified that the net depreciated loss amounts to approximately $1.5 million.

"While Premier Bennett of course did not maintain that this sum was beyond the ability of his province he proposed that one half be met by the federal government.

"It has not been the practice of the federal government to meet half the cost when the scale of damage was not high. W are making a grant to the disaster fund rather than following the policy proposed by the provincial government, and we have decided to make a grant of $250,000 to the Alberni disaster fund."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in comment on the announcement said he was in entire agreement with the policy behind the grant. But he went on to say that the grant, "while substantial, is considerably less than members (of the Commons) generally would have expected, regard being taken of the loss suffered by so many private people."

"Is there any possibility of reconsidering and increasing that amount?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. "I think Canadians as a whole would feel that the situation could be

Financial, Economic Woes Loom for Liberal Regime

OTTAWA—Amid all its mistakes and liabilities the Pearson government enjoys one immeasurable asset. The current Canadian boom relaxes all political tensions, even the tension of racial conflict. Without the boom, indeed, the government's position would probably be impossible by now. No critic dares to attack prosperity.

Hutchison

But the boom is less the result of good management than of good luck. It began with the business recovery of the United States more than three years ago, it rides on an abundant export market today and already is beginning to confront the economists with a Keynesian nightmare.

Mr. Diefenbaker can rightly claim that the boom was well launched before his defeat by the Liberal party which promised to "get the economy moving," though it was then moving at breakneck speed. Mr. Pearson can claim that the nation, except for the unemployed in a few depressed areas, is highly prosperous under his administration.

In truth, the only decisive act of government affecting the economic climate was the devaluation of Canada's dollar in 1962 and it was not undertaken as a positive policy but as a negative surrender to a currency crisis.

For our present good fortune we have little reason to thank the politicians on either side. And now, despite their self-congratulation and retrospective wisdom, we are heading into serious trouble.

This trouble, disguised for the moment, has two interdependent sides, financial and economic.

Financially, the Pearson government is somewhat better managed than its predecessor but that is not saying much, since the Diefenbaker government almost precipitated national bankruptcy.

Extra Burden

To be sure, Mr. Walter Gordon rejoiced prematurely in his March budget speech that he had reduced the deficits of the preceding two years by a third, down to $455 million. Within a month, however, the new taxation deal with the provinces had placed an extra annual burden of about $200 million on the federal treasury.

This cost will not appear immediately but must be absorbed during the next few years and it cannot be absorbed without a sharp rise in federal taxes.

Though firmly committed to such an increase, the government has not decided where, or in what form, it should be applied. In any event all Canadians must pay more taxes to a

BEFORE COMMONS COMMITTEE

Ex-Socred Refuses Answer

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands were made in the Commons privileges committee today that MP Gerard Girouard be reported to the Commons for refusing to comply with instructions to answer a question.

Liberal and New Democratic members voiced the demand after chairman Larry Pennell (L—Brant - Haldimand) ruled that Mr. Girouard must tell the committee whether he discussed with any of his former Social Credit colleagues a bid by Liberal national organizer Keith Davey to have Mr. Girouard join the Liberals.

Mr. Girouard, MP for Labelle who last month switched to the Progressive Conservatives from Social Credit, told the committee:

"I refuse to reply."

His statement came in the wake of a committee vote of 14 to 9 that Mr. Girouard must make a reply.

Mr. Girouard has told the committee under oath that Mr. Davey offered him certain benefits such as a fat election campaign fund to switch to the Liberals.

He said he would not reply so as to avoid involving other persons in the committee's inquiry into his allegations against Mr. Davey.

He said under questioning by Conservative and Liberal MPs he had refused to "play politics" and he wouldn't allow the committee proceedings to become a "political show."

The question he rejected was posed by Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) who demanded that chairman Pennell report Mr. Girouard to the Commons for his action. Mr. Fisher was backed by Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard).

Mr. Pennell originally gave a ruling that Mr. Girouard did not have to reply to Mr. Fisher on the ground that the question was irrelevant.

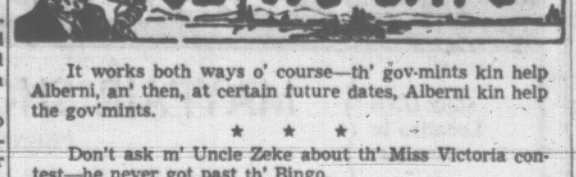

UPSET RULING

However, by a vote of 14 to 9 the committee upset his ruling with eight Progressive Conservatives and one Social Credit MP being outvoted by Liberals, New Democrats and Creditistes.

In the light of the vote, Mr. Pennell then instructed Mr. Girouard to reply to the question.

A procedural wrangle followed and the committee adjourned for lunch to give Mr.

FIVE-WAY PLAN

Schemes Invited For Centenary

Suggestions are invited for a Canada centenary project in which all Langford-Metchosin areas may participate, Langford's new recreation project chairman said today.

It is suggested all five areas in the district—Langford, Metchosin, Colwood, Glen Lake and Happy Valley — pool efforts and resources to contribute a single recreational improvement for the enjoyment of all citizens.

H. M. Palsson, Belmont Secondary School teacher, was named chairman of the Langford committee Wednesday night.

Serving with him will be Fred Boulter, Curtis McCulloch, Laurie Harrison and Clem Cunningham.

Langford recreation commission chairman Mrs. Fred Boulter said, "We feel that one big project would be better than five small ones."

Metchosin area has a project committee and the other three areas are expected to name committees soon.

When all committees are chosen and a broad concept of centennial project is discussed with the provincial centennial project is discussed with the provincial centennial committee, a single local committee could be chosen, Mr. Palsson said.

Anyone may suggest a project, which could be a park, swimming pool, community club, curling rink, tennis courts, marina, or similar type of recreational development of benefit to the community at large.

Mr. Benson was unable to say what percentage of damage will be covered.

"It appears it will not be 100 cents on the dollar or anywhere near it."

Mr. Benson said the fund is still $400,000 short of the assessed total damage figure.

that Artime's organization, the Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR), had issued its so-called "communique" about the attack from Miami. They acknowledged this was embarrassing to the United States and indicated that something might be done to prevent a recurrence.

Exile forces in Miami say their attack on a sugar mill and port in eastern Cuba is just the beginning in their war of sabotage and nerves aimed at toppling Fidel Castro's Communist regime.

The Revolutionary Recovery Movement, a military action group, said in its "first war communique" Wednesday that a combined raid by seaborne commandos and guerillas already in the hills gained control of the port of Pilon for three hours and left the sugar mill burning. It said other raids would come soon.

The exiles claimed they suffered no losses but said there was "tenacious fighting" with "a numerically superior Communist army." A spokesman for the invaders said Castro forces suffered considerable losses.

While commandos held Pilon, said the communique, engineers set off demolition charges at the mill, then withdrew. Guerrillas returned to the hills, the exiles said. Some townspeople in the area welcomed the attackers, they added.

Exports to Cuba — except non-subsidized foodstuffs, medicines and medical supplies — were banned on Oct. 19, 1960. During the 1950s, American exports to Cuba averaged about $500 million a year.

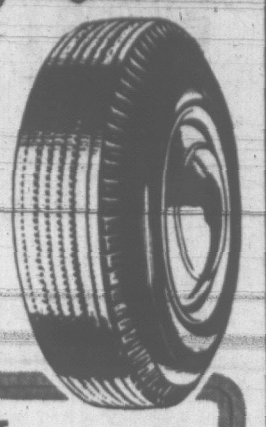

Following the ban, the exports dropped off to less than $14 million in 1961.

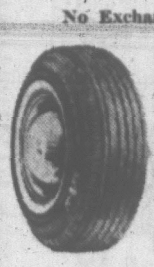

At the end of 1962 and through the first half of 1963, special relief shipments were sent to Cuba in exchange for the release of prisoners captured during the abortive Bay of Pigs attack. These shipments swelled the export total by $13 million in 1962 and $36 million in 1963.

Aside from these relief shipments, merchandise sent to Cuba during the past two years was valued at $407,000 and $76,000.

The department sought to make clear that today's move did not constitute an embargo on exports of food and medicine to Cuba. It simply means that the government wants to take a closer look at these shipments.
